OFFICE OF THE CITY MANAGER

Dear Boulder community members,

We are pleased to present to the community the results from the recent Community Survey. The responses indicate that residents continue to rate the quality of life very highly in our community. Most people rate their neighborhoods positively, give high marks to the city's parks, recreation facilities, bike and pedestrian facilities and open space, and consider Boulder a good place to work. People's feelings of safety are higher in many categories than in past surveys however safety around flooding has changed significantly.

The survey questions were developed to ask about topics most relevant to the daily lives of Boulder residents and that would be of the greatest long-term use to the Boulder City Council and city staff as we consider city goals and priorities, plans for the future and the city's financial health.

The 2014 Community Survey is the tenth in a series of such surveys conducted since 1987. It provides information from a representative cross section of Boulder residents which has been carefully gathered, analyzed and checked to assure a sample that is most representative of the entire community.

We appreciate the responses given by those who participated in the survey. We hope that you will find these results interesting and useful. Finally, we encourage and admire your involvement and contributions to making Boulder a better community and place to live. Individual efforts do make the difference!

Jane S. Brautigam
City Manager

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Survey Background

The 2014 Community Survey represents the tenth in a series of surveys conducted periodically by the city, with the first survey administered in 1987. The Boulder Community Survey gives city staff the opportunity to measure their performance over time by tracking resident evaluations of the community and city service delivery. The survey also allows Boulder residents to provide feedback on the quality of life in the city and use of various community amenities.

The City of Boulder has divided the city and the area just outside the city (the “service area”) into nine planning subcommunities. From within this service area, 3,017 households were randomly selected to participate in the survey. A total of 785 surveys were returned from households. After accounting for undeliverable surveys, the response rate from Boulder households was 27%. The results of the survey were statistically weighted to the demographics of Boulder from the 2010 U.S. Census.

The Boulder Community Survey is comprehensive, covering many topics related to life in the community. In order to connect these results to the values of the community and the goals of the City of Boulder, this report was organized around the city’s Sustainability Framework categories and Priority-based Budgeting (PBB) overarching objectives, called “results.” The PBB result areas for the City of Boulder fall into two broad categories: Quality Community and Good Governance. Within Quality Community, there are six focus areas:

- Livable Community
- Healthy and Socially Thriving Community
- Safe Community
- Accessible and Connected Community
- Economically Vital Community
- Environmentally Sustainable Community

Good Governance did not have focus areas, but the survey results were categorized into two themes:

- Relations and Communication between Residents and Boulder City Government
- City Employees

Responses to many questions were converted to a 100-point scale, where 100 is the highest possible rating and 0 is the lowest. This allows comparison of results to data from jurisdictions across North America (“benchmark comparisons”). In addition, comparisons can be made to previous survey results. Where differences in results from 2011 to 2014 are greater than five percentage points or three points on the 100-point scale, they can be considered significantly higher or lower.

Livable Community

Boulder residents continued to give high ratings to the quality of life in the community. In 2007, quality of life and neighborhood quality ratings had increased to their highest levels since the survey was first implemented. These high ratings were maintained in 2011 and 2014, with 86 and 79 points on the 100-point scale in 2014, respectively. The quality of life and neighborhood ratings in Boulder were significantly higher than the average ratings given by residents other jurisdictions across North America.

Healthy and Socially Thriving Community

Those completing the survey were asked to rate the sense of community in Boulder. Over 6 in 10 (65%) felt the sense of community was “very good” or “good,” a similar rating compared to the national average and the 2011 rating.

Ratings of the opportunities to attend arts and cultural activities were above the national benchmark comparison; however, ratings declined from 2011 to 2014. Access to a variety of housing options received a rating that was lower than in 2011 and the national comparison.

When asked to rate the overall quality of indoor and outdoor recreation in Boulder, nearly all survey respondents viewed the quality as “very good” or “good,” and no one gave a “very bad” rating. This rating was much higher than the national benchmark comparison.

Nearly all respondents reported visiting open space and mountain parks in the year prior to the survey, which is one of the most valued assets of the Boulder community. A large majority also had visited a neighborhood park and about half had used a Parks and Recreation field or court.

Safe Community

Ratings of feelings of safety from both violent crime and property crime improved in 2014 compared to 2011. These ratings were higher than the national benchmark and higher than had been observed in several previous implementations of the survey.

About 8 in 10 respondents felt at least “somewhat safe” from structural or house fires, similar to the national benchmark. About 4 in 10 felt at least “somewhat safe” from floods, a significant decrease from previous years, and likely attributed to the September 2013 flood. Less than half of respondents (39%) felt safe from traffic-related incidents, similar to 2011.

A new set of questions on the 2014 survey asked residents to rate how safe they felt in 10 different areas in Boulder. At the top of the list, with nearly all residents feeling at least “usually safe,” were Downtown Commercial Areas during the day and respondents’ neighborhoods during the day. Nearly 9 in 10 residents felt safe in their neighborhood at night. Where benchmark comparisons were available, Boulder received ratings that were higher or much higher than other communities across the nation.

Accessible and Connected Community

When asked to assess the overall ease of getting to the places they usually have to visit, 7 in 10 survey respondents reported this as “very good” or “good.” This question was new in 2014 and was rated lower than the benchmark comparison.

About two-thirds of respondents had ridden a bus between Boulder and Denver, and 7 in 10 had ridden a high frequency transit network bus in the past 12 months. More reported that they had ridden a bus between Boulder and Denver in 2014 compared to 2011. Over half had ridden another RTD bus within Boulder and commuted to work by bicycle.

Nearly half of survey respondents reported they were eligible for some kind Eco-Pass; about one-third of those who were eligible said they used it more than once a week, while one in five had not picked it up. When asked how likely they would be to purchase a discounted transit pass similar to Eco-Passes if it were available, 7 in 10 reported they would be at least “somewhat likely,” with 3 in 10 reporting they would be “very likely.”

Nearly all survey respondents (97%) had regular, convenient access to the internet. The most common way respondents got on the internet was at home (97%), an increase compared to 2011. About two-thirds of respondents said they accessed the internet at work or on a smart phone or other personal digital assistant. Regular internet access was available at a public facility such as a school or library for 27% of respondents, a decrease compared to 2011.

Economically Vital Community

Residents viewed Boulder as a good place to work. This aspect of an economically vital community received a rating of 74 points on a 100-point scale, similar to 2011 and much higher than the national benchmark.

Shopping opportunities were deemed “good,” on average, by residents, but the rating was lower than in 2011. Employment opportunities were given a rating of 56 points on a 100-point scale, lower than in 2011. However, shopping opportunities and employment opportunities in Boulder both were rated much higher than the national benchmarks.

Nearly all respondents had visited the Pearl Street Mall at least once in the year prior to the survey. At least 8 in 10 respondents had visited the University Hill business district at least once in the previous year. Compared to 2011, a similar proportion in 2014 reported visiting the Pearl Street Mall at least once in the past 12 months, while more reported visiting the University Hill business district in 2014.

Environmentally Sustainable Community

When asked to rate the overall quality of the natural environment, nearly all survey respondents reported this as “very good” or “good.” This question was new in 2014 and the rating was much higher than the benchmark comparison.

Survey respondents reported engaging in a number of environmentally responsible activities. Nearly all survey participants (98%) reported having recycled from their home at least once during the previous year, and about 6 in 10 had made an energy improvement to their home or business. Over half had used transit or commuted by bicycle at least once.

Good Governance

Survey respondents were asked to rate their level of agreement with the statement, “I am pleased with the overall direction the city is taking.” This aspect of good governance received an average rating of 63 points on a 100-point scale, which was higher than the benchmark comparisons and similar to the 2011 rating.

The average ratings for the city government’s performance on effectively planning for the future, working through critical issues and spending tax dollars wisely were between “neither well nor poorly” and “well,” and these ratings have gradually increased over time since 1999 or 1993, respectively. The rating for spending tax dollars wisely was similar to the benchmark comparison. The average rating of Boulder city governments’ efforts to inform the public about how their tax dollars are used was 52 points on the 100-point scale, an increase from 2011.

Relations and Communication between Residents and Boulder City Government

Residents’ perceptions of Boulder city government responsiveness remained stable from 2011. Ratings were most positive for the city’s provision of access to information about issues, events and meetings and effectively planning for the future (66 and 64 points, respectively, on a 100-point scale). These ratings remained stable compared to 2011. The rating for gathering feedback from residents and conducting public processes was higher than the benchmark comparison.

When asked whether they informed themselves about the major issues in the City of Boulder, about 66% agreed that they did so, which was higher compared to 2011 and has improved significantly since it was first asked in 2001. At least one-quarter of those completing the survey had attended a public meeting or event about city matters in the past year, had watched a news program on cable TV Channel 8 and had watched a City Council meeting on cable TV Channel 8.

City Employees

City employees received fairly high ratings from those who had interacted with them in the 12 months prior to the survey. In 2014, the average rating for city employees being courteous, respectful and professional was 81 points on a 100-point scale, a “good” rating on average, on the scale from “very bad” to “very good” and similar to the benchmark comparison. This rating remained stable since 2011 but increased compared to 2001 when this question was first asked.

For the first time on the 2014 survey, respondents who had phone, in-person or email contact with an employee in the last 12 months were asked to indicate the quality of the assistance they received. This aspect of good governance received an average rating of 77 points on a 100-point scale, a “good” rating.

Priorities for City Services

The average rating of Boulder city government operations was 62 points on the 100-point scale, lower than the rating of 68 and 69 observed in 2011 and 2007, but about the same or slightly higher than what had been observed from 1989 to 2001. The 2014 rating was above the national benchmark.

Residents completing the questionnaire were asked to rate the quality of 53 different city services. Of these, 31 had been included on the questionnaire in 2011. Eleven items were rated lower in 2014 than in 2011, three were rated higher and the remaining services were given similar ratings.

SURVEY BACKGROUND

What the Survey Was About

The 2014 Community Survey represents the tenth in a series. The first survey was administered in 1987, and periodically since then. The Boulder Community Survey serves as a scorecard for the Boulder community by identifying what residents think is working well and what is not in city service delivery. Those completing the survey also assess the quality of life and describe their use of various community amenities.

How the Survey Was Conducted

The Community Survey questionnaire was developed using previous surveys as a starting point. City staff reviewed the questionnaire to keep those questions most pertinent for maintaining a trendline. In addition, topics of special interest in 2014 were added to the questionnaire.

The City of Boulder has divided the city and the area just outside the city (the “service area”) into nine planning subcommunities. All households located within these nine planning subcommunities were eligible to receive the survey; 3,017 of these households were randomly selected to receive the survey (referred to as “scientific sampling”). Each selected household was contacted three times during January 2014. First, a prenotification announcement, informing the household members that they had been selected to participate in the survey was sent. Approximately one week after mailing the prenotification, each household was mailed a survey containing a cover letter signed by the mayor enlisting participation. The packet also contained a postage-paid return envelope in which the survey recipients could return the completed questionnaire directly to National Research Center, Inc. (NRC), the organization conducting the survey. A link was provided on the cover letters for residents to complete the survey online. A reminder letter and survey, scheduled to arrive one to two weeks after the first survey was the final contact. The second cover letter asked those who had not completed the survey to do so and those who have already done so to refrain from turning in another survey. An English and Spanish version of the cover letter was included in each packet. The Spanish version of the cover letter explained what was in the packet, and encouraged recipients to find an English-speaking friend or family member to help them complete the survey in English, or provided instructions on how to complete a Spanish version of the survey online.

About 4% (121) of the 3,017 surveys mailed were returned because the housing unit was vacant or the postal service was unable to deliver the survey as addressed. Of the 2,896 households presumed to have received a survey, 785 completed the survey, providing a response rate of 27%. This is a good response rate; typical response rates for a mailed resident survey range from 20% to 40%.

Additional surveys were collected through special outreach efforts with the youth of Boulder and the Immigrant community. These questionnaires were nearly identical to the community survey questionnaire. As these surveys were not collected through the scientific sampling method, these results can be found under separate cover in a document called Boulder Community Survey 2014 Supplemental Report.

Report Organization

The Boulder Community Survey is comprehensive, covering many topics related to life in this community. In order to connect these results to the values of the community and the goals of the City of Boulder, this report is organized around the Sustainability Framework categories and Priority-based Budgeting (PBB) overarching objectives, called “results.” The PBB result areas for the City of Boulder fall into two broad categories: Quality Community and Good Governance. Within Quality Community, there are six focus areas:

- Livable Community
- Healthy and Socially Thriving Community
- Safe Community
- Accessible and Connected Community
- Economically Vital Community
- Environmentally Sustainable Community

Good Governance does not have focus areas, but the survey results have been categorized into two themes:

- Relations and Communication between Residents and Boulder City Government
- City Employees

The final section of the report reviews the quality and importance ratings given to a variety of City services.

The responses to all questions can be found in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey. Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity contains selected results for each subcommunity and Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups displays selected results by certain respondent characteristics. In addition, results from the other data collection efforts can be found in a supplemental report (Boulder Community Survey 2014 Supplemental Report). That report includes tables of results from the youth survey, the immigrant survey and the “open” (non-scientific) web survey. In addition, responses from survey respondents who indicated they were a student at the University of Colorado Boulder were pulled from the mailed and open web survey results. A comparison of the results across all five survey types also is included in the supplemental report.

“Don’t Know” Responses and Rounding

On many of the questions in the survey, respondents could answer “don’t know.” The proportion of respondents giving this reply is shown in the full set of responses included in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey.

However, these responses have been removed from the analyses presented in the body of the report. In other words, the tables and graphs display only responses from respondents who had an opinion about that item.

For some questions, respondents were permitted to select multiple responses. When the total exceeds 100% in a table for a multiple response question, it is because some respondents are counted in multiple response categories. When a table for a question that only permitted a single response does not total to exactly 100%, it is due to the customary practice of rounding percentages to the nearest whole number.

Confidence Intervals

The 95% confidence interval (or “margin of error”) quantifies the “sampling error,” or precision of the estimates made from the survey results. A 95% confidence interval can be calculated for any sample size, and indicates that in 95 of 100 surveys conducted like this one, for a particular item, a result would be found that is within ± 4 percentage points of the result that would be found if everyone in the population of interest was surveyed. Other types of “error” such as non-response error may also influence or bias results (i.e., those who did not respond to the survey may have different opinions about the issues covered than those who did respond).

Comparing Survey Results

Boulder has a long trendline of data about resident perceptions of quality of life and quality of services delivered by the city. Some comparisons to previous survey results are shown in the body of the report; Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey contains a full set of comparisons, when available. Some survey data date back to 1987; other data have shorter trendlines. Where differences in results from 2011 to 2014 are greater than five percentage points or three points on the 100-point scale, they can be considered significantly higher or lower.

Putting Evaluations onto a 100-point Scale

Although responses to many of the evaluative or frequency questions were made on four- or five-point scales with 1 representing the best rating, the scales had different labels (e.g., “very good,” “strongly agree,” “essential”). To make comparisons easier, many of the results in this summary are reported on a common scale where 0 is the worst possible rating and 100 is the best possible rating. If everyone reported “very good,” then the result would be 100 on the 0-100 scale. If the average rating for quality of life was right in the middle of the scale (“neither good nor bad”), then the result would be 50. The new scale can be thought of like the thermometer used to represent total giving to United Way. The higher the thermometer reading, the closer to the goal of 100 – in this case, the most positive response possible. The 95% confidence interval around a score on the 0-100 scale based on all respondents typically will be no greater than plus or minus two points on the 100-point scale.

Benchmark Comparisons

An average rating of 75 for service quality is at the “good” mark on a 100-point scale that goes from “very bad” to “very good.” Few services actually receive ratings as high as 75 on the scale, in part, because certain kinds of services tend to be thought less well of by residents in many communities across the country. For instance, police protection tends to be better received than pothole repair by residents of most American cities. Where possible, the better comparison is not from one service to another in Boulder, but from Boulder services to like services provided by other jurisdictions.

NRC’s database of comparative resident opinion is comprised of resident perspectives gathered in citizen surveys from approximately 500 jurisdictions whose residents evaluated local government services. Benchmark comparisons have been provided when similar questions on the Boulder Community Survey are included in NRC’s database and there are at least five jurisdictions in which the same question was asked, though most questions are compared to more than 100 jurisdictions. Where comparisons are available, Boulder results are noted as being “higher” than the benchmark, “lower” than the benchmark or “similar to” the benchmark. This evaluation of “higher,” “lower” or “similar to” comes from a statistical comparison of Boulder’s rating to the benchmark (the average rating from all the comparison jurisdictions where a similar question was asked). In instances where ratings are considerably higher or lower than the benchmark, these ratings have been further demarcated by the attribute of “much,” (for example, “much less” or “much above”). Differences of more than two points on the 100-point scale between Boulder’s ratings and the average based on the appropriate comparisons from the database are considered “statistically significant,” and thus are marked as “higher” or “lower” the benchmark. When differences between Boulder’s ratings and the national benchmarks are two points or less, they are marked as “similar to” the benchmark. These benchmark comparisons have been provided where available in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey.

SURVEY RESULTS

Livable Community

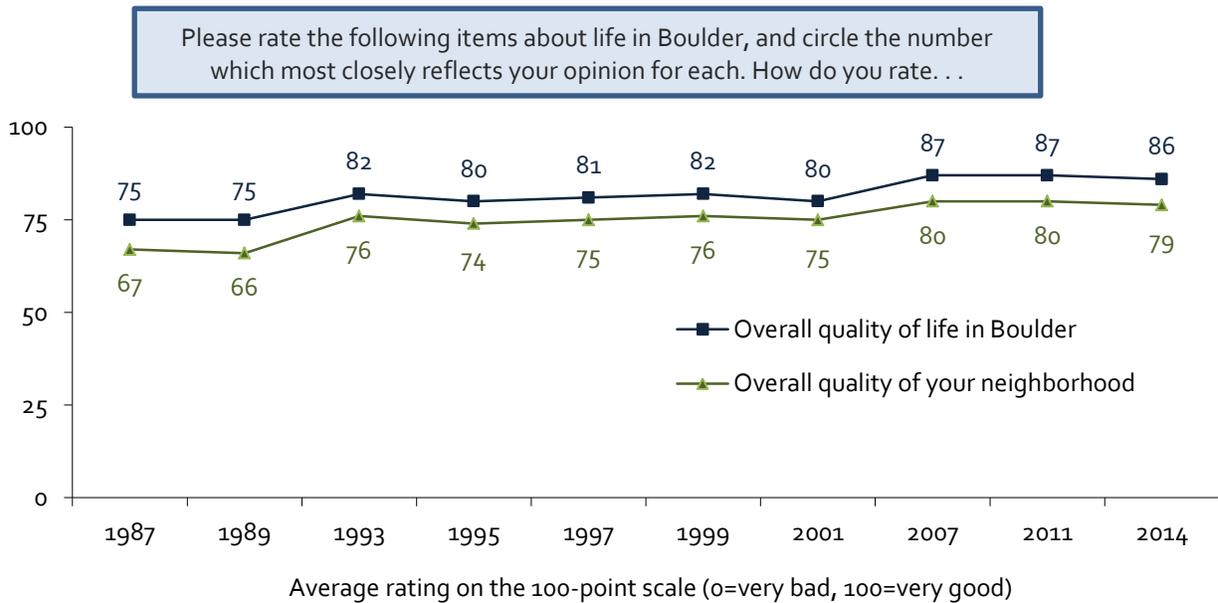

The City of Boulder seeks to maintain and improve the quality of life of the residents. In order to gauge how residents view their community and the quality of life in Boulder, survey respondents were asked to rate their perception of the overall quality of life in Boulder and the overall quality of their neighborhood.

Boulder residents continued to give high ratings to the quality of life in the community. The high levels seen in 2007 and 2011 were maintained in 2014. The quality of life and neighborhood ratings were significantly higher than the average ratings received by other jurisdictions across North America (see Table 2 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

When results were compared by respondent demographics, white respondents tended to give higher ratings of quality of life and neighborhood quality compared to their counterparts. Women awarded higher marks for neighborhood quality compared to men. In general, residents with children and residents with higher household incomes tended to give higher ratings to aspects of quality of life in Boulder. For additional comparisons, see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups.

When results were compared by geography, residents in the Crossroads & CU area rated the quality of their neighborhoods lower than respondents in other areas of the city. Respondents in Central Boulder gave the highest ratings to their neighborhoods. For additional comparisons, see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity.

Healthy and Socially Thriving Community

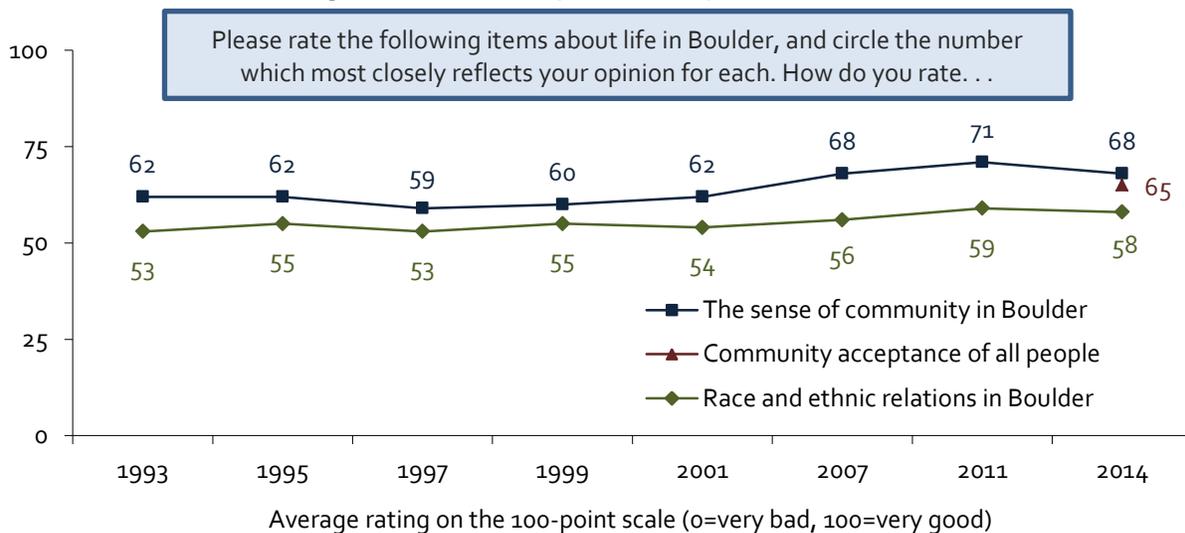

As defined by the City of Boulder, a healthy and socially thriving community is one that: cultivates a wide-range of recreational, cultural, educational and social opportunities; supports the physical and mental well-being of its community members and actively partners with others to improve the welfare of those in need; facilitates housing options to accommodate a diverse community; fosters inclusion, embraces diversity and respects human rights; supports and enhances neighborhood livability for all members of the community; and enhances multi-generational community enrichment and community engagement.

The city strives to “enhance community livability by providing outreach and developing policies that address the needs of the community, including the under-served, under-represented and under-participating residents so all who live in Boulder can feel part of, and thrive in, our community.” Residents’ rating of the sense of community in Boulder was 68 points on a 100-point scale in 2014; this is roughly a “good” rating. This rating represented a significant improvement since 2001, although the change since 2011 was not statistically significant. Ratings of race and ethnic relations also have trended upward since 2001, although 2014 ratings were similar to 2011.

Survey respondents were asked to rate the quality of community acceptance of all people in Boulder for the first time on the 2014 survey. This aspect of a healthy and socially thriving community received a rating of 65 on a 100-point scale; this was close to a “good” rating and similar to the rating for the sense of community in Boulder. Ratings of sense of community and community acceptance of all people were similar to benchmark comparisons (see Table 2 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

When results were compared by respondent demographics, men gave higher marks for race and ethnic relations compared to women. Residents who had lived in the city less than 5 years held more favorable views of community acceptance (see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons).

Part of the definition of a healthy and socially thriving community is one that provides a wide range of recreational, cultural, educational and social opportunities, and one which facilitates housing options to accommodate a diverse community. Community characteristics related to these features were assessed through the survey. Ratings of the opportunities to attend arts and cultural activities received high marks from residents; although ratings fell from 2011 to 2014, they remained higher than the national benchmark comparison (see Table 2 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). Access to a variety of housing options received a lower rating in 2014 compared to 2011 and was below the national benchmark.

When results were compared by respondent demographics, white respondents tended to give higher ratings to opportunities to attend arts and cultural events than their counterparts. Ratings of opportunities to attend arts and cultural events tended to decrease with respondent age. (See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons).

Survey respondents were asked to indicate how likely they would be to use a variety of programs and services if they were available at the Boulder Public Library. Of the nine potential programs and services listed, streaming or downloadable movies and downloadable e-books and/or audiobooks were the two potential offerings that received at least half of respondents reporting they would be “very likely” or “likely” to use these services. Between 34% and 43% reported being “very likely” or “likely” to use the other seven listed potential offerings. (Please see Table 61 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey for the full frequencies for this question.) Survey respondents also were given the opportunity to write in an “other” program or service that they would like to see offered by the Boulder Public Library. These responses can be found in Appendix B: Verbatim Responses to Open-Ended Questions.

When asked to rate the overall quality of indoor and outdoor recreation in Boulder, nearly all survey respondents reported the quality as “very good” or “good” and no one gave a “very bad” rating. This rating was much higher than the national benchmark comparisons (see Table 2 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). This was a new question on the 2014 survey.

Women awarded higher marks for quality of recreation compared to men. Ratings of quality of recreation tended to decrease with respondent age. (See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons).

In the year prior to the survey, nearly all respondents reported visiting open space and mountain parks, often cited as one of the assets of the Boulder community. A large majority of respondents also had visited a neighborhood park and a lesser majority had visited a Parks and Recreation specialized or single-use facility. More than half had used a Parks and Recreation field or court and one-third had participated in any of the North, South or East Recreation Center programs or classes. Only 13% had used the services or facilities at the North, South or East Senior Centers.

When compared to the 2011 ratings, more survey respondents reported that they had used the Parks and Recreation fields or courts in the year prior to the survey and fewer had participated in any of the North, South or East Recreation Centers' programs or classes. (Please see Table 10 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey for results compared by year.)

Residents' level of participation in recreation activities was compared by respondent characteristics. Use of Parks and Recreation facilities and classes was reported more often by residents age 35-54, homeowners, respondents with children or teens and higher income residents. As might be expected, use of the services and facilities at the East or West Senior Centers was much higher for older residents than the population as a whole, with about a third of those 55 or older having used the services or facilities in the past year. (For additional comparisons, see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups).

Safe Community

In order to participate in and contribute to their community, residents must have a sense of personal safety in their environment, as well as confidence in the quality of public safety services.

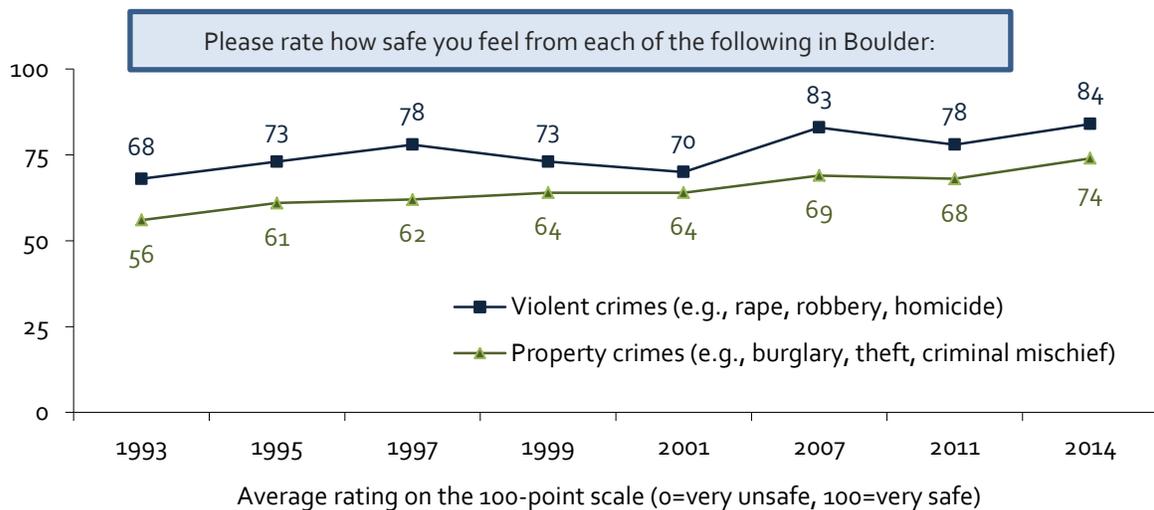

When asked to rate the importance of 53 items, the three receiving the highest importance ratings were emergency medical services, crime prevention and fire response, with at least 9 in 10 residents saying these were “essential” or “very important” (see Table 50 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

Ratings of feelings of safety from both violent crime and property crime increased in 2014 compared to 2011. About 9 in 10 respondents reported they felt at least “somewhat safe” from violent crimes and 8 in 10 felt at least “somewhat safe” from property crimes (see Figure 7 on the following page). These evaluations of safety were higher than the national benchmark and higher than had been observed in several previous implementations of the survey (see Table 5 and Table 6 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

When results were compared by respondent demographics, men, newer residents, non-students, wealthier residents and those with children tended to feel safer from violent crime compared to their counterparts; newer residents and wealthier respondents also felt safer from property crime (see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups).

Few differences in safety ratings were observed across subcommunities. Respondents in Central Boulder and Southeast Boulder felt the least safe from property crimes, while East Boulder & Gunbarrel and North Boulder & Palo Park felt the safest from both property crimes and violent crimes (please see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity).

About 8 in 10 respondents reported they felt at least “somewhat safe” from structural or house fires, a rating that was similar to the national benchmark (see Table 5 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). Nearly three-quarters of survey respondents felt safe from discrimination due to their background or personal characteristics and just over half felt at least “somewhat safe” from wildland fires. About 4 in 10 felt at least “somewhat safe” from floods, a significant decrease from previous years (see Table 6 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey), and likely a result of the September 2013 flood. Less than half of respondents (39%) felt safe from traffic-related incidents, similar to 2011.

Renters and CU students felt less safe from floods than did homeowners and non-students. Non-white respondents, those earning less than $25,000 and respondents over age 34 felt less safe from discrimination in Boulder (please see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups). South Boulder residents felt the least safe from traffic-related incidents while those in Central Boulder felt the most safe (please see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity).

A new set of questions on the 2014 survey asked those completing the questionnaire to rate how safe they felt in 10 different areas in Boulder. At the top of the list, with nearly all respondents feeling at least “usually safe,” were Downtown Commercial Areas during the day and residents’ neighborhoods during the day. About 9 in 10 felt at least “usually safe” in their neighborhood at night. Seven in 10 felt at least “usually safe” in the Municipal Campus/Main Library area during the day and in City parks, and slightly fewer felt at least safe in the Main Library and in Downtown Commercial Areas at night. Four in 10 respondents (40%) felt safe in Municipal Campus/Main Library area at night.

Where benchmark comparisons were available, Boulder received safety ratings that were higher or much higher than in communities across the nation. The ratings for safety in Downtown Commercial Areas during the day and in their neighborhood during the day were higher than the benchmark, while ratings of safety in Downtown Commercial Areas at night, their neighborhood at night and City parks were much higher. (Please see Table 8 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey.)

In general, respondents who were Hispanic, female, older and of lower-income felt less safe in the community compared to their counterparts. Renters felt safer than homeowners’ downtown during the day but less safe in their neighborhood at night. Residents with children and non-students felt less safe in the Municipal Campus/Main Library area during the day. (Please see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.)

Accessible and Connected Community

The aspects included in the conception of an accessible and connected community include one that offers and encourages a variety of safe, accessible and sustainable mobility options; plans, designs and maintains effective infrastructure networks; supports strong regional multimodal connections; supports a balanced transportation system that reflects effective land use and reduces congestion; and provides open access to information, encourages innovation, enhances communication and promotes community engagement. This section of the report examines the results to survey questions related to transportation and mobility in the Boulder community, as well as questions related to Eco-Passes and connection to the internet. Many of the survey questions related to access to information and communication dealt with interactions with city government and are included in the section Good Governance.

When asked to rate the importance of snow and ice control on major streets, high frequency transit routes and bike and pedestrian facilities, at least 8 in 10 residents deemed each as “essential” or “very important” (see Table 21 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

Mobility and transportation are important components of a sustainable community. When asked to rate the overall ease of getting to the places they usually have to visit, 7 in 10 survey respondents viewed this as “very good” or “good.” This question was new in 2014 and the rating was lower than the benchmark comparison (see Table 2 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

Eco-Pass

Nearly half of survey respondents reported that they were eligible for some kind Eco-Pass (see Table 62 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). About one-fourth, however, were not sure whether they were eligible. More survey respondents in 2014 compared to 2011 were eligible for an Eco-Pass through their employer (see Table 63 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). Those who had an Eco-Pass were asked how often they used it. About one-third said they used it more than once a week, while one in five had not picked it up (see Table 64 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). When asked how likely they would be to purchase a discounted transit pass similar to Eco-Passes if it were available, 7 in 10 reported they would be at least “somewhat likely,” 3 in 10 reporting they would be “very likely” (see Table 67 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

Transportation Behaviors

About 7 in 10 respondents had ridden a bus between Boulder and Denver and had ridden a high frequency transit network bus in the past 12 months. More residents reported that they had ridden a bus between Boulder and Denver in 2014 compared to 2011 (see Table 10 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). Over half had ridden another RTD bus within Boulder or commuted to work by bicycle. More than one-quarter of those who had commuted to work by bicycle in the past 12 months had done so more than 26 times, or two or more times per month (see Table 9 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

Residents' transportation behaviors were compared by respondent characteristics. Riding a bus was more common among residents who had lived in Boulder 6-20 years, were younger, rented their homes, did not have children in their household, identified as non-white, earned less and were students. Commuting by bike was more common among men, younger respondents, renters and CU students. For additional comparisons, see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups.

Perceptions about accessibility and connectedness varied across subcommunities. Respondents in East Boulder and Gunbarrel were less likely to have ridden a high frequency transit network bus within the City of Boulder and commute to work by bicycle than respondents in other areas of the city. Those living in Central Boulder and South Boulder were most likely to have ridden a high frequency transit network bus, while those living in the Crossroads and CU subcommunity were most likely to have commuted to work by bicycle within the last 12 months. For additional comparisons, see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity.

Internet Access

The survey assessed whether survey participants had “regular, convenient access” to the internet, leaving it to respondents to decide how to define regular and convenient. Nearly all said they had regular, convenient access to the internet. Those with access were asked where they accessed the internet. Figure 11 below first shows the proportion of respondents who had regular, convenient access to the internet and then shows the proportion of all respondents accessing the internet in various ways (meaning that the 3% who said they did not have regular, convenient internet access, did not access the internet using any of the four methods specifically asked on the survey).

The most common way respondents accessed the internet was at home (97%). About 7 in 10 respondents said they accessed the internet on a “smart” phone or PDA and two-thirds accessed the internet at work. Regular internet access was available at school or a library for 27% of respondents. Compared to 2011, more survey respondents had accessed the internet at home and on a “smart” phone or PDA and fewer reported having access to the internet at school or a library in 2014.

* Percentages add to more than 100% as respondents could use more than one means to access the internet.

Economically Vital Community

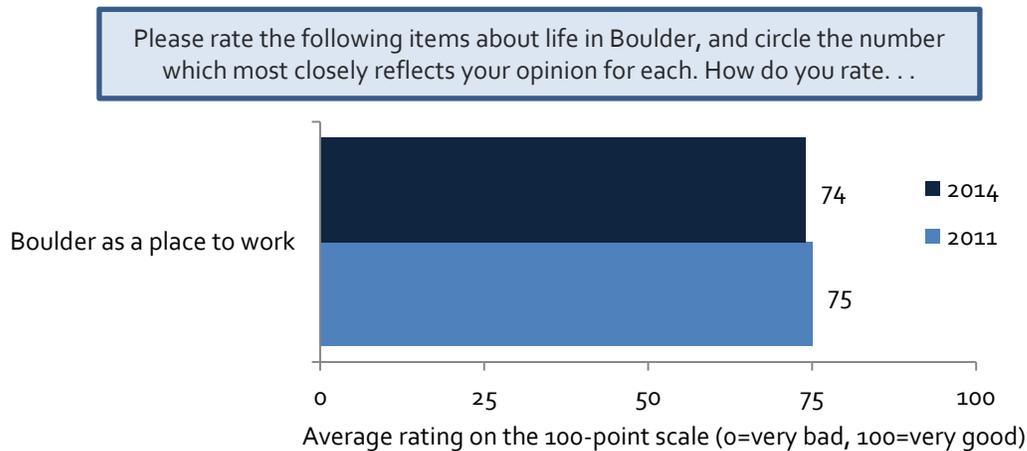

An economically vital community is one that supports an environment for creativity and innovation; promotes a qualified and diversified workforce that meets employers’ needs and supports broad-based economic diversity; encourages sustainable development supported by reliable and affordable city services; fosters regional and public/private collaboration with key institutions and organizations that contribute to economic sustainability; and invests in infrastructure and amenities that attract, sustain and retain diverse businesses, entrepreneurs, and the associated primary jobs.

When asked to rate the importance of 53 items related to City of Boulder services, about 9 in 10 residents deemed retention and expansion of quality jobs in Boulder as “essential” or “very important” (see Table 25 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). This received the fifth highest importance rating out of the 53 listed items.

Several survey questions assessed resident opinion about the economic vitality of Boulder. Those completing the questionnaire rated Boulder as a place to work, giving this aspect of an economically vital community a rating of 74 points on a 100-point scale, a “good” rating. This was similar to 2011 and much higher than the national benchmark (see Table 2 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

When results were compared by respondent demographics, white respondents tended to give higher ratings to Boulder as a place to work than their counterparts. See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.

Shopping opportunities were deemed “good,” on average, by residents, a rating lower than in 2011 (see Table 3). Employment opportunities were given a rating of 56 on the 100-point scale (“neither good nor bad”), lower than that observed in 2011. However, shopping opportunities and employment opportunities in Boulder both were rated much higher than the national benchmarks (see Table 2). The quality or character of new development was deemed slightly less than “good” by respondents (62 points), similar to the national benchmark.

When results were compared by respondent demographics, ratings of employment opportunities and shopping opportunities tended to decrease with respondent age. (See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.) Respondents in East Boulder and Gunbarrel rated shopping opportunities lower than respondents in other areas. (For additional comparisons, see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity.)

Nearly all respondents reported they had visited the Pearl Street Mall at least once in the previous year (see Figure 14). At least 8 in 10 respondents had visited the University Hill business district at least once in the previous year. Compared to 2011, a similar proportion in 2014 reported visiting the Pearl Street Mall at least once in the past 12 months, while more reported visiting the University Hill business district in 2014.

Residents' level of visitation of Boulder shopping areas was compared by respondent characteristics. As may be expected, visiting the University Hill business district was more common among residents who had lived in Boulder 6-20 years, were ages 18 to 34, male, rented their homes and were CU students. Those 55 years of age or older were less likely to have visited the Pearl Street Mall in the past 12 months (see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons).

Residents living in East Boulder & Gunbarrel were less likely to have visited the Pearl Street Mall in the past 12 months than their counterparts. There were no significant differences for the rate of visitation to the Pearl Street Mall based on geographic area of the survey respondents' household. For additional comparisons, please see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity.

Environmentally Sustainable Community

The City of Boulder desires to be “a role model of exemplary environmental practices.” Being an environmentally sustainable community includes being a place that promotes and regulates an ecologically balanced community; supports and sustains natural resource and energy conservation; mitigates and abates threats to the environment; and promotes and sustains a safe, clean and attractive place to live, work and play.

Survey respondents evaluated the importance of 53 City of Boulder services. About 8 in 10 residents deemed energy conservation and efficiency programs, water conservation programs, renewable energy programs and recycling and composting collection services as “essential” or “very important” (see Table 30 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

When asked to rate the overall quality of the natural environment, nearly all survey respondents reported this as “very good” or “good.” This question was new in 2014 and the rating was much higher than the benchmark comparison (see Table 2 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

Survey respondents reported engaging in a number of environmentally responsible activities. Nearly all survey participants (98%) reported having recycled from their home at least once during the previous year, with 86% having done so more than 26 times (see Table 9). About 6 in 10 had made an energy improvement to their home or business. Over half had used transit or commuted by bicycle at least once (see Transportation Behaviors).

Respondents over 35, homeowners, those with children, higher-income respondents and non-students were more likely to engage in environmentally-friendly practices such as composting and conserving energy (for additional comparisons, see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups).

Good Governance

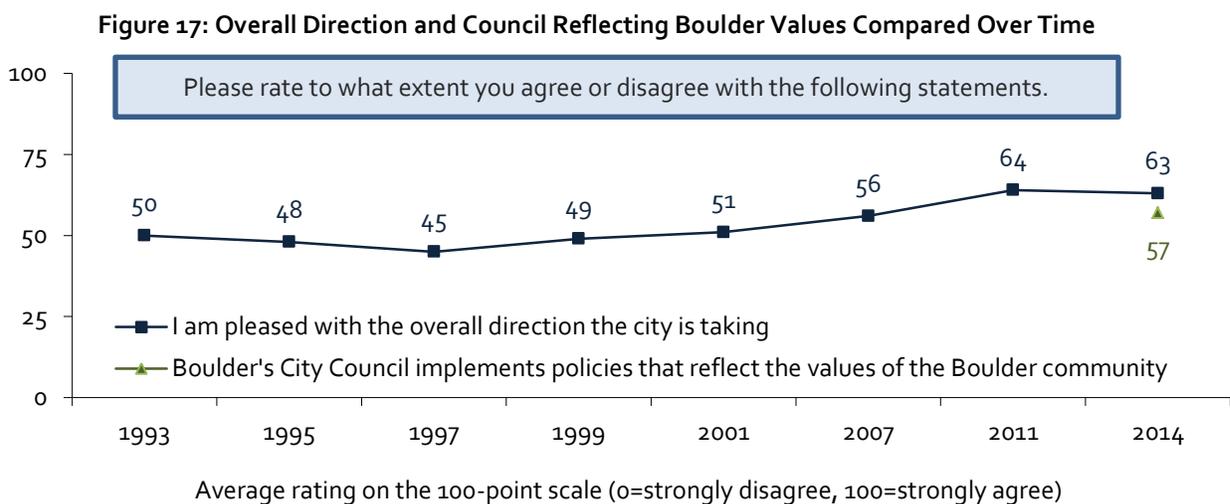

The City of Boulder considers good governance to include modeling stewardship and sustainability of the city’s financial, human, information and physical assets; supporting strategic decision making with timely, reliable and accurate data and analysis; enhancing and facilitating transparency, accuracy, efficiency, effectiveness, and quality customer service in all city business; supporting, developing and enhancing relationships between the city and community/regional partners; and providing assurance of regulatory and policy compliance.

Survey respondents were asked to rate their level of agreement with the statement, “I am pleased with the overall direction the city is taking.” This aspect of good governance received a rating of 63 points on a 100-point scale (between “agree” and “neither agree nor disagree”) and was higher than the benchmark comparisons (see Table 12 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). This rating remained stable from 2011 to 2014, having improved significantly since the question was first asked in 1993.

Residents also were asked to assess their level of agreement with the statement “Boulder’s City Council implements policies that reflect the values of the Boulder community” for the first time on the 2014 survey. This received a rating of 57 points on a 100-point scale, which was lower compared to the rating for the overall direction the city is taking.

Comparisons by respondent characteristics revealed that renters, younger residents, students and respondents without teens in their household were more likely to feel positively about the overall direction the city is taking. Women, younger residents and renters were more likely to feel that the City Council implements policies that reflect Boulder’s values. See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.

East Boulder and Gunbarrel residents were less pleased with the direction the City of Boulder is taking overall, and were less inclined to think that Boulder City Council implements policies that reflect the values of the Boulder community than were respondents in other areas of the city. Residents of the Crossroads and CU subcommunity were most likely to feel positively about the overall direction the City of Boulder is taking. See Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity for additional comparisons.

Survey respondents were given the opportunity to write in their own comments about the job the City of Boulder is doing. Out of the 785 residents who completed the questionnaire, 290 elected to write in a response for this question. These responses were reviewed and categorized into groups. About 1 in 10 survey respondents who answered this question indicated they support more attention to helping the homeless, are pleased with city government and city government actions, and had concerns with the utility municipalization. The other categories received less than 10% of respondents making a related comment. A fifth of responses were categorized into “other” comments due to the variation and infrequency among responses. (Please see Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey for the number of responses categorized to each response and Appendix B: Verbatim Responses to Open-Ended Questions for the written responses.)

Those completing the questionnaire were asked to evaluate how well the city government does at effectively planning for the future, working through critical issues and spending tax dollars wisely. The average ratings were between “neither well nor poorly” and “well.” For these items, ratings have been gradually increasing since 1993 or 1999. From 2011 to 2014, the average ratings of each remained stable. Only one of these items could be compared to a national benchmark; the rating for spending tax dollars wisely was similar to the benchmark comparison (see Table 15 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

Younger residents and renters awarded higher marks to the job the City of Boulder does at planning for the future and working through issues. When it came to spending tax dollars wisely, women, residents under 55, renters, respondents with children and those earning less than $50,000 a year were more likely to feel the City was doing well. See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.

Residents living in East Boulder & Gunbarrel felt the City does not do as good of a job at spending tax dollars wisely than did residents in other subcommunities (see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity for additional comparisons).

Many questions on the survey measured residents’ perceptions of the responsiveness of local government and the way in which they interacted with city government and city government related with them.

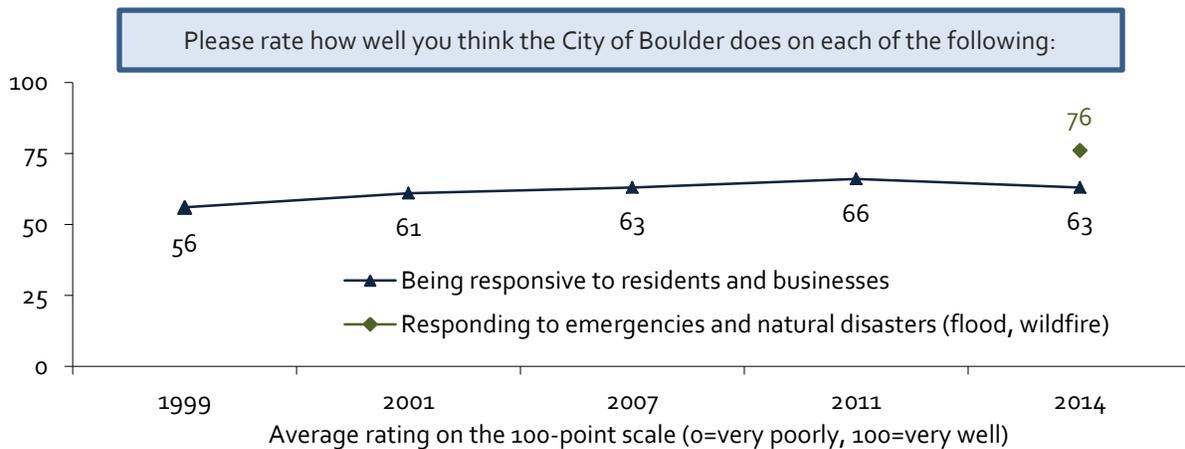

Residents’ perceptions of Boulder city government responsiveness remained stable compared to 2011 ratings. While nearly 6 in 10 survey respondents indicated the city does “very well” or “well” at being responsive, only 1 in 10 reported “poorly” or “very poorly,” with the remaining 3 in 10 reporting the middle response of “neither well nor poorly” (see Table 14 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

For the first time on the 2014 survey, respondents were asked to rate how well or poorly the Boulder city government does at responding to emergencies and natural disasters. This received a rating of 76 points on a 100-point scale, which was higher compared to the rating for government responsiveness to residents and businesses.

Younger residents and renters awarded higher marks to the job the City of Boulder does at being responsive to residents and businesses. Those with children gave better ratings for responding to emergencies. See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.

Residents in East Boulder & Gunbarrel and North Boulder & Palo Park did not feel the city does as good a job of being responsive to residents and businesses as did those in Central Boulder and Crossroads & CU (see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity for additional comparisons).

In addition to rating the City’s general response to emergencies and natural disasters, 83% of survey respondents indicated that the city government’s response to the September 2013 floods was “very good” or “good.” When asked if they would support increased taxes or fees to fund even more flood mitigation improvements, about half reported “no,” but about 4 in 10 reported that they would support increased taxes of up to “double the current amount” (see Table 59 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

Southeast Boulder residents tended to view the Boulder city government’s response to the September 2013 floods less favorably than the rest of the subcommunities (see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity for additional comparisons).

The average rating of Boulder city governments’ efforts to inform the public about how their tax dollars are used was 52 points on the 100-point scale, representing an improvement from 2011. Ratings were more positive for the city’s provision of access to information about issues, events and meetings and for gathering feedback from residents and conducting public processes (66 and 61 points, respectively, on the 100-point scale). These ratings remained stable compared to 2011. The rating for gathering feedback from residents and conducting public processes was higher than the benchmark comparison (see Table 15 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

Younger residents and renters awarded higher marks to the job the City of Boulder does at gathering resident feedback than their counterparts. Respondents with children gave better ratings for informing the public than did those without children. See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.

Residents in East Boulder & Gunbarrel and North Boulder & Palo Park did not feel the city does as good a job of gathering feedback from residents on new policies or projects than did those in Central Boulder and Crossroads & CU. Those in East Boulder & Gunbarrel also felt the City does not do as good of informing the public of how tax dollars are used than did residents in other subcommunities. See Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity for additional comparisons.

When asked whether they informed themselves about the major issues in the City of Boulder, about 66% of those completing the survey agreed that they did so (see Table 11 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). This aspect of good governance received an average rating of 68 points on a 100-point scale, or “agree,” was higher when compared to 2011 and showed significant improvement since the question was first asked in 2001.

Only about 2 in 10 respondents thought they took initiative to let elected officials or city staff know what they think (see Table 11 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). This rating was similar to the 2011 rating, when this question was first asked.

Survey respondents were asked to assess whether they felt included in the Boulder community or not. This received a rating of 60 points on a 100-point scale, lower than the 2011 rating but similar to 2007.

Comparisons by respondent characteristics revealed that older residents, those living in Boulder 6-20 years, homeowners, those with teens, higher-income residents and non-students were more likely to stay informed about major issues in their community; older residents, homeowners and non-students also were more likely to communicate their opinions to elected officials or city staff. Non-white respondents (particularly Hispanic respondents) were less likely to feel included in the Boulder community than their counterparts. See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.

About 3 in 10 survey respondents had attended a public meeting or event about city matters in the past year, had watched a news program on cable TV Channel 8 and had watched a City Council meeting on cable TV Channel 8. About 1 in 10 had attended a City Council meeting. Most ratings were similar to 2011; however, more reported they had attended a public meeting about city matters compared to when this question was first asked in 1987, and fewer had watched a news program on Channel 8 compared to when it was first asked in 2001 (see Table 10 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

These civic engagement activities saw higher rates of participation among older residents and homeowners (for additional comparisons, see Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups).

When asked how likely they would be to use various media to obtain information from the city, the Boulder Daily Camera newspaper (63% “very likely” or “likely”), the City of Boulder Web site (63%) and mailings to their home address (58%) were the most commonly reported sources. The likelihood of using the website has increased significantly over time, from only 3% reporting this as a format to obtain City information in 2001 to 63% in 2014. Fewer survey respondents in 2014 reported being likely to obtain information from the city through mailings to their home address, the Colorado Daily and the Boulder Daily Camera compared to 2011. (Please see Figure 24 on the following page.)

Residents over 55 and those earning less than $25,000 were more likely to obtain information about the city from cable TV Channel 8 than their counterparts. Women, residents under 55 and those earning $25,000-$49,999 were more likely to get information from the City of Boulder Web site than were men, younger residents, and those earning higher incomes. City social media was more likely to be used among younger residents, renters, students and those earning less than $50,000 a year. Women, those living in Boulder over 20 years, homeowners, higher income respondents and non-students were more likely to receive information from the Boulder Daily Camera. Younger residents, white respondents and those earning less than $25,000 were less likely to receive information via mailings to their home address. See Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.

Residents in East Boulder & Gunbarrel were more likely to obtain information about the city from cable TV Channel 8 and least likely to receive information from social media outlets. Respondents in the Crossroads & CU subcommunity were least likely to obtain information about the city from inserts in the water utility bill or mailings to their home address, but most likely from social media. See Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity for additional comparisons.

How likely, if at all, would you be to obtain information from the city about things like City Council meetings, community meetings, upcoming programs and events from the following formats?

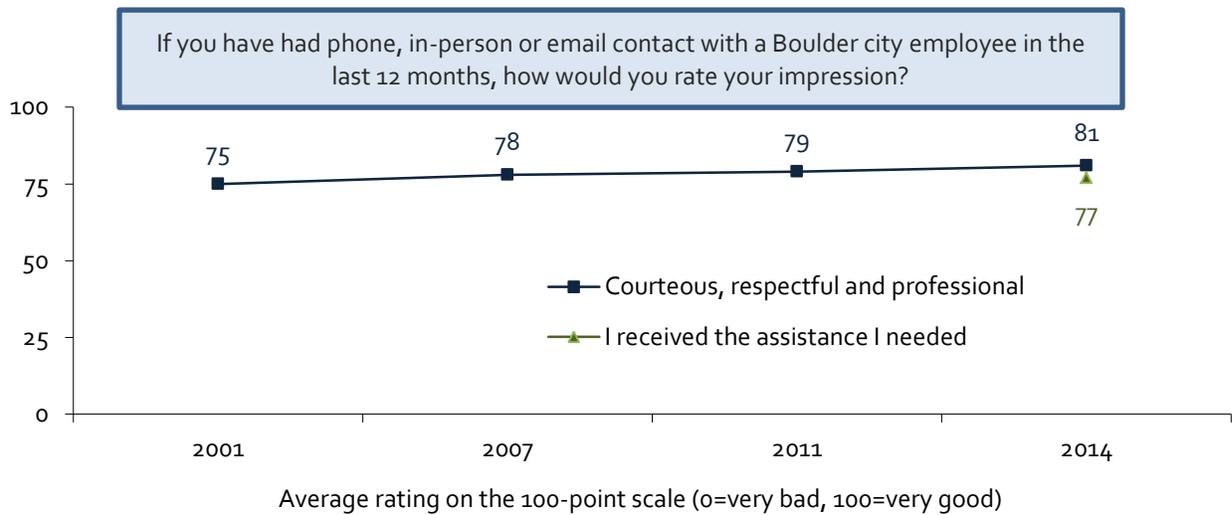

City Employees

City employees received fairly high ratings from those who had interacted with them in the 12 month period prior to the survey. In 2014, the average rating for city employees being courteous, respectful and professional was 81 points on a 100-point scale, an above “good” rating, and similar to the benchmark comparison (see Table 55 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey). This rating has remained stable since 2011 but increased compared to 2001 when this question was first asked.

For the first time on the 2014 survey, respondents who had phone, in-person or email contact with an employee in the last 12 months were asked to indicate the quality of the assistance they received. This aspect of good governance received a rating of 77 points on a 100-point scale, a “good” rating.

For those who had phone, in-person or email contact with a City employee in the last 12 months, residents in the Crossroads & CU area gave the highest ratings to having an experience that was courteous, respectful and professional and receiving the assistance they needed, while those in East Boulder and Gunbarrel tended to view those experiences less favorably. See Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity for additional comparisons.

Priorities for City Services

Since 1989, those completing Boulder’s resident survey have been asked to rate how well or poorly the Boulder city government operates. In 2007, 2011 and 2014, residents were asked to rate overall city government operations. The average rating increased significantly in 2007 compared to previous years (possibly due to the wording and scale change); the rating remained stable from 2007 to 2011 but decreased from 2011 to 2014. However, this rating was higher than the national benchmark (Table 2 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey).

In 2001 and prior this question was asked on a scale of very well, well, neither well nor poorly, poorly, very poorly and was worded “In general, how well or poorly does the Boulder City government operate.”

Balancing Quality and Importance

For the first time on the 2014 survey, ratings of importance were compared to ratings of quality to help guide City staff and officials with decisions on future resource allocation. Most government services are considered to be important, but when competition for limited resources demands that efficiencies or cutbacks be instituted, it is wise not only to know what services are deemed most important to residents' quality of life, but which services among the most important are perceived to be delivered with the lowest quality. It is these services – more important services delivered with lower quality – to which attention may need to be paid first.

To identify the services perceived by residents to have relatively lower quality at the same time as relatively higher importance, all services were ranked from highest perceived quality to lowest perceived quality and from highest perceived importance to lowest perceived importance. Some services were in the top half of both lists (higher quality and higher importance); some were in the top half of one list but the bottom half of the other (higher quality and lower importance or lower quality and higher importance) and some services were in the bottom half of both lists.

Ratings of importance were compared to ratings of quality (see the chart on the next page). Services were classified as “more important” if they were rated as “essential” or “very important” by 75% or more respondents. Services were rated as “less important” if they received ratings of essential or very important by less than 75% of respondents. Services receiving a quality evaluation of 56% “very good” or “good” or higher were considered of “higher quality” and those with a rating lower than 56% as “lower quality.” This classification divided the services in half.

Services which were categorized as higher in importance and higher in quality were: EMS; fire response; crime prevention; drinking water services; police response; open space management; recycling services; high frequency transit routes; water conservation programs; libraries; bike lanes; emergency preparation; energy efficiency programs; neighborhood parks; renewable energy programs; services for seniors; services for youth; services for children; and Courts.

Higher in importance, lower in quality: expand/retain jobs; snow removal on major streets; managing traffic; programs for the homeless; services for low-income; flood/natural hazard education; fire safety education; and affordable housing for low-income. Snow removal on major streets received a quality rating that was lower than the 2011 rating and lower than the benchmark. Flood/natural hazard education received a lower quality rating in 2014 compared to 2011. Therefore, these two service areas, in particular, may benefit from additional attention and resources from the City.

Lower in importance, higher in quality: police presence in business/shopping districts; parks and Recreation fields/courts; sidewalk maintenance; cultural activity opportunities; parks and recreation single-use facilities; recreation center programs/classes; historic preservation; and art in public places.

Lower in importance, lower in quality: business assistance/retention; weed/trash control; street repair; street lighting; City Web site; mosquito control programs; affordable housing for middle-income; police presence in neighborhood; police traffic enforcement; building/housing code enforcement; noise control; discount shopping retention; residential over-occupancy enforcement; street sweeping; median maintenance; City social media; home business enforcement; and Cable TV Channel 8.

Digging Deeper

Trends emerged when the quality and importance ratings of these services were reviewed by the subcommunity of the respondents' household and demographic characteristics of the respondent. Please see Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity and Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups for additional comparisons.

Quality of Services

Women gave higher ratings than men for a number of services, including environmental services, the City Website and services for children. Younger residents gave higher quality marks for services to improve local jobs, open space, energy conservation and streets but lower marks for recreation center programs, managing traffic and programs to reduce homelessness. Renters and lower-income residents gave less favorable marks for services for low-income families. Younger residents, Hispanic residents, students, renters and lower-income respondents gave lower quality ratings of affordable housing programs for low- and middle-income people compared to their counterparts. Older residents had more favorable views of natural hazard education and emergency preparation but less favorable views of median maintenance and police presence in business/shopping districts. Those living in Boulder 6-20 years tended to award higher marks for services like noise control enforcement and emergency preparation than those living in Boulder for 5 years or less or more than 20 years.

Residents in East Boulder and Gunbarrel rated the quality of managing congestion and traffic flow and high frequency transit routes lower than residents in other subcommunities, while residents in Central Boulder, Crossroads and CU and South Boulder had the highest ratings for those government services. Residents in North Boulder & Palo Park awarded higher marks to the quality of affordable housing for low and middle income people than did residents in other areas, while those in the Crossroads & CU subcommunity rated those services the lowest.

Importance of Services

Women and respondents with children in their household rated most City services as more important than their counterparts. Respondents over 55 years of age placed greater importance on street repair and lighting and discount shopping opportunities, but less importance on bike and pedestrian facilities, acquiring and managing open space, environmental services such as renewable energy programs, the City Website and programs to reduce homelessness than did younger respondents. In general, higher income residents gave lower ratings of importance to City services, including renewable energy programs, water conservation programs and services for seniors and low-income families. Not surprisingly, renters and those with lower household incomes were more likely to feel it was important to provide affordable housing programs for low- and middle-income people. Those living in Boulder more than 20 years rated ice and snow removal, trash and weed control enforcement as more important and emergency preparation as less important than did those who had lived in Boulder for a shorter period.

North Boulder & Palo Park rated the importance of street repair and street sweeping as well as Parks and Recreation fields and courts higher than other subcommunities. The importance of services for children, youth, seniors and low-income families generally were rated higher in Central Boulder and South Boulder than other areas within the City. In general, residents in East Boulder & Gunbarrel viewed City services as less important than their counterparts, rating the importance of affordable quality housing for low- and middle-income people, noise control, crime prevention, police response to community problems or needs and emergency preparation, among others, lower than other subcommunities.

Additional Comments

Survey respondents were given the opportunity to write-in their own comments, first about their quality ratings for the list of programs and services and then about their importance ratings of these programs and services. These responses were reviewed and categorized into groups.

Out of the 785 residents who completed the questionnaire, 224 elected to write-in a response about their service and program quality ratings. About one-quarter of survey respondents who gave a response made comments about housing issues in the community and the lack of affordable housing for the low- and middle-class. Slightly fewer mentioned increasing police presence and commented on the quality of police and safety in Boulder. About 1 in 10 wrote in comments about their concerns with congestion, traffic and roads and another 1 in 10 mentioned improving the quality of snow and ice control. The other categories received less than 10% of respondents making a related comment. A quarter of responses were categorized into “other” comments due to the variation and infrequency among responses. (Please see Table 52 Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey for the number of responses categorized to each response and Appendix B: Verbatim Responses to Open-Ended Questions for the written responses.)

Out of the 785 residents who completed the questionnaire, 141 elected to write in a response about their importance ratings. About 2 in 10 survey respondents making a comment noted the importance of decreasing the cost of living, including housing costs. Slightly fewer commented about the importance of safety and effective police efforts, the need to improve housing and building code enforcement and the importance of focusing on the essentials (infrastructure, safety, health, etc.). The other categories received less than 10% of respondents making a related comment. About 15% of responses were categorized into “other” comments due to the variation and infrequency among responses. Please see Table 53 Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey for the number of responses categorized to each response and Appendix B: Verbatim Responses to Open-Ended Questions for the written responses.

At the close of the survey, respondents were given a final opportunity to write in any other comments they might like to make. Out of the 785 residents who completed the questionnaire, 229 elected to write in additional comments. There was some overlap and similarities from other written comments to the two questions above, as well as to Question 7 where respondents were asked to comment specifically about the job the city government is doing (see Good Governance). About 2 in 10 survey respondents, who elected to comment, referenced the Eco-Pass and public transportation; this could be due, in large part, to the structure of the survey where four questions about the Eco-Pass immediately preceded this open-ended question. About 1 in 10 wrote-in comments about the cost of living and issues related to the homeless population of Boulder. The other categories received less than 10% of respondents making a related comment. A quarter of responses were categorized into “other” comments due to the variation and infrequency among responses. Please see Table 68 in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey for the number of responses categorized to each response and Appendix B: Verbatim Responses to Open-Ended Questions for the written responses.

APPENDIX A: ALL RESULTS FROM COMMUNITY SURVEY

Responses to survey questions excluding “don’t know” responses, with comparisons to previous years’ survey results and other communities

The following tables present the frequencies of responses to each question on the questionnaire. “Don’t know” responses have been removed from these results, so that the information displayed represents those who had an opinion about each item. In addition to tables of frequencies, this appendix also contains tables showing comparisons of the 2014 survey results to those obtained on previous surveys, where these comparisons are available. Finally, tables showing Boulder’s ratings compared to benchmark ratings also are included.

Following these tables are a set of tables for the 2014 data showing the percent and number of respondents giving each answer, including “don’t know” responses.

APPENDIX B: VERBATIM RESPONSES TO OPEN-ENDED QUESTIONS

Following are verbatim responses to open-ended questions on the survey. Because these responses were written by survey participants, they are presented here in verbatim form, including any typographical, grammar or other mistakes. Within each question the responses are in alphabetical order.

Question 7. Do you have any other comments about the job that the City of Boulder is doing?

Improve communication efforts and make efforts to listen to all residents

- A bit too heavy handed for me.
- Do you offer a newsletter via email?
- Don't just listen or respond to the usual crowd try to bring in more diverse opinions. Have city council members more responsive to everyone
- Elitist takes advantage of inside info. Macon cowles and selling his home. 10 cents per plastic bag, new roofs.
- I cannot believe the planning board is so shallow, and special interest oriented
- I feel that boulder city council is run by an elitist group that doesn't reflect the values of the majority of the residents. I believe term limits would be a good idea, to eliminate the "lifera" on council.
- I sometimes feel that although the city and parks/rec do gather feedback it is often irrelevant as decisions have already been made.
- I think the city makes up its mind proceeds in that direction. Regardless
- I think the council's actions reflect the values and opinions of only the liberal green, wealthy segment of a varied (in every way) city of 100,000 honest!
- It is not clear to us who makes policy decisions for the city government, the staff or council? Staff appears to be in a strong policy role for which they have very little business - economic experience.
- Lid was poorly presented at election time; issues were hidden and not openly discussed. How could boulder tax $ for lid be spent on other projects and no accountability.
- need to be more transparent and update its operations
- New to neighborhood, pamphlet on civic opportunities would be helpful
- Poor communication re:reentry of ses offenders (several) from prison. Note- assault in holiday neighborhood
- Seems to be run by a clique of people pushing their own agendas and not open to differing views.
- Since i discontinued the paper (daily camera) I am winging my answers strictly on my own experience plus some news heard on kgnu radio so I am not really that aware of city of boulder government news.
- The city council appears to listen only to those pushing a liberal agenda. How about some balance?
- The city council does not pay attention to res. Needs and concerns
- The city does a very good job getting input and feedback from residents but then ignores it. Example: columbine park, where are the promised swings, slide and turtle?
- The city of boulder is good at sending out questionnaires whether by phone or mail. I never see any results.
- They city can be heavy handed with residents.
- Too responsive, reactive to citizen complaints, enable whiners. Tries too hard to solve peoples problems

- Would be nice if city council didn't read pre-prepared statements after listen to public comment

Concerns with municipalization of utility

- Against municipalization! Strongly!
- Can't run a utility company.
- Council spends too much time on forcing their will on municipal energy on the citizens of boulder. I believe most prefer excel.
- Do not agree with taking over excel
- Doing a good job overall, but forget forcing excel out of power business.
- Don't get into the electricity business!!
- From info. I have, I feel electric municipalization is a poor direction for us to go in.
- Gambling on the cost to consumers taking over excel's customers with the city
- I am terrified by the city's intention to assume management of electric power service.
- I don't live in the city of boulder so I don't get to vote in city council elections. Or the electrical municipality but I'm impacted by the decision making this is a sore issue.
- I do not live in the city although we are on city water and subject to utility situation and the lid.
- I find it laughable when the city says it already runs a utility, when it speaks about municipalization, I wasn't aware that the electrical and was a gravity fed system like the city's water and waste water, storm water utilities.
- I think it doesn't understand the complexity of running a municipal utility and will make a mess of it.
- I think that taking over the electric utility is a huge mistake and not the best way to achieve the stated objective.
- I think the city taking over excel is a huge mistake.
- I voted against municipalization as did almost 1/2 of boulder i resented the city's giving only lip service to no. Boulder homeowners very comprehensive objections to adding homeless housing to problems in their neighborhood.
- I'm still not convinced that a municipal electric utility is a good idea, but I trust the city government to make the right decisions for the city.
- Leave my electricity alone, I like excel
- Really feel municipilization is not the way to go. The city is facing it down our throats.
- Stop wasting public money on the electrical muni boondoggle.
- The city has lost focus of basic needs because of its emphasis on municpilization. It is wasting money that could improve needed sem.
- The city has no business trying to become a utility and spending millions in litigation in the process
- The City of Boulder has no business taking the electric utility. We are being well served by XCEL. The city has not enough resources to cope with storm-caused repairs and the city council won't leave rates alone because they will use rates to force environmental agendas on the citizenry. Even though the citizenry forced this through it was the electors at the University who don't have a stake in the day-to-day operation of the electric utility that forced the program on property owning citizens.
- The mun. Is a big mistake. Access to a variety of housing is an issue.
- The muni is a disaster in the works.
- Too much emphasis on municipalization and environment, not enough on human services and quality of life.
- Trying to develop and run energy delivery for the city is unrealistic and idealistic, it could be financially disastrous.
- Trying to start a municipal utility is crazy

- Waste of time and money. Spending $1,000 to save a prairie dog. Thinking you can do better than xcel
- Wasting $ trying to be own utility. Need $ for sidewalks and streets
- Wasting money on municipalization. Invest in energy conservation not old poles!
- Wasting money on trying to take over energy production
- Wasting too much time and money trying to form municipal utility does not seem to be working with neighboring towns or county areas.
- When I disagree with city policy it is because I want to continue using xcel and gunbarrel is forced to accept city policy without a note. Also 30th and pearl is very over developed now.

Pleased with city government and city government actions

- Boulder has done a great job of maintaining and purchasing new open space since the 1970's I moved here in 1979 and the open space, parks and bike paths make it a great place to live.
- Boulder is very nice due to its local gov't and quality people and high education.
- Everything is well
- Go municipalization!
- High 5 for the flood response
- I feel good about boulder views and man. It offers
- I have lived in boulder for 5 1/2 years and still love my experience.
- I love Boulder
- I love living in Boulder. Property Laws are a little bit ridiculous. Great active community.
- I think boulder does a good job in fostering a healthy community.
- I'm really glad I live here. I was quite impressed with how the city handled the flood.
- It's very good
- Overall I am very pleased. Need to do more to stratify incomes in the future
- Overall pretty good. More focus on youth activities and more focus on developing a more active night life.
- Really great except the decision to not allow nablus to become a sister city, also teacher salaries should be higher.
- Thank you firefighters!
- The city does a great job in communicating with and engaging with the community
- The city really tries to communicate and inform and educate residents using various media and forms. Kudos!
- There are a lot of things I am unaware of because i don't have time, but it seems boulder is doing really well! Nature, is important tone, thank you
- We have been very satisfied with the city fares and public works in addressing issues that we have/had
- Would prefer not to have any issues with them.

Concerns about traffic, transportation planning and street maintenance

- Constant frivolous road construction, notoriously inept fire dept, ridiculous additions of traffic lights! Pedestrian lights, were getting patronized and $ wasted
- Coordinating road work often blocking multiple avenues into boulder at once instead of spacing properly.
- Excellent information and management of roadwork projects (Arapahoe, Pearl, Broadway)
- I really like the median plantings. Table mesa and Broadway needs work, but other roads good.
- I think the pedestrian crossing without a traffic light, where you push the buttons are very unsafe. Often times pedestrians path the button and immediately cross, and i have to slam on my brakes. I also feel unsafe using them as a pedestrian, both lanes of traffic do not stop always

- More needs to be done about traffic congestion, including development that continues to impact traffic.
- Need to manage downtown traffic better. Do we really need 4 new hotels?
- No constant approach to traffic control, left turn arrow in particular, yellow flashing turn arrow, really??
- No onward, which there would be a better way to take care of manage the street people, they seem to be increasing fast in numbers.
- Open space management is fantastic. Transportation management not so much.
- Poor planning of public parkways, beautification of mediums etc.
- Some things needed in the 1950-1980's neighborhoods: cleaning, repair, road repair, sidewalks repairs, the recent big flood showed bad sewer mains in no. Boulder east of Broadway.
- Street maintenance in neighborhoods is poor and the manager of that department is relatively unresponsive.
- The city could use better policing of road rage and aggressive drivers.
- The city is getting too crowded. The roadwork everywhere is not helping
- The disruption and cost of pedestrian enhancements, especially around cu seems to be a poor use of resources , us students continue to ignore traffic signals, cross mid. Block...be 20 somethings
- There needs to be a crosswalk with blinky lights at 30th between iris & Glenwood. The light at Glenwood is poorly timed so people have to cross the street when traffic clears to get to the shopping center on the west side of the 30th as well as all the bus stops.
- They screwed up expansion of Arapahoe Ave. Narrow lanes with bike paths and sidewalk poor use of space.
- Traffic and Parking are a huge issue, I usually shop out of Boulder because of it
- Very tired of seeing photo radar vans in town.
- We intensely dislike the traffic cameras at intersections. The giant road signs indicating travel time to Westminster are unnecessary and obstructive

Concerns about cost of living

- Boulders city taxes are way too high on property, personal and business!!
- Cost of living is ridiculous compared to what employees will pay. Wages for most average folks $10.00
- Espically appreciate the affordable division. More real estate caps will continue to diversify our community
- I am concerned that the City Council reflects the wealthy residents and their own pet projects. This community is not nearly as diverse as it should/could be, and although they pretend to be concerned/aware of this, policies continue to reflect their ignorance of a significant, voiceless part of the community. Why is this town so white?
- I feel the city is best suited for wealthy individuals . The average person can't even shop in town most shopping is specialty stores
- I think that their doing a very poor job every year my rent goes up and now I have to leave the city of boulder, cause I'm paying more than i should.
- Interested in a salt water pool at rec centers. Cost of living and buying a home is high. Whit low income services comes a gap where it is more difficult for a middle income family to buy a home.
- My fear is that the city is becoming too elite and expensive facing a crisis similar to San Francisco. Not my little home town anymore.
- Parking needs greatly improved. Newer homes need built. Costs need decreased. All crosswalks need lights signals etc!!
- Problem with increasing apartment rent.
- The disparity between wealth and the other 99% is extremely distressing to me in boulder. Lots of rich people, crumbs shared by everybody else.

- The only goals of city .gov and council seems to be increasing the property values of a handful of elite whites. The occasionally meaningless symbolic gesture that doesn't change anything is the only variance I see from these goals.

Concerns with too much development/growth

- Building guidelines for homes seem unfair. Restrictions placed on some while others build whatever they want, don't understand.
- Constantly expanding building and generally taking up land with commerce is not a good thing.
- Difficult challenges with diverse desires of community, generally i wish they would restrict growth development
- I disagree with the amount that the city council ignores the height ordinance and exempts future building from it.
- I feel you are letting buildings get too tall.
- I'd like less growth. The economy is not why i'm here. Lifestyle has considerably degraded over last 3 decades.
- Please- less density. This town in which I have lived for 35 years is becoming much too dense!! / Please stop the construction/destruction of this town...Though I fear it is too late.
- Promote too much development
- The city is too focused on business to the exclusion of people who live here. Many neighborhoods are declining due to increased traffic and subsequent loss of existing treasures like 4th street.
- There is too much emphasis on development and not enough consideration put towards preservation, what it is that makes boulder special
- Too many high rise buidings blocking out scenic vistas that made boulder unique.
- Too much urban development, bigger isn't always better. Its either high rise or large yard, more inbetween, would be good!
- Would it be possible to slow the growth of commercial building? Would that be feasible? Would it be possible to discourage the extended use of the municipal campus/ library area by homeless and transients?

More attention to helping the homeless

- Close libraries a few days or provide social services for the primary user at bpl, homeless, transient
- Do something constructive for the homeless the shelter concept is invalid.
- Do something to discourage the begging/loitering/camping going on at boulder creek and downtown boulder
- Getting too restrictive on people and development. Nanny state mentality. Get the homeless off the downtown areas, stop making boulder so nice for them.
- Homeless: I do not fear these people nor find there unsightly. I do object to how we are considering this issue. Need more creative ideas.
- I am a mother of a 3 year old. My biggest concerns are the homeless population in parks, on trails, and at the library, making us feel unsafe. Also passing progressive ordinances regarding the safety of bears and humans in interactions, as well as healthy environments like the no smoking bans... good! I'm also very pro-bicycling and hope for continued efforts to improve safety and involvement
- I don't go to the main library anymore, I don't feel safe in there. I think this is a real problem
- I see homeless as the #1 thing boulder needs to address. The number of homeless people in our community is heartbreaking.
- -I think the city should put a high priority into addressing the transient/homeless population issues. It seems to be on the rise. / -I think housing type selection could be improved. It seems most new development is either dense apartment or condos with n
- I would like to see a community kitchen that helps feed hungry people and that also provides take home groceries. Also another program that helps people find jobs and offers education to those in need.

- I'm highly concerned with homelessness in central park and library area. This is a beautiful, central part of community, ruined by their drug abuse and disruption
- Lack of enforcement with people sleeping and camping along boulder creek. Heavy disregard by transients on a daily basis of rules and regulations. Few city patrols
- More attention /govern. Needs to be paid to homeless/vagrants loitering/ asking for money/smoking pot in public areas and streets.
- More needs to be done about helping the homeless off the street and into jobs.
- More social programs to aid the homeless , please!
- Our city is attracting transients to our downtown, we provide too many feel good services and need to refer them to mental health and substance abuse program.
- Our transient population occupies many downtown city areas and prevent the law abiding tax payers from enjoying our city. It is out of control! I hate having to walk downtown with my family when I know I will be approached many times by beggars! Can we please take back our city parks?
- Pan handlers, solicitors need to be banned.
- Please do what you can to make the park outside your offices safe and respectable again. Way too many homeless people there.
- Something needs to be done about how many homeless people are all over boulder begging.
- Sometimes, particularly with respect to the homeless population, I do not think Boulder lives up to its liberal, kindly image. I would be very likely to attend meetings, write letters to the editor, etc. if proposals to cleanse certain areas of the homeless were to come before the city council.
- Terrible job at monitoring homeless in boulder. Police rarely respond to sleeping homeless or groups of homeless begging for money near Dakota Ridge. Too many homeless on corners and throughout all of boulder.
- The city needs to address transients. I don't feel safe walking to work in the early morning. Transient yelling at the top of his lungs at Broadway and canyon. Another transient yelling on the corner of 9th and pearl everyday at lunch. I won't walk over there anymore. Transients congregating at the bus terminal. It has gotten worse over the years.
- The city needs to take some action on dealing with the transient population. All of the city parks are overrun with impaired, obnoxious transients.
- The panhandlers all over the municipal campus and about every adjacent corner leave a poor impression of the city. Don't facilitate bad behaviors.
- The two things that come up for me: / 1. The elk shooting happened right around the corner from my a apartment. Made me feel unsafe that our law enforcement had the audacity to do this and that the initial response from the city was poor. / 2. Due to the very high number of homeless I feel unsafe in many areas around the creek path around and after dark. It is also upsetting that there isn't anything done to try to discourage them from panhandling and/or loitering on the pearl street mall and around the creek path.
- Would like to see a decrease in groups of transient people taking over public-family spaces.

Improvements for snow and ice removal

- Could use more help / follow through with hoa's and snow removal/ building code laws
- Enforcing sidewalk snow removal
- I feel the snow and ice on the roads should be cleared more often. For safety reasons
- I love living in boulder. Please do a better job of plowing side streets. Please fix roundabouts on pine st. They are somewhat unsafe, people don't drive them carefully
- Lack of enforcement for the law for people to shovel sidewalks in front of their houses, its not safe after snow/ice to walk
- Plow the roads when it snows!
- Response to snow removal is terrible.
- Snow management is terrible

- Snow plowing among the worst cities in usa. Don't keep the roads clear. Go to the ne and learn how its done.
- Snow removal could be enforced.
- Snow removal is inadequate at best. Worst city streets.
- Snow removal is terrible! All other front range municipal. Remove and plow snow. Boulder is dangerous after snow, even a week after.
- Snow removal needs improvement.
- Snow removal terrible, wasting water and $ on mediuns and other areas, watering weeds!
- The only thing that could be improved is snow clearance. Roads in our neighborhood are frequently dangerously slippery
- When the snow plows plow the city streets, they need to also plow on street bike lanes instead of piling all the sow there forcing bikes to deal with extended ice or merge with traffic.

Housing concerns

- Affordable housing should be #1 priority, followed closely by social services.
- build more single-family homes that professors could buy on their salary in nice neighborhoods -- many creative professionals are forced to live outside of the city or in rentals/condos
- Community does not offer affordable (small) housing opt. For seniors and minorities. Both rental and purchase.
- Do not approve of high density housing that continues to be developed. Specifically in north boulder.
- Housing density seems like the only value. Parks is not keeping up and what will traffic on 28th and 30th street be like when the transit village is done?
- Housing options for middle class is poor. More lenient adu in homes would facilitate middle class housing options.
- I feel that city should do more about slum lords
- I support the continued expansion of low income housing options in boulder
- I think boulder has allowed way too much residential development before planning for it. Traffic is egregious, i regret moving downtown, now.
- Many of us are concerned about the number of new apartments going up for traffic reasons. Many residents will have 2 cars per apartment, what does that do for Broadway, foothills, downtown parking? Etc. Please watch what happened in Washington dc. Fairfax!
- Move mixed use housing-low income opps. The trailer parks could be eliminated.
- Need more mid-low income housing. This town is like NY city!! More bike lanes on streets. Multifamily compost!
- Need to plan for higher occupancy in housing as currently requested in the future needed housing.
- Way too many low income affordable residences, city cheapened by the large, national business: Yankee candle, Walmart, etc.
- We need affordable housing like the ones offered by the boulder housing coalition and we must do away w/occupancy limits and parking reg. And housing developments.
- We need more affordable housing

Increase economic development/local economy

- Boulder does a great job of getting business in, poor job of keeping it as businesses grow.
- I'd love to see more development (retail, restaurants) in north boulder and less affordable housing. More shopping areas like Pearl Street.
- Improve opportunities for business growth, expand opportunities for mountain biking on city open space, reduce traffic congestion.
- Keep companies in boulder

- Making job accessibility easy for everyone transparent, based on merits and experience not who you know.
- Over regulating businesses and constantly raising taxes that are too high then spending them on pipedream projects with no input from the people.
- Small business development could be strengthened
- There wasn't a space to include it online, unlike the paper survey. However, there needs to be more composting around the neighborhood of Eisenhower and Arapahoe. Also, we might as well mention it now. Between Arapahoe and Boulder, there's a few farm stands. It would be great to give support to The Second Kitchen Co-op, though they aren't soliciting this comment. They should be supported in expanding to East Boulder around Arapahoe and 55th to help people get organic goods in one place and to support the local economy. The Safeway in Boulder is a big chain. Supporting small groceries is essential and between 48th and 63rd on Arapahoe, there's nothing there.
- They city should do more to support local small businesses outside of downtown, eg. 28th st.
- You have cut out the middle class in this community and you show growth policy has been no growth.

Concerns about government spending, focus and regulation

- "If in doubt, pass a tax". Boulder considers itself progressive, but is very old-school: it just throws money at every issue. This lurches along because we have a piles of money, but is very unsustainable and unreplicable in any other city. // NIMBY's run the town. They say "No" to outdoor recreation, "No" to contemporary development, "No" to essentially anything that will move the town into the 21st century - "Just Say No" didn't work for Nancy Reagan and won't work for us. // Boulder became great because of bold and creative ideas - freeze-drying the past will not take us into the future.
- City is way too intrusive in citizens rights! City is very poor at efficient us of taxes!!
- City spends too much time/effort/resources on social engineering and not enough on providing services for the entire community. Way too much emphasis on affordable housing, homeless bums, control of energy sources, garbage cans, mega-housing projects, bike/ped transportation, etc. and way too little effort on cheap, reliable energy, free-flowing auto transportation, market control of housing prices, supporting business success, encouraging major retail shopping, etc.
- Core government responsibilities are neglected for global affairs which is ridiculous when you think about it.
- Discussing this topic with a broad spectrum of friends, family and business associates from all walks of life, the common sentiment is "tone deaf" citizens want effective municipal basic services, not all the "feel good" efforts that distract from core responsibilities.
- East boulder rec. Ctr. Renovation. City of boulder habitually wastes taxpayers $ in unneeded projects ie. Electric municipalization, arapahoe rd. Project. Pearl st. Road project and 30th
- For the amount of taxes we pay, i'd like to see the rec centers updated and outside pools. We go to broomfield (paul derda) because their facilities are better
- I agree with funding police, fire but not library investments/renovations. Homeless population out of control-bike paths downtown and west boulder. Rents too high, need more housing and office space or will keep getting worse.
- I don't think it is ok that we spend money on surveys like this. But fail to improve roads in unincorporated areas
- I feel the City of Boulder does not spend wisely, is not equitable in how its resources are managed and is only interested in keeping the rich people of Boulder happy.
- I'd like to see more education on issues and community pressure to do the right thing rather than more ordinances.
- I'd like to see the city devote less time to ideological matters and more time making improvements for all who live here.
- Poor management and accountability of public funds.

- Priorities skewed toward government control (energy infrastructure, transportation without cars, open space purchases, garbage cans, homeless-enabling, mega-housing projects, etc.) vs providing services (cheap energy, free-flowing traffic, market control of housing and shopping, getting scuzzy bums out of downtown, driving panhandlers away, etc)
- Stop wasting money relocating prairie dogs and on neighborhood traffic mitigation, (ie. Rotaries on small residential streets)
- Taxes should be spent only on city issues, not on problems other cities, states, and countries my have. Let individuals and other organisations do the "good works things"
- Too many laws enacted in boulder, it feels like micromanagement.
- Too many resources devoted to "extras" to little devoted to "basics" like roads, water and sewer
- Too many rules and not enough follow through. Rules that make sense ought to be enforced.
- Too much regulations and ordinances where education would serve better. Its becoming the "nanny" town.
- You spend a lot of time/money on low income. If i made a little less- boulder would be great.

Flood recovery concerns

- City must check conditions of sewer back up due to flooding
- Generally doing good, however, with respect to the recent flooding, it seems Boulder needs to be a little more proactive. There were creek beds that had not been kept clear of debris, that should have been the city's responsibility, and which caused major damage. Now, after the flood, suddenly, it's doubled in size in some area, but not followed through further down the stream, which would cause just as much damage in the next flood.
- Great job during the flood but what is the current status of improvements?
- Great on fires and flood and redoing the damaged landscape. Be more aggressive on removing prairie dogs.
- I felt the city was outstanding in the flood response.
- The city of boulder does many things very well and I love living in the city, two things in the last year have been so bad that it is hard to rate the city well. City council restrictive policies: re open space mtn park use. Handling, of commercial use of OSMP after the flood
- The city response to the September 2013 sewer backups has been ab. Poor.
- The COB government needs a complete overhaul. This city has no clue how to manage flood control. I ride my bike along Boulder Creek every day and up until the flood there was no hazard mitigation conducted along that waterway. As a result debris clogged the waterway and caused the flood waters to seek different paths other than the creek bed. This city thinks it can legislate carbon emission upon the citizenry – a process that I am vehemently against. If they end up managing an electrical utility like they did the natural disaster of the September flood, God have mercy on all our souls. I'm waiting for Barker Dam to bust due to the ineptitude of this city government to plan for and execute a sound, common sense preventive management plan to maintain existing infrastructure rather than spend all its time and tax payer monies saving the planet from nasty carbon footprints and acquiring open-space. I still believe that the Boulder County Comprehensive Plan has artificially inflated the real estate prices here in our area so the average Joe cannot afford to live here. I have a few years left before I join the ranks of the retired. After living here for 56 years I plan on spending that well-earned pension outside of the City of Boulder. I can't wait to vote each and every time an election opportunity presents itself.
- The September flood was somewhat unexpected. Many residents felt helpless while they waited for answers and aid
- They need to pay more attention to multiunit rentals in the post-flood period
- We were flooded by broken sewer pipes during heavy rains, sewer system not updated for all new development, city took no responsibility. Loss to citizens.

- When my neighbor was concerned in 2012 about potential flood water going through my neighborhood he was told "the water has to go somewhere!" so it went through my neighborhood just as the city planned!!

Other

- All my answers are now heavily tainted by the continued smell of pot from facility in gun barrel, it has ruined living here.
- Appreciate call back for weed control in neighborhood and traffic light problems.
- Boulder reservoir is bad. No power boating.
- Bus access to east boulder could be improved boulder res. should have boats in it.
- City is a head of citizens in areas like sustainability.
- City planners for remodels get too involved with design, keep to code issues. I like the uniqueness.
- Composting should be an option for all residents, including at apartment complexes
- Developers seem to be able to avoid zoning restrictions whereas residents have to obey. We support have the rec. Facilities even though we do not currently use them.
- I am treated badly as a senior
- I don't think a question are like this, gets to questions, mere is no possibility to explain why you answer as you do
- I feel like south boulder is treated like a unwanted step child. What about turning shannahan farm into open space?
- I feel more businesses need to be more gay friendly and provide a night life for gay women and men.
- I feel safe here. This is my first experience living in an apartment and i am enjoying living here. I know it is paroled in the evenings.
- I feel that the City of Boulder isn't doing enough to protect Boulder's image of being close to nature. Buildings are receiving variances to the height ordinances which are making the mountains harder to see. It's like there isn't a height restriction at all. Dealing with the fracking issue was a nightmare, had it not been for the citizens, tracking would have commenced on our open space. If you can't drink the water or see the mountains, are we still in Boulder?
- I fully support the city's goal toward zero waste. My household produces little to no waste as we reuse and recycle consequently, we don't purchase westerns trash, curbside option. I would be interested in utilizing/purchase only food waste collection which is not an option at this point. Other options would be helpful.
- I have mostly been involved in plastic/paper bags discussions. Could have been more aggressive. Development along hwy 36 is depressing too many shopping areas. Yuck.
- I support whole heartedly the shift to being our own electric municipality. We need to maintain an anti-fracking stance and spread knowledge of the damage fracking does. We must stand up to and against our gov. On this and consider getting someone else into the office if he insists on being blind to the truth.
- I walk to and from work nearly every day but this was not even considered in this survey. I am surprised that the city does not value walking as an energy efficient mode of transportation.
- I want to be more active in community politics. I should take more initiative to do so.
- I wish it was more racially and economically diverse.
- I would like to mention that you didn't rate safety on the creek path at night. After dark, I won't go anywhere near there.
- I would like to see safe bike paths, not lanes, connecting the neighborhoods around jay road to the city.
- Keep municipalization process going!
- Keep the city medical mm3 use only. Good job with the pot stuff.
- Love the facebook page!

- More bike paths please! Not bike lanes, these are incredibly un-safe, the bike lane on iris? Really
- Not enough attention to problems of cu student behavior,- noise, trash in neighborhoods, too much help for cars, otherwise traffic city government.
- Not enough senior citizens discounts
- Not providing enough security to long term residents of boulder. People who have lived, worked, gone to school in boulder for years, decades.
- Offer more community programs, concert in park. Learn from Longmont.
- Paper/plastic bag fee at supermarkets is a misguided mistake.
- Parks rec centers open space are all very good
- Please do not allow ideal market to have noisy refrigerated trucks in parking lot.
- Please encourage landlords to make their properties energy efficient. Needs more enforcement
- Please incorporate the rest of gun barrel into the city. Our local business (IBM) are providing huge revenue, but we don't see any services to make up for heavy use.2
- Please. No electric bikes on multiuse paths. I am 81 years old and feel very unsafe on paths as they are now.
- Pleased with plan for city electric/utilities
- Promote volunteerism. The west side of morgan dr. Has numerous electrical outages. Can't this be fixed? Bury lines e.g. updating of park east park is very nice.
- Should allow electric bikes on all bike paths. I am over 65 and use my bike to commute and run errands my arthritis prevents me from using a regular bike.
- Somewhat difficult to determine as were in unincorporated boulder county vs. City of boulder
- The bike lanes/paths are wonderful! Keep expanding!
- The city attorney does not prosecute people who sell drugs.
- The city continues to give the impression that it is exceptional when in fact it resembles many places of similar socio economic condition
- The city seems to care more about regulating pot sales than reducing visibility and presence of guns.
- The co b has made itself accessible to college students and wealthy families. Everyone else is left on the wayside particular middle income 25-40 year old.
- The introduction of facilities selling recreational marijuana has been way too slow.
- The mayor and council members should be fired!!
- The police can be a little ridiculous at times.
- These questions need to diff. Between the direction given by city council and the job by city staff.
- Very well overall. It would be nice to have a safer, wider, better maintained bike paths (i.e. boulder to Longmont please!)
- We need more amenities for children baseball field, roller skating, bowling, water park etc. To attract families with children
- We should never kill our bears who are just trying to survive the hell with 2 strikes and their dead. I would pay more in taxes to always save them.
- Whenever contacting police regarding noise complaints the person at the call center and the responding police are polite and responsive to my needs.
- Why are employees union-makes no sense - does not hold them accountable.
- wish there were more opportunities for kids - children's museum or indoor play spaces

Don't know

- I don't live within the city of boulder so don't pay as much attention to specifically city issues.
- I read the daily camera online. That's about all I know.
- I was a nonresident for 30 years.

- no
- None at this time

Question 10. Do you have specific comments about your quality ratings for these programs and services?

Concerns with congestion, traffic and roads

- 19th st between bluff and alpine is in need of repair
- Affordable housing is a waste of time and money. Enough open space, already. Fix the roads.
- Awareness for bikers and cross walk safety are major issues for me as a pedestrian
- Congested areas are not safe. 30th and pearl 28th and walnut. Canyon and 28th are all areas to avoid. Safer in Lafayette or Longmont. The ideas of old boulder are gone. It has become more pleasant to spend time and money out of boulder
- Far too much traffic in boulder.
- I do not think the city should worry of focus on pres. The "historic" character of poorly constructed 60-70 era like martin acres. Would like to see better traffic control on residential streets like lehigh st.
- In reference to police traffic enforcement bpd does not really do traffic enforcement. What they do is "traffic" enforcement which is really just drunk checking. Bpd need to be more honest about this.
- Minus 100 on all the work on our roads at the same time.
- Optimize lights to keep traffic moving. Bicycles should yield to peds on paths, no enforcement. Bicycles use both paths and sidewalks, dangerous and confusing.
- Roads and sidewalks are awfully in need of repairs.
- Roads are terrible. Neglect due to poor attitude toward basic government responsibilities.
- Street sweeping, need to inform neighborhoods so cars can be cleared from street for effective sweeping! Need to improve snow/ice removal on major streets!
- The city seems to believe making driving inconvenient will reduce traffic congestion....ha! Time to stop acquiring open space....ned to manage it! City historic preservation program is not protecting the historic character of our city.
- The corner of Euclid and 30th is very dangerous, it is a high density area. Students and also elderly from golden west. Areas near campus have lights you can press to cross street but city says the corner can't have one.
- Traffic circles are a waste and bad. Why wasn't Arapahoe 4 lanes from 63rd to 75th? Who ever came up with this plan should be deported.
- Traffic enforcement, noticing more cars running red lights. Please enforce posted speed limits! Perhaps a big town wide PR effort through radio, newspaper, etc. For a limited time period.
- Traffic in boulder is getting ridiculous. Expand the bus system, public transportation system.
- Traffic management and prospective road construction projects are a joke: see Arapahoe Ave between 55th and 95th- us 36/failed mass transit via RTD
- We are seniors and walk from our home near cu campus to many activities and that is great! But driving and trying to avoid bikers who use bike lanes, pedestrian's sidewalks and paths seem very dangerous.

Homelessness and lack of programs to solve this issue

- Diversity populous is low in the holiday neighborhood. Sex offenders and criminals being able to stay at the homeless shelter is a serious problem. Transients and criminals hang out in holiday-Dakota neighborhood during day and night.
- Bums, mentally ill and homeless have overrun main library and grounds. This must change. Main library should be safe, welcoming and clean at all hours of operations to families not to focus on disruptive vagrants!
- Do not concentrate homeless facilities in north boulder

- Homelessness seems to be a problem in boulder.
- I have a concern about the vagrants in city parks. I don't feel totally comfortable in some areas with my kids (younger than 12) specifically downtown near library, creek area.
- I think boulder is a beautiful place to live and raise a family. It is unfortunate that the city has allowed the municipal campus and creek path to be overcome by the homeless-transient population. Those areas no longer feel safe nor are they enjoyable as places to spend time.
- Quit ignoring the homeless people. Be more protective with them because if you have nothing, you have nothing to lose, so they can be harmful
- Terrible response to calls on homeless living in Dakota Ridge-homeless wonder through neighborhood to camp in hills in open space and beg for money regularly at Broadway and 28th very dangerous.
- The homelessness problem is out of control. We need a way to determine whether a homeless person is a transient or a Boulder resident. Then we need to provide services to the latter but not the former. The no-camping ordinance is a good one and should be enforced. As it stands now, the homeless are trashing the parks and streams and making them unattractive to everyone else. I assume that Boulder's attractiveness as a tourist destination is important to the community and especially to businesses, and we need to stop being a homeless person magnet to remain a tourist destination. We need to find a way to treat Boulder residents who become homeless in a humane way, but without offering the same to homeless people from other communities.
- There is a need for more policing of homeless/ vagrants loitering/ asking for money/smoking pot in boulder public areas.
- Too much pan handling on Pearl St mall. Library and muni campus over run by transient types.
- Your support for homeless people is too much. The shelter is located in one of the most affluent neighborhoods causing crime to go up there and impacting property values.

Housing issues and lack of affordable housing for low and middle class

- Affordable housing it's too hard to create. Too hard to find affordable housing if you not wealthy. This must change!
- Affordable housing programs for low income do exist but wait list are lengthy. Affordable housing for middle income folks seems to be difficult to find, I know that if we had not purchased our home in the early 90's we would be living in another community. Aging out in our home may not be an option.
- Affordable housing programs keep middle class people the same or worse by not letting them experience $ appreciation when they sell like the rest of us.
- Affordable housing seems to limited to families and people without pets. Single people with pets need affordable housing too.
- Affordable rent for middle income population declining as city becomes more congested it will get worse ie. Higher demand to rent.
- Again high density condos/apts. / houses there are too many. Needs to be more space/land preserved instead of allowing developers to do this for their own benefit.
- Although there is a lot of housing in boulder, there is bad access to it. Primarily through cost (too high) and very low vacancy rates, hard to find a place available.
- Apartment rent is too much.
- Boulder is better than most places. But like everywhere else, the wealthy and there ar a lot of them here. Get better services than the poor.
- Boulder is too expensive for most people who are n. To live in. I've lived in boulder for 10 years and i am leaving because it is too expensive to pay for housing.
- Boulder tries to do too many things, and ends up doing many of them poorly. Boulder is pricey and elite as a result of long-term city policies to reduce housing options and throttle development. Fine, that's the Boulder brand. Don't compound the problem by extorting money out of builders so the City can get into the business of running subsidized housing. just one example

- Do not get or stay in the housing business.
- Even residents with an above average income are strained with high rent
- Excellent services provided by boulder city affordable housing program, particularly allyssa ostrander and bonnie logan
- Housing cost (renting and owning) are way too high for a middle class person working in boulder
- Housing for middle income not a focus. Hard for me to find quality rent at reasonable price. Focus student and low income.
- I know of abuse of the low income housing program by acquaintances. People should not be allowed to rent out permanently affordable housing units while they live elsewhere for extra income. Abuse should be checked.
- I love boulder and all it has to offer, but i rate some questions harshly because it seems inaccessible to live here. I bought my condo almost 5 years ago and my husband and i make a very decent living but do not qualify for any of the housing programs and cannot afford a single family style house. And even when we did have 100k and for a down payment. I'm not sure its right to spend 500k on a home. Seems like a town only for millionaires. For that reason i wouldn't be surprised if we left in 6 mos. To a year.
- I think the city needs to focus more on low income housing and the police need to have a great presence downtown. The main library area doesn't feel safe.
- I wish there were more middle income jobs and housing opportunities get Walmart out!
- I'm on disability and have looked for low income housing for 2 1/2 years. With no success. 3/4 of my income on ss goes strictly for rent. I also care for my grandchildren. And if i don't find help soon I and my family will be homeless.
- It is very difficult for middle income individuals (not families) to find affordable housing within boulder city limits.
- It seems that the City of Boulder is very concerned about low income people, but neglects the middle class.
- Many I have yet to try out due to the fees. I have only lived here 1 1/2 years while working and going to school. Cost of living could be cheaper. Important so that people of my financial status can live here.
- Middle income housing (50k to 80k) nonexistent in boulder, no housing options for 65 moving to area
- More affordable housing instead of constant development of high end homes making it less and impossible to live in boulder without money.
- No middle income housing and a housing monopoly by property management co. Snow plow residential streets!! Please!
- Regarding housing much of the city is centered at CU, and the students pay a lot to attend. We need more affordable student housing within a reasonable distance from campus
- Should be more housing for low and middle income people. / Ice and snow removal on sidewalks not done and not enforced.
- Sometimes i wonder if people in affordable housing need to relocate due to their finances improving. How do you figure that out? Some have nicer vehicles than regular tenants.
- The over occupancy regulations need to change to create more affordable housing for low-mid range incomer.
- There is much I don't have enough information and comments on. I feel the middle class is overlooked in boulder. For instance that kindergarten is not free is a sign that the middle class struggles here.
- There is no affordable middle income housing in boulder. Traffic flow is a mess! Time the lights. The flashing yellow turn arrows are confusing and hazardous!
- There needs to be affordable housing options for families. I am a teacher my husband works at n. And there is no way we can afford to buy a house in boulder. I have significant savings excellent credit yet i am unable to buy property in this town. We are renting a 2 bedroom apartment but will move next year because we have a new baby and it's too expensive.

- There should be more effort put into housing not free but good quality and affordable housing for all.
- This is a very expensive town to live in. And the standard wages at many businesses do not reflect this.
- To explain my quality and importance ratings, with imagination many of boulders public goals can be funded privately to reduce city expenses and taxes. For instance many affordable housing units will be provided if small units more occupants per unit, and more units per. Acre are allowed. The county might also be encouraged to allow these and related uses on less expansive land. If these developments are screened by landscaped parkways, existing open spaces could be used to connect to many more city and county neighborhoods, shopping areas and workplace, with trails and bike paths, and mountain views maximized for all these and neighboring uses. Optimum building safety investments will be fully funded by insurance savings so this information and proof of adequate insurance could improve safety and compliance, while greatly reducing inspection costs. A far more basic suggestion, planning and building procedures allow the rights and the protections of neighbors to remain forever certain. Bitter disputes, potential abuses, favoritism then corruption will continue to increase as the economic stakes increase. By retaining the reasoning of all participants, those that seem fair and pleasing to most participants will emerge. Subject to these reasons, new projects will increase the flexibility to provide attractive buffers, compensation and other imaginative solutions. We will also restore the rule of law and a genuine sense of community.
- We need more affordable housing for the working poor.
- We need to support the middle class more. A lot of programs seem to publically support homelessness and low income.
- What happened to train serv. To Denver and DIA? Seems like there are plenty of low income affordable housing options, not much for middle income.
- Your median income people are starting to fall through the cracks. No one even notices. You have the poor and immigrants and the rich. The median groups are being downsized and groceries have been largely unaffordable.

Increase police presence and quality of police and safety

- As a pedestrian, I am most afraid of bikers and dogs, all running amuck, each doing whatever they wish. No obvious police or law enforcement.
- Bikers need to be ticketed for traffic violations.
- Boulder police and prosecutors are awesome. Fair, professional. If boulder is going to spend millions of dollars on open space that sends housing prices thru the roof it must provide housing opportunities for homeless. Very off balanced priorities.
- Boulder rural fire dept. Is amazing. They are very responsive! Trash removal and sidewalk plowing in Gunbarrel needs to be enforced.
- Fire dept. Is an industry wide joke. Amr is know for its poorly equipped staff. Our police dept. Has got to solve high profile crimes but concentrate their energy on traffic stops. Were an embarrassment.
- For the taxes we pay services are poor, police are bullies, setting speed traps to make $ for city. Too much crime, police should spend time dealing with terrible drug problems here. Lack of support by city for flood victims
- I am curious as to why a fire engine responds to a request for a paramedic. It appears to be a waste of resources. It sure seems to cost a lot to provide potable water (for average quality)
- I believe that police and fire protection is as good as it can get, the city should not spend more on either. Photo radar will still increase revenue without adding more people on city payroll.
- I don't like photo red lights.
- I have enjoyed the increase of police officers on the pearl street mall.

- I have had great interactions with the police and firemen in some very unfortunate experiences, very professional and helpful
- I have never seen a police officer on foot on the Pearl St. Mall or 29th st mall or anywhere else. They are always in cars or on motorcycles.
- I see a lot of reactionary responses to crime, not prevention.
- I think the police need to enforce the laws about drivers parking in fire lanes. There's a big problem in willow springs shopping center between murphys and the gym. Cars (abo's employees) also park on sidewalks with handicapped ramps in the same shopping center.
- I think there should be police on Pearl St. Mall. This area feels somewhat unsafe day or night.
- I would like to see more of a presence in the community between government officials and employees like police and fire to bring community programs and awareness to important issues through programs offered at schools and community centers
- increase police presence at night; relocate all the homeless people/drifters AWAY from the Boulder public library and the Boulder creek path – when we use the path, we meet about 100 homeless/vagrant people/drifters, many of whom are intoxicated, and rugs or have dogs – awful places for children and families! Build more homeless shelters, give them counselling, medical services and other opportunities and move them away from where families recreate, especially BPI-main and the Boulder creek path
- Leaf blowers create noise and air pollution, and dust. Police presence could perhaps be lower key "friendlier" but mor of it? It is sad to see so much litter and trash, particularly along the creek, perhaps more receptacles?
- Living on the hill is like living in a zoo. Fireworks, drunken individuals etc. More police would be great.
- My neighborhood is very nice but at night lots of people often walk up and down the streets screaming, yes, screaming, yelling at all hours, i think they are coming from bars.
- Parking violations over enforced, while kids still get jumped on the hill at night.
- Please put lights along the creek path.
- Police department are often overbearing and act more as a nuisance than community employees.
- Police response has been slow (1/2 hour) on a few incidents I've witnessed or heard about a couple comments on this was "they don't care" "no sense of urgency"
- Police seem to have too many resources, there are too many cop cars sitting idle doing nothing around town.
- Police traffic cameras are terrible and should be abolished.
- Rarely see police very small presence in the community
- Stop arresting all the drunk kids and pay attention to sexual assaults, rapist, robbers.
- The drug trafficking by adults to minors is totally appalled. Openly in parks, mall and city.
- The police have failed to prevent or solve 3 burglaries and a sexual assault in my apartment complex alone and spend all their time writing traffic tickets which is appalling.

Improve snow and ice control on streets and sidewalks

- Besides the transient issues that I have already mentioned. I am appalled at how poorly boulder does with removing snow. It is dangerous to not remove snow and treat roads for ice is totally unacceptable.
- Coordination with ice and snow with trash enforcement.
- Despite numerous people calling code enforcement for ice and snow removal the scofflaws never seem to get ticketed or shovel their sidewalks.
- Enforcement of snow and ice removal, some sidewalks along Lehigh and Juilliard (where I walk often) are not cleared within time limits.
- Has the city stopped giving tickets to businesses and homeowners who don't clear their sidewalks of ice and snow? There are a few places in the block that don't seem to do their part.

- Have lived in nine towns-cities ranging from 5,000 to 1,000,000 boulder has without question, the most pathetic and irresponsible snow policy of any and seems proud of it! And tickets citizens for failing to do what should be a municipal duty.
- I think snow removal in boulder is abysmal and quite frankly dangerous to residents, that we live in the foothills and the streets and sidewalks are so poorly cleared and embarrassing.
- I think this was a very slow response to an overnight storm. Boulder officials first deployed the city's 16-plow fleet at 11 pm. Wednesday, according to public works spokesman mike banuelos and those plows set out on a second 12- hour shift at 11 a.m. Thursday. Why so late?
- I would prefer major/minor (not including neighborhood streets) roads were plowed during and after a snow storm.
- Ice and snow maintenances is horrible. Not plowing side street inexcusable, not sanding icy areas inexcusable, affordable housing for ordinary citizens is totally lacking.
- Ice and snow removal, trash has improved but trash and weed control gone down. A lot of areas along hwy 36, foothills and table mesa drive not taken care of.
- Improve sidewalks clear snow and mud maintain landscape - trees and grass, clear weeds.
- Improve snow removal and street maintenance.
- More enforcement of sidewalk snow removal please. I'm not a big fan of historic districts. New city website less user friendly, then old one. Please open library at 9 am. Could library on Canyon Theater be open Friday and Saturday nights?
- Need better snow removal on large, heavy volume streets.
- Plow/snow removal is terrible for bike commuters.
- Preparation of anticipating snowstorm-lacking. Police are too aggressive on hwy36
- Sidewalk over us 36 between table mesa park and ride and Moorhead is never shoveled. Its too dark on thunderbird drive.
- Sidewalks are not shoveled, weeds and brush block sidewalks, rented houses are often over occupied 6-8 students to a house is common.
- Snow is supposed to be off sidewalks in 24 hrs. I would say about half the city's sidewalks are covered in snow or ice, days after a storm.
- Snow removal here sucks to put it bluntly
- Snow removal, noise control, over occupancy, and basic maintenance are growing concerns and could use closer attention.
- Snow-ice removal has been poor and driving dangerous this winter. When the flood occurred, our neighborhood was not prepared- educated.
- The driver who normally plows on our street goes too fast and throws snow-ice back on cleaned sidewalks.
- They don't seem to be enforcing sidewalk snow removal I believe property owners are supposed to clean them 24 after the last snow has fallen.
- Weed control on city pathways and city peop along roads need addressing, snow removal along entrances to pathways, everyone abides but the city. Ex. 30th at Goose Creek.

In general service quality is well received

- Boulder in generally a high quality community
- Boulder is a wonderful place to live.
- For a super large city bureaucracy, the city still manages pretty well- given especially that so few staffers work on providing /improving basic service. Poor value for tax payers.
- Given the transient nature of Boulderites (scientists, laborers, students, et al.) The city is generally doing a very good job overall.
- I am thankful for the quality of life we have in Boulder.
- Quality of service is good. Proliferation of service and staff is bad. Stick to the basics, safety and mitigation. Avoid micro regulation.

- Thank you for your great work and dedication! These services are very good.

Concerns with building and housing -related code enforcement

- Boulders obsession with "over occupancy" is increasing our carbon footprint, increasing the cost of housing and limiting the arts/ culture community.
- Building and housing code needs to ease up
- Building permits are out of control expensive. Too many big re deals.
- Enforcing home building regulations. I don't want to be experiencing pot smoke in public hallways or residential buildings.
- I think the building codes for residences are far too restrictive and arbitrary. For example, my neighbor could have a certain size house or garage, but mine can't be that big/small/wide, etc., because the laws were changed. it's just too strict.
- In my neighborhood enforcement of laws about storage parking of cars and stuff left in the street only happens if multiple neighbors complain repeatedly, huge cracks in streets (in the city limits) complaining no change.
- It seems imperative boulder thrive to allow more businesses, and new homes in!
- Landlords should be required to provide trash service and yard maintenance including watering mowing and keeping trees cut. Maybe city needs inspection outside as well as inside dwellings. Do not lift occupancy limits!
- Like all or most communities in the us the fees associated with building permits and unassociated community fees tacked on, provide contractors a valid reason to opt out of the process thus leaving the public at risk for poor workmanship and risk of life, in course this is not usual and licensed contractors must comply with city regulations to pull permits(or worse let an uneducated homeowner do this!) But who is watching and assisting homeowners when violations occur? The building dept. Is under staffed to assist in a manner to be of aide to the public.
- My neighborhood is martin arces, over occupancy is simply not regulated. Houses are sold as 5 and 6 bedroom for rental purposes, which means 5 and 6 cars per rental.
- Way too much oversight and regulations related to new construction. The city is making new construction and neighborhood improvements too expensive.
- Went through permitting process for home improvements. I had heard boulder had one of the most restrictive building/housing versions in the country. The process was not positive.

Other

- "Enforcement of residential over-occupancy regulations" - this survey can be very misleading - I think these regulations are very bad and should not be enforced - so how does one answer that question?
- All buses really should have bike racks.
- Bad website! Landmarks preservation is out of control leave martin acres alone! Preserve only most important structures.
- Being in unincorporated Gunbarrel we receive very poor roads, sidewalks (missing in many places) police visibility, and ancient street lights. Please incorporate Gunbarrel to help bring us up to the rest of the city.
- Boulder needs to work more on cleaning up the city and repairing infrastructure. The city needs to focus on this more and less on art classes and buying parks.
- Cannot allow businesses in residential areas create noise pollution. Please ask ideal market to remove refrigerated trucks.
- City staff recommends and make decisions which can in many cases, are not beneficial to boulder. One case and point staff was way off base on their recommendation to allow building on the hogan pan. Site. Due to serious flooding issues and traffic.
- Don't like radar enforced speed limits.
- Emergency medical services is a bad joke. Very bad, recent experience, i had to walk out!

- Environmentally sustainability very important. Water use reduction especially.
- Excel, emergency service, poor noise control enforcement, too much noise from students living in residential neighborhoods.
- For emergency preparation i think boulder responded quickly and effectively to the flood but I was disappointed that flood mitigation projects seemed to have been on the back burner and neighborhoods that thought they were not at risk for flooding due to not being in the flood plain were affected.
- For water conservation, boulder should require sub metering to reduce water use by 20-30% at multifamily properties
- Give more importance to the hill and not always focusing more on downtown area.
- High frequency transit service hop is great!
- How can you even consider allowing variances for the zero baseline project.
- How many buildings that were damaged in 2013 floods were not in compliance with flood plain regulations?
- I am a senior
- I don't answer all questions. On the grounds that is incriminating me.
- I don't think the "neither good nor bad" type category seems very accurate description in almost all cases.
- I hope the city isn't wasting time with home based business! Municipal court administration is a train wreck!
- I think the city did a great job during the recent floods and fires. But where is Jean Bennett Ramsey?
- I think the parks and rec department fails to provide semles to teens. The city should make more efforts to provide positive, healthy affordable activities for this at risk group.
- I work in the emergency department at boulder community hospital and as a forensic nurse. I see both the good and bad of pretty much everything in boulder.
- I worked for A-1 Ambulance back in the day. Pridemark was lame and AMR is not much better. Boulder Community Hospital isn't what it used to be and I'd hate to have to solicit their services if needed. Boulder has priced itself out of the business of creating and maintaining any sense of 'community'.
- Iris between 28th and Broadway has bad weeds at sides of linden between Broadway and Pinebrook-weeds!
- Items I rate 3 or worse, I find city staff to be either incompetent to do an excellent job.
- Keep boulder unique, encourage local businesses not national chains, no Walmart
- Lafayette traffic court is a fraud. So are Lafayette police.
- More water conservation education and programs needed.
- Mosquito control needs attention.
- None, except that it would be nice to see more respect for what was here before the influx of wealth and athletics, as a native of Colorado I feel unwelcome in the town where i spent much of my childhood.
- North boulder rec center services are superb! New bldr. Web site is much improved. Communication by web notifications would help turnout for public meetings and events.
- Not all areas have enough recycling bins or compost bins. There is way too much trash on paths and curbs due to excessive homeless people
- Regarding dog enforcement and non-flood related OSMP trail/improvements: seems like we are spending a lot of time/money fixing problems that are minor. The non-flood related improvements of upper bluestem and skunk canyon trails seemed unnecessary.
- Section 1: the use of the word "bad" in not appropriate for a survey.
- See my comment above

- Thank you for doing so much flood mitigation over the years.
- That's a lot of questions to not include even one concerning access for disabled! There are not nearly enough handicapped parking spaces downtown.
- The city continues to become less diverse economically
- The city does a very poor job of providing quality outdoor sports facilities for youth (see aurora and gold crown-Denver) very poor job of housing for middle income people, very poor enforcement of over occupancy and ice/snow removal.
- There is no balance on needs; the city only recognizes their liberal agenda.
- This survey is too complicated and time consuming, your results will be statistical garbage.
- Too much focus is spent on environmental issues and not enough on the people and growth across the board.
- Truthfully i don't see many kids -youths -seniors out and about in boulder, compared to a city like ft. Collins. The demographics of boulder run 20-50
- Utilize the libraries as day shelters with proper professional trained staff in social services, not clerks
- Virtually every area is over regulated.
- We love the dog parks.
- We should expect to keep the things already in place to be maintained before buying more to add to what has to be maintained.
- We were not aware that we are living in an area prone to flooding until we were flooded.
- Who makes up these things? I did the best I could but please don't ask me again.
- Why did the city spend several $m's to remodel the down town library when north boulder has not received one as promised?

Don't know

- A 3 means either ok or don't know
- Awareness is important, many of my ratings in this are were "don't know" the city may be doing them and doing them well, residents just don't know of the efforts.
- Because I haven't been exposed or had to use these services I don't know about them. Why isn't there year round farmers market?
- For the programs rated g or don't know I haven't any need/use so I don't know about the quality of services.
- Hard to quantify
- Have not experienced majority of services, therefore cannot comment on their quality
- Have not lived here long enough to experience these services.
- Have not spent enough time in the county to evaluate.
- Haven't had too much experience with above services.
- Having only lived in boulder for 6 months I don't feel I can
- I am new here that I am unfamiliar.
- I am not very much aware of the city's programs.
- I do not have complete thorough knowledge of them all so it's hard to say/
- I have no knowledge of it.
- I live in a retirement community. So I have not had personal contacts with many of the programs mentioned above.
- I lived in boulder 37 years, then moved to Gunbarrel one mile outside city limits. For the next 26 years. So actually I'm not a resident!
- I moved here may 2013 unfamiliar with a lot
- I only responded to those programs and services I have experience with or participated in.

- It's hard to answer some because I've not encountered a need for them yet.
- It's hard to rate programs and services I haven't had int. With or heard about.
- n/a
- no
- Not at this time.
- The majority of these services are good and are very important to me as a long time citizen of the city. I do not have firsthand knowledge of all but friends/neighbors have.
- Well, I feel I don't get out much, trying to answer your questions, sorry, communities are too big these days to stay connected.

Question 11. Do you have specific comments about your answers on the importance of these programs and services?

Managing homelessness should be a priority

- Case in point, recent rape attempts in north boulder and sacred heart requiring to install extra security to keep homeless people out of the school
- Homeless services are best served by nonprofit communities. Object to taxes being spent on homeless shelters.
- Homeless should not be allowed to gather and sit in areas all day long and should not be allowed to beg for money anywhere in boulder. It should be outlawed. Sets a very poor image to encourage people to live in boulder.
- Homeless, homeless, homeless, and the mentally ill
- Homelessness is a problem and very visible in the community. I am not sure how the city can best tackle the problem. It is hard for me to know who is actually choosing to be homeless and who has become homeless and has no other choices. I do not like the requests for assistance on the street corners; I never know who truly needs the help. I support the homeless shelter and the new facility next to it. I live north of Wonderland Lake. I support us, as a community, helping people to stabilize their lives if they truly have no other options.
- I personally have been helping the homeless and for the entire programs boulder has they have yet to have a place where they can safely camp. They are always treated as unwelcomed visitors. Some cannot live in enclosed places. Many will not seek out your services. If we provide a safe camping area that would help those that are paranoid of services. And yet be available for those that wish to help. The reasons people become homeless are a varied as society in general.
- I think the largest issue that affects our community safety and quality are over homeless policies. Boulder is overly lenient on their dominance of our public places, trash can policies related to bear prevention also big issue.
- Make civic park and paths safe from transients!
- Panhandling -make illegal. Too much. Definitely need to address homelessness. I want to help those who are homeless, but not those who choose homelessness/panhandling.
- Pearl St mall is a travesty-homeless-vagrants should not be tolerated. Less emphasis and dollars on non-English speakers and non-citizens.
- The homeless on Pearl Street, make this area seem unsafe when I have my children. One guy stole my son's little plastic sword in broad daylight.

Cost of living and housing costs need to be addressed

- Boulder has a huge problem with affordable housing. Not just for low income people but also middle income people.
- Cost % old homes and then renovating is getting unaffordable.
- Essential to provide more affordable housing opportunities.
- Extremely important, keeps boulder accessible!
- Help those with little income. We've nearly slipped through the cracks. As bright, shiny, happy, and healthy Boulder tries to be, there are people hurting around here. We came from the Midwest, and in some ways the last 19 months being here have been very scary and lonely as money dissipated. Through various circumstances, we haven't found jobs in our field, and we notice how many are minimum wage, part-time jobs that don't pay much. Not everybody is a food start up or solar engineer. We don't have enough knowledge to scream about economic policies or privatized care for the poor. However, there are a vast number of people who can't get good places to live, and the rental companies rip them off, knowing it's their market, not the renters. Moreover, helping the poor will boost all of society, not just the rich. If you want to keep people living and working in Boulder, consider starting a program like the WPA during the Depression.

- Housing and health care should be top priorities.
- I think boulder has too much affordable housing.
- If you don't have affordable rent, you have one kind of person. A rich person.
- I'm also not certain about the structure of the affordable housing program. People don't get to capture much interest on their investment. Plus its hard to move up and out of the program. Which eventually defeats the purpose of keeping folks of a lot of different income levels in town. There is a huge gap in housing 300k-500k
- It is important to give lower and middle income residents more housing, jobs and access to cultural activities.
- It is important to have a diverse community and boulder is very expensive so affordable housing is very important.
- It is important to have housing options for middle class families, not just the wealthy. The min. House price is $400,000 absurd! Otherwise boulder is just an elitist town where only the privileged can be homeowners.
- It's too bad that vast majority of people who work in boulder and keep the city going can't afford to live here!
- More affordable housing is essential otherwise thousands will continue to commute into boulder, worsening traffic and pollution.
- More and more middle income living/housing is important if this community is to maintain its welcoming and balanced feel.
- More middle income housing. Library downtown is treacherous as is central park after dark.
- Pedestrian amenities are imperative! Affordable housing = equality
- Some programs are very important to the health of the city, it is just a matter of use. Some things that are essential to folks are not necessarily essential to me. Affordable housing- low income
- Sustainable community oriented affordable housing options are most important; if we work on this we can get a diversity and inclusiveness.
- The wrong entities are managing affordable housing programs.
- Too much affordable housing some of these affordable people have very nice cars!!
- We need more affordable housing for low and middle income people.

Safety and effective police efforts

- Again as assure, deal with more violence and homelessness than average citizen of boulder.
- All the crime stuff is of course, essential, but I may have marked things of less importance. Because I feel like I live in a reasonably safe area and I don't see police here a lot.
- As important as the quality questions. Police presence can be good but is that important? No, it is not important, the police usually stand and wait for a complaint anyhow.
- As seniors we believe our lives are at stake when we venture out to the sidewalks. Too many cell phone user-drivers not yielding to pedestrians, too many jaywalkers.
- Boulder has to do a better job making the city a safe place to walk in at night and in the early morning when it is dark. I don't feel safe at these times walking in boulder. Too many transients and mentally ill people lurking around.

- Crime prevention and effective programs are very important. Also, the homeless are now living, sleeping in neighborhoods (e.g. near table mesa and west side of Broadway) I have had 2 interactions by homeless on side streets and the only option is to call the police.
- Feeling safe from crime in boulder is one of the reasons that I love it here.
- Had multiple car break ins (over 10) within a week timeframe and not notified by police in my area. Park East townhomes. Also some home break ins per neighbors.
- How do we keep boulder quiet? And downtown more peaceful and sober?
- hugely important -- many times I don't take my daughter to these places even though I would otherwise want to, because of what an awful environment the city has allowed to persist in these places
- I do not feel safe in my neighborhood anymore. Do not allow children to visit park and walk in neighborhood alone.
- I know it is an expense to increase police patrol on the pearl street mall but i feel it is essential to the quality of my family and friends experience.
- I think the city needs to put safety and housing as a higher priority than environmental sustainability. I should be able to let my kids go to the library on their own, but they are scared.
- Important to support community, to build community, to keep boulder safe for kids. Terrible drug problems, gangs and cartels.
- It seems there should be some rules for bikers as avoiding them on the city streets seems nerve racking since they seem to have no rules. I do not want to see motorized bikes on pedestrian paths, i think that would be scary for peds.
- More support for police, firemen, medical environmental services.
- Please enforce bicycles without lights at dusk, dark!
- Police should not harass cyclists on thursday nights.
- Police staff and fire response important to me. Would like to see rent control implemented in newer apartments being built, not just for the sec. 8 folks. Subsidized for extreme low income.
- Safety is key, cleanliness is key. Interconnectedness of urban is key. Public facilities are key. Attractiveness if these areas creates more desirability of the community. Enforcement of dogs off leash and other simple issues might be helpful
- Still problems with safety on the hill and on bike paths need better education about citizen preparedness and response to food issues or freak disaster affecting a large area.
- The deficiencies noted above are very important to add to the diversity and safety of our community
- There isn't anything listed about enforcing laws around pot smoking bothering neighbors.....maybe there aren't laws for this, but there should be.
- Well, regarding police presence, I am not at all for a heavy duty law enforcement environment. However I des. Presence can be reassuring especially at night. For instance a squad car has been driving through our parking garage at least once a night. After a number of cars were broken into and bicycles

Snow and ice control efforts need improvement

- A relatively new program is citizens being able to call for snow removal in neighborhoods. Unfortunately they pushed large amounts of snow and ice towards curbs which made them terribly unsafe.
- Boulder snow removal downtown is very poor
- Ditto on snow above. Plus, nothing but lip service and hand wringing over business (anti business) climate and low -medium income housing opportunities.
- Don't feel weed control is important, but snow removal control is. Received an unfair code enforcement ticket of a tipped over trash can siting bears as the reason. No warning and can was picked up already when went back to look at it.

- Snow and ice, one needs to be able to get to work, small business are really hurts when customers cannot get to them. Housing, people cannot live and work here, have to live outside and drive in to work
- Snow removal enforces the law respond to phone complaints on un-shoveled walks and driveways.
- The building ice on sidewalks is a dangerous problem. The ice is a hazard and prevents trips outside so resident become seriously isolated. Egregious and unnecessary condition, I hope to be out of boulder and co by next winter.

All services are important

- All are important.
- All these programs have a place in our community and make it a better place to live. I hate to see the city focus more on any program or service just because of a survey. All these programs / services have validity and merit.
- I think everything listed above is more important than municipalization of electric service.
- If the above concerns aren't addressed, boulder will be a less attractive place to live.
- These services are probably of equal importance as the rest of boulder, but we receive so few of them in unincorporated gunbarrel. Please incorporate gunbarrel into boulder.
- They all seem important.
- This is a community and we pay high taxes and expect excellent, high level service.

Improving housing and building code programs should be a priority

- Does the city rely wholly on the public to report over occupancy concerns? If not, what is the policy for enforcement? There are many rentals near and around our home and in our neighborhood.
- I believe the over-occupancy regulations are unreasonable and make affordable living difficult.
- I don't know this lat had but the reputation on building code enforcement is overly intrusive.
- I think boulder residential occupancy regulations are too strict.
- It's our experience that the city turns a blind eye to noise issues and over occupancy issues as evidenced by complaints to the city and police in which nothing is done.
- Over-occupancy regulations are a running joke, everybody thinks they are stupid and everyone ignores them.
- Owner occupied accessry dwelling units increase in a way to increase level of service density without excessive paving over of permeable ground re-subdivide lots to create sfd building g.
- Some of the Occupancy regulations are absurd.
- Who cares about over-occupancy. Not an issue especially when there is no housing.
- Would like the city to encourage higher density, in residential areas and more mixed use. Impacts of traffic congestion vehicle speed, and traffic noise should be managed, reduced.
- You shut down Juanita's because it didn't match despite the fact it was a historic building in its own right. The new restaurant doesn't make half the money and looks fake. If you want to preserve historic buildings don't tear down historic buildings to create a fantasy.

Efforts should be focused on the essentials (infrastructure, safety, health, etc.)

- Basic responsibilities safety, protection, utilities and transportation.
- Boulder traffic is becoming too crowded. More local business and less chains.
- Good water, good fire protection, and a police force that keeps out of the face of the law abiding citizen are an agenda that I could support.
- Healthy and socially thriving community have the highest importance for me.
- I can't leave/enter my neighborhood at rush hour due to traffic congestion so reduction is important. Were losing the visual evidence and sense of boulder history....do we really want to become just another quaint cute town?

- I think ensuring high quality essential services fire, police ambulance, roadways and community services, parks and recreation is more important than the municipal utility distraction.
- I think most of the questions are looking for a certain response and lack context. The city council is so focused on being an "example" they miss the basics.
- Kids gets their bike wheels caught in the cracks, street maintenance is boring but important.
- Look at 1 and 2 rated items above and put more budget $ there. 3 and below: cut back
- Maintaining and improving infrastructure and public safety need to be considered first.
- Many programs and services help specific groups, but at everyone's expense, cut taxes, do less
- Must have municipal services health, safety and welfare. Everything else should be "budget available" so police, fire, sanitation, health department.
- Need to maintain roads as well as open space. I'm glad you changed building codes to prohibit mega-mansions in small house communities.
- Support local healthcare and hospitals. Do you realize how fortunate we are? Time for more business people on city government. And I am not a business person.
- The city does not need to be everything to everyone. Libraries and recreation services are on outdated model for cities. Let private companies address these needs.
- Traffic congestion due to poor traffic light management can and does delay emergency response. I see poor traffic mgmt. As the greatest, failing, time lights!
- Traffic especially pedestrians and bikers, is difficult to maneuver and dangerous. I am constantly concerned that even when following traffic laws I am going to hit a pedestrian or bicycle due to their lack of attention.

Maintaining a healthy amount of parks and open space is important

- Boulder spends too much on open space purchase (enough already) and not enough on maintenance. Municipalization is driven by anti-business bias under the guise of "saving the planet". Carbon dioxide does not drive climate - even Trenberth and other NCARs are admitting that now. What we all need is cheap, reliable energy, which windmills and solar panels do not produce
- Closing all trails after the flood was ridiculous. Many trails remained closed though not damaged for weeks. A simple sign of "at you own risk" would have been enough, rather than the $1000 fine threat.
- Don't get cable and don't do twitter, Facebook etc., these are not important communication. City has enough parks and open spaces. And prairie dogs are rodents not endangered. Why do we have special places for them?
- I feel the city of boulder should spend less tax dollars on acquiring and maintaining its open space programs.
- I love boulders trails, parks and open space. I'd love to see more businesses like trader joe's- especially in north boulder. Perhaps a district of fancy restaurants.
- More small dog parks
- Please protect nature, wildlife, health and well-being, above all
- Thank god the environment of boulder is beautiful! It almost makes up for the ugly new architecture!
- To reduce the small percentage of conflicts between hikers/bikers/dogs. I would suggest spending our money and resources on increasing the number of OSMP trails available to the public, not creating more rules.
- Too many houses do not keep landscape, plants, trees, bushes, etc. Out-off sidewalk spaces.

Other

- "Somewhat Important" has been cut off in by browser window
- Also, other companies are profiting. For example the resource yard. It feels like a scam between the city and many of these businesses.

- Both these are very important enforcement issues.
- City has done flood mitigation over the years. Thanks! Continue with more and more. Does it make sense to encourage so much basement use? So many basements, were flooded!
- Do not fold the demands for low income housing.
- Environmental programs and clean energy should be a priority. Development often seems to be a priority. Who is this development in service of? Boulder seems like a place to shop and eat primarily. Consumption cannot define a community.
- For a wealthy community were in sad shape.
- I don't think boulder should try so hard to bring more low income people into the community. Too much bottom-level growth
- I think essential and very important are about the same!
- I think my comments speak for themselves.
- If you (the city) want to keep businesses as well as rich diverse community you need to be truly inclusive.
- Jobs in boulder should go to people living in boulder. Too many people are brought in from other areas.
- Plastic bags, I buy my groceries in superior, except for quick pickups and essentials, I will not buy plastic bags for garbage
- Programs that help our city minimize climate change and adapt to it are very important.
- Quality of life and values would be higher if martin acres were not providing students housing to an unregulated degree.
- Service for the elderly is particularly important to me.
- The quality of life within the town is affected by this. Tourism is also affected. This needs to be addressed.
- The web screen cut off the third column in most of the survey, so I could not rate most of the programs and services that I felt fell into that third category.
- There is low morale among city staff and staff is not treated respectfully by the manager's office. Other cities staff have better morale. Shocking since boulder sees it as a trend seller
- There is no consistency
- This #10 is essential to keep neighborhoods appearance and value for home owners.
- Too many touchy feely efforts
- We need public arts building that is a combo of theater and studio, not the dairy or boulder theater. Something brand new.
- Weed control helps mitigate fire dangers. I saw water pipes-sprinkler systems reinstalled in area but grass was not re-planted and sprinklers running and watering bare ground with weeds scattered all over the place.
- Yes, please improve where it is feasible, possible as soon as you can!!
- Yes, the importance rating buttons were cut off by my browser.
- You have a huge amount in this survey that could have been more specific

Don't know

- I am not very much aware of the city's programs.
- I don't live in the city limits, but do keep up with what's going on through the newspaper
- n/a
- No
- Not at this time

- I can't believe you didn't put boulder weekly.
- I don't have a computer
- I follow some boulder related accounts on twitter for info on open space parks and trail conditions.
- I have no idea. I am one of the invisible people.
- I think TV 8 is a terrible waste of $$
- I would like the website to be easier to use. It is very poorly laid out and designed.
- I'd like channel 8 to be informative.
- In any manner which doesn't waste paper and postage
- I've never heard of list serves, but it sounds good.
- KGNU

- With a bag of weed! Joking, i don't smoke. Social media sites are the most important. They get new to youth who would not otherwise care to find out.
- Yes
- Yes

Question 16. The library offers or is considering offering the following programs and services some with access from home. How likely are you to use each?

Are there other services that you would like to see offered by the Boulder Public library?

- 1,000 books before kindergarten program.
- A book club, e-book club
- A branch in my neighborhood
- A library is a highly respected tradition in our culture - but I'm not sure what the point is anymore - all the information in the world is available on the 'Net from my home. I do not think libraries are a good place for an adult to find information. Unless they are homeless, but then you don't need such a huge building; all you need is free access to computers.
- Access to academic journals
- Access to people who need it!
- Additional hours at the main library.

- Arts and ip is everything!
- Banning of drugs being sold in cafeteria area!!
- Before expanding, they need to increase cap. Of e-book access.
- Better maintained and smelling study/work areas
- Better quality media and books stopped using 6 years ago when they fell behind.
- Book delivery to county, north boulder branch or book drop off
- Book download is impossible.
- Book readings by author
- Capping the downloadable albums to 1 song takes a lot of time and effort in collecting the music in one place over time. Maybe a person could have access to fewer albums over a month if bandwidth is a concern, but have a several hour block to download the entire album. It would be great if it were unfettered, but another solution would be that a person checks out internet access to the downloadable material for a day or two, downloads it, and then it's automatically free for another person.
- Children's books research resources for young children to use on ipads/tablets
- Continue your Tues. and Sunday music programs.
- Do not use public library

- I doubt our library could effectively provide any of these services better.
- I enjoy the art exhibits
- I love the events at the library theater
- I would like it to be clean and safe.
- I would like to see a branch in gunbarrel
- It is scary to park there. The homeless are getting aggressive.
- It would be nice to be able to get into the library without being bombarded by transients.
- Its 2014 what a library?
- Libraries are useless historical artifacts, start phasing them out of the city plan.
- Library collection is diminishing.
- Live classes

- No- libraries are old technology and should be phased out over next 10 years!
- No, I find the library very helpful
- No, it's great already
- No, the library model is outdated find to keep the main library open but not expand services.
- No. The library is a great service.
- None I can think of.
- North boulder bricks and mortar library
- Not at this time
- Note: I use a similar library services already
- Offering other housing for the homeless.
- Online book club! Offer these to home addresses who cannot get there. It's a good idea.
- Prof. Staffing
- Prospector service, books from other co libraries.

- Sr. Discount books
- With SS discount pass don't have one

Question 21. Do you have any other comments you would like to make?

Homeless population issues

- Boulder is an incredible place to live, all things considered. However the homeless, transients situation is out of control. Understand the appeal of boulder and everyones rights, but for the population, its absurd.
- Boulder services for the homeless area magnet for vagrants. It is important to provide these services to boulder residents. However providing these services to vagrants only enables their destructive life style and takes needed resources from residents.
- Daily camera used to be good source of community info. Its now pretty lame! Too many homeless services attracts homeless, fair amount of pan handling. What's going on with privatization of i36? 1-36 road work and still no train?
- Get drugs and homeless out of our parks and communities!
- get the Social Services involved to help the homeless/drifters in the BPL-main and Boulder creek path areas, relocate them to appropriate housing, involve them in programs -- it's a shame to the city that nothing has been done about them -- the environment it created looks unsafe and inappropriate for children and families
- Homeless on corners should be addressed. Sometimes i think it's a business by these people. Pidgeons should be addressed, could carry diseases.
- Homeless/vagrancy a huge problem. I can no longer enjoy my city. Dogs off limits too many places. I can't have a weed (unknown) in my yard but the planning committee will consider parking and high variances to baseline zero
- Homelessness is a big problem in our community the creek path is not safe at night. The daily migr. Of the homeless from north boulder really makes nobo less desireable.
- How can we get beggars off of street corners? I understand they are not homeless. Thanks for your work on climate change, keep it up!
- I also feel to me like the panhandling is gotten to be a little to lubiquitous. I would like to feel more comfortable spending time with my kids along creek paths, west of broadway, but it does not always feel like a family friendly place during the summer with the "party like" atmosphere of tubers and loitering vagrants.
- I do not feel safe in areas of high transient/panhandlers populations. This is a different situation that what has been addressed with homelessness, which has been handled well. Specific areas: boulder creek path, pearl st. Mall, library.

- I feel unsafe around the library area. It's a mom with young kids, it is sad that i do not feel safe hanging out by the river or playground because of transients. They city website has the worst user interface i have ever seen!
- I think its reprehensible that the city of boulder allows transients to gather in large number in what i consider to be our best park across the creek from the library. I have been robbed several times and the other issues are numerous!!!
- I think the bums, pan handling and drugged out creeps are spoiling the downtown, parks, and libraries areas. How many really homeless have boulder ties?
- I think the City, like every other City in this country, has a homeless problem. I don't know the right answer but some of these people seem harmless, and some need to be in programs and off the street where they are a harm to themselves or others because they are ill.
- I think we should try to clean out the area by the library and the city municipal buildings. That area doesn't feel as safe as other parts of Boulder, and as a women I would not go into any of those areas at night by myself.
- I use bike paths daily to commute to work. It is disappointing to see homeless people harassing people and littering. It makes me uncomortable to use the paths with my kids.
- I'm afraid we have gone overboard on homeless services and have ended up attracting a lot of transients, hobos here. The boulder creek path is practically unusable now.
- I'm disturbed by the effort to take homeless people off the streets, out of parks. I think city is over reaching, trying to hide the presence of homeless, leave them be! What i need is not allowing them to stand on corners and camp in prks etc. What's the harm?
- More support to the libraries regarding the homeless in the cafeteria area. I have seen drugs sold there.
- Myself and all I know in boulder city are most concerned about the criminal transient persons who come intentionally to boulder and are not respectful of residents.
- Please address the transient issue in the downtown library area and near by parks.
- Please stop the homeless/ traveler, people from coming to boulder creek bike path, the pearl street mall and boulder in general. This has gotten to be a big problem in recent years. Please address it!!!
- Probably received this survey because we own property in boulder but would never again live in boulder. We do not fit the typical boulder resident profile. Elitist, liberal, wealthy, white people.
- Reducing homeless population and controlling their menace is boulders biggest problem. Both for image and safety.
- The amount of transients in boulder is a major problem. Most are from out of state but end up staying in boulder because they get a hand out here. Boulder attracts homeless people and is doing nothing to combat it.
- The homeless are a bummer. One day i saw 2 different transients projectile vomiting in 2 different areas of town. They have made us question our decision to move here.
- The panhandlers population around the library is swelling and discourages me visiting the facility
- There's a difference between homelessness and vagrancy. Help the homeless. Prohibit begging on street corners. Make boulder a lot less attractive to vagabonds.
- Too much bum trash in the city!
- Transient population around bike path and library is scary. Too many cigarrrete smokers and pot smoke makes it unpleasant, and seems dangerous at night.
- What is the plan to stop downtown boulder from becoming a hobo camp? As sean maher wrote, these are not our neighbors fallen on hard times, they are men with serious problems attracted to our community
- Work on city laws to outlaw pan handling this is hugely important to image of boulder. Police areas where homeless congregate and move them along to not endanger neighborhoods. Dakota ridge 28th and Broadway

Municipalization of utility concerns

- Boulder municipal utility= stupid idea. Better to spend $$investing in fiber network (like Longmont) and supporting distributed elec. Generat. Tech.
- City has wasted a lot of $ pursuing municipal utility when that money could be going to needs identified in earlier sections. The cit. Is watching closely and will not forget, including the small cadre of players pulling strings behind the scenes.
- Do not get in the electric utility business, enormously expensive and a huge distraction from city needs, city obligations-huge risk
- Don't believe city should run electric or utility
- I am not confident that the city of boulder can handle our utilities. The drinking water is awful. The streets don't get plowed. And transients have taken over the best parts of boulder. Housing is so expensive I can't move into a nicer condo.
- I would like the city to drop its pursuit of a municipal electric utility. I am significantly concerned about city staffs role in recommending the utility. Cities have very talented technical staff but lack the entrepreneurial skills to supplement consultants who generally tell them what they want to hear.
- I'm extremely disappointed with the city's efforts to municipalize our electric utility. I don't believe they're taking into consideration real costs and controls, but instead have gotten caught up in their own ideology and political agendas. Macon cowels and lisa morzel need to step back and join the real world again.
- Municipalization is a huge waste of time and likely a dead end. Boulder would have a much bigger impact on carbon as an excel customer.
- Some questions don't apply since i don't live within the city limits (i live in Gunbarrel), although i have lived within the city limits for most of the time i've been in the area. The city seems to think they can control parts of my life without giving me any say, e.g., the municipalization issue. Seems to me the city, to be fair, should annex us and give us a say by letting us vote for city council members and on important issues that affect us - or leave us alone.
- Stop wasting pulic money on the muni electrical utility
- Theres no way this community with its current leadership could run a municipal utility company. Its money wastes to try. We need to retire matt applebaum. He's lazy and patronizing. Makes me want to vote republican to unfuse our local govt with new blood.
- This is a fantastic city and it is well managed at all levels. We are concerned that utility municipalization problems might change the equation. Another concern is height van. Development. Resist the pressure from cu and re developers.
- Why do you want to take over the electrical system in boulder? The reasons given by you in the paper don't deal with reality.

Eco-pass and public transportation

- An express bus to Louisville downtown would be nice
- Buses are great, but do not run on time.
- Buses are too inconvenient to get to and from my house especially if i need to carry anything which is most of the time. Re #35 theres no such thing as "race" if you would like to research this issue, I'll be happy to suggest some sources.
- Citywide eco pass would be great! Would it replace neighborhood system?
- Community wide eco pass programs need to provide some remedy for the fact that many receive passes already through employers, some sort of opt-out that m. Monetary kick back
- Encourage neighborhood eco passes
- Everyone should be able to get a eco-pass
- Everyone should have equal opportunity to have an eco-pass!
- Expanded bus service and affordability should be a priority, people will not start taking the bus more unless it becomes more convenient and affordable. There should be more buses more often especially on the weekends. Eco-passes should be available for high school students. Should be more and brighter streetlights so pedestrians, bikers and bus riders feel more confident and safe from cars.

- High frequency services like the skip are unreliable, inconsistent and of limited utility for connecting to regularly schedule regional bus service, like the gs. Also on inconsistent service for getting to scheduled meetings or appointments due to poor time reliability.
- Hop works well, skip and jump buses are too big and should run on 10 min. Frequencies.
- How do I qualify for Eco pass if I'm low income?
- I am a federal employee and they make it so difficult to get an eco-pass but it is not worth the effort. If it were easy to get discount passes of any sort. I would get them for the whole family
- I buy monthly passes, i cannot afford an eco-pass
- I do not use eco pass because the senior discount gives me a better deal.
- I don't have a car. My choice, i walk, ride my bike, ride the bus. I make it convenient; i don't live above my means.
- I have not possessed a vehicle since june 1992. I use my cu eco bus pass extensively for local and regional bus service. Thank you for providing good bus service in boulder and the surrounding area
- I left my part time job last summer but because i had worked less than full time and on contract for a small business in boulder, i was not eligible for an eco-pass and thus had to pay more $ to ride the bus and spend 3x the time to get to and from, this was a loose, loose, no incentive so i drove back and forth to downtown boulder, paid to park.
- I love the bus system. Very efficient!
- I need rapid transit between boulder and Denver, train
- I support a city county wide taxation in order to make eco passes available to everyone. If everyone had access to free passes cpd through property or sales tax, ridership would increase and service frequency would also increase.
- I want an eco-pass!
- I will avail myself of the good bus service when i can no longer drive. It just doesn't have the convince of driving
- I would like the city to support city wide eco pass. Improved city park facilities (rsp baseball fields) mental health and homeless situations. Stop focusing on regulations interfering with dogs. Stop having to crack down on businesses on uni hill! Allow group homes on the hill.
- I would like to see eco passes available for all residents of the city to purchase at a reasonable price.
- I would love to purchase an eco-pass!
- I'd love an Eco-Pass! (For the AB bus to DIA)
- If you want to get people out of cars and into buses make them free and frequent. Many routes have buses that are too big. Make them smaller. There are many good things about boulder, but Lafayette and Longmont are catching up.
- I'm a senior and have reduced fares.
- Improvements need to be made on bus stops and sidewalks on Broadway between quince and violet. Discourages useage if you live in that area.
- It is important to have protective shelters at bus stop areas and lighting
- Kids are too young to ride bus alone. If asked again in 3 years, i'd be very likely to purchase an eco-pass for my kids.
- Local buses need to start earlier during the week and on weekends. Local buses need to increase frequency at night and on weekends.
- Making transit more affordable and easier to access would be a massive improvement.
- My children are too young to ride a bus by themselves (5 and 7) but in another 6 or 7 years. I'd by them an eco-pass

- My children frequently use the eco-pass
- My husband has a eco pass form his work in Denver.
- Need more bus service gunbarrel, jay and carter trail. Expensive to use parking at bus barns. Rtd, times are not reliable.
- Neighborhood eco pass not convenient to get. Paid$$ and was given a form to be used to get pass within 30 days. Schedule for when you could go to bus station to get pass very restricted, lines long. Could not fit into schedule, never picked up. Wasted $$
- Our transportation in gunbarrel, twin lakes, is very spotty, bus times are rare and there is no bicycle path from gunbarrel to boulder. Please finish the path from andrus rd. To boulder creek path! Also, please add sidewalks (complete missing) on kalua.
- Please expand 206 rtd line to its original route through the boulder t. Center (central ave)
- Rtd: convert over next years to all hybrid buses. The majority and fleet like skip rumble through our quiet neighborhood belching diesel fuel. The new hybrids don't and are more welcome.
- The busing program is too expensive from rtd without an eco pass for kids going to school.
- The eco-pass program should be more accessible to the residents and expanded. However more routes have to be added and accountability of rtd. Must be answered for.
- Via bus is a great service i have used.
- -We need more north to south bike routes and to separate bikes and cars. / -All of the car dealership lots seem an awful use of space. It feels like there are massive parking lots everywhere and on an individual basis utilizes the business relatively inf
- We travel from north to south in east boulder a lot. For example, gunbarrel to Louisville. I don't believe there is a convenient, direct bus route. If there was, we would use it.
- We use the bike paths extensively so don't need a bus pass. Nowhere are we not able to bike, then we would use the bus or car about equally.
- We will be interested in eco pass when kids are in middle and high school.
- We would love to have eco passes but can't afford them. As long as they cost us more than driving, we can't justify the expense, and I'm one of the greenest people i know.
- While i love the idea of any eco-pass currently it is inconvenient for me to take a bus to work. When i had a pass and worked downtown so that the bus route was direct, it was a nice option
- Wish the bus system would stop using cash and go to transit card that customers put money on.
- Would be way more helpful if the bus system ran a late night ride on Friday and Saturday that left pearl about 2:30 that serviced outlying areas of boulder.
- Would like to see fast tracks completed as promised!
- Would use eco pass but bus service is too far away from home to go to work in less than 1 hour by car, 10 min. We have 8 people and 3 generations living in home and 4 work fulltime and 1 part time, to be able to afford to live here.
- Yes, city wide eco pass!! I have not ridden the buss except to airport in years. With eco-pass, i would try the bus

Cost of living and housing costs are too high

- Although i currently rent in gunbarrel my partner and i are hoping to purchase a house this year. We are assuming that we will have to leave boulder because we can't imagine that we'll be able to afford a house here.
- Boulder seems like it is for the very rich or the very poor. Sometimes boulder forgets about the middle class.
- Due to high number of regulations and restrictions around building the supply of homes-buildings is too low for demand causing prices to be too high for the middle class to afford, thus driving the middle class from boulder
- Generally very happy in boulder, but housing prices are so high! The library, and bike paths are great.

- I don't think middle income families are interested in high density / condo type housing. I see a need for more modest homes. With at least a small yard. I would like to see commuter traffic reduced in boulder, and have a more balanced income community.
- I love living in boulder, however, there is not enough affordable housing for middle income families. And singles, nor in boulder, very business friendly. I applaud boulders enthusiasm for renewable energy, but i do not feel that municipality is the answer.
- I wish the city of boulder could offer renters in this city some protection from the rent increases that i've been subject to between $130-$150 yearly increases with no end in sight.
- I'm a boulder native and i am proud of my city with the influx of very wealthy citizens, i am wary of elitism, influencing our community decisions. Many of the people i grew up with cant afford to live here anymore and it makes our town feel less real. My neighbors used to be teachers and office managers and now they are independently wealthy or "consult"
- I'm happy that trader joe's has arrived in town. I appreciate the discount rate at the rec centers for low income users.
- Many boulder rentals charge exorbitant amounts for slums. I would like to see student housing co-operatives similar to berkeley ca. The city should look at its facist stand on art. (where's waldo)
- My husband and i are retire's on a very limited budget. We are finding it harder to live in boulder. Shopping cost more, traffic is more congested and when we can afford it, it is hard to find a reasonable restaurant. We find it easier to go to longmont for most things.
- My main concern is safety. Theres this guy stalking me and no one seems to care and my rent is supposed to be 30% of my income yet i pay 30% plus an additional 70.00 for utilities and i'm on section 8 and receiving social security is not fare.
- Need more middle income single family housing! I want to raise my children where i grew up but is is expensive!
- Our city council is not particularly diverse, however i feel strongly that to serve on council or on boards and commissions you should be registured to vote with in the city. Affordable housing: payment in lieu, just is not working....require developers to provide affordable units.
- Please make it more affordable to rent or buy in boulder! Currently its so expensive only rich people can live here.
- Please try to address the affordable housing shortage in Boulder for working families. We love living, working, going to school in the city, yet we may not be able to buy a house and stay in the city.
- Rent is very high and i expect my ren to increase each year which is making living in boulder a challenge. A 30 something adult doesn't want to live in a commune in order to pay the bills
- Rentals not to be confused with real estate., are not affordable, want the city to do whatever it can to keep property tax affordable for the future. Ie. Don't become new jersey. Address homeless problem faster than current. It's bad. We are wasting money creating unsafe conditions.
- So far as i can tell, there are no home ownership opportunities for middle income residents 2,000 sq ft /$500k. Please implement eco pass for all. The city of boulder is doing a stupendous job. No place i'd rather be. Thank you
- The lack of middle income housing for nucleas families is boulders biggest challenge. It is simply not possible to afford a home in boulder, not much is available in the 250-400k range. I'm shopping for a new home and will leave boulder because of this.
- The two areas i feel most strongly about are increased affordable housing options for middle income households and art opportunities for children and adults, especially children from diverse backgrounds.
- Traffic is horrible. Cost of housing, outrageous. Please remember not everyone in boulder county is a trust fund baby, we are being squeezed out.
- We are 3 people, my wife my daughter and me, but in boulder the apartment is to expensive.

Boulder is a great place to live

- Boulder is a fantastic place to live.
- Boulder is a great small city! We are fortunate that our home is very walkable to goods, services, recreational areas and the like. We sometimes wish it were a little cleaner (air pollution, litter, trash, dog waste and the like) city of boulder does a great job overall!
- Boulder is so nice and i feel my complaints need to be tempered with the fact that i like it here, but the way it favors the rich and self-serving is frustrating. City council included.
- Boulder rocks. We are all spoiled, but most don't know it.
- City is great!
- first time I have seen a survey like this after living here 24 years. glad to see it happening
- Great place to live but frustrating to get around particularly when 28th or 30th streets are involved. Traffic signals need to be timed/sequenced, to enhance traffic flow, rather than impeded. now rtd has the same problem.
- I love boulder i love living here and i feel that it's important to continue to do things that enable trust and community building, like funding community gardens, farmers markets, parks and other areas for people to gather, build, hope and share.
- I love boulder. We are the nexus of the universe. There is no place in the world that is more beautiful than boulder, Colorado.
- I love living in boulder!
- I really like living in boulder. I'm not as knowledgeable as i should be about the inner workings, of city operations and i apologize. Keep up good, compassionate, knowledgeable and fair work.
- I think boulder's city government works well, in general. I think taxes are well spent, and i think that much can be accomplished by collective action.
- I'm a near native (2 years old) this is home, hope to die here!
- Need more policies to up composting and water use and single occupancy vehicle use. Great job in general.
- No thank you
- No, thank you for making a survey so our voices will be heard.
- Thank you for all you do
- Thanks for doing a great job!
- We'd be living in boulder for 18 months now, before we visited twice. It's a wonderful place to raise our kids. But there's always room for improvement.

Parking, roads, traffic and traffic control

- Auto, bicycle and pedestrian traffic is out of control. Especially when school is in session. Allowing electric powered bicycles on the creek path along with other bicycles going too fast, is a safety hazard, allowing bicycles to ignore traffic rules is not smart, contributes to road rage!
- City has too much emphasis on affordable housing developments are tight, difficult parking, too dense.
- I don't like the "mobile van speed cop" gives boulder a bad name. They don't have that nuisance in Longmont where i work for 20 years.
- I have complained about the dangerous intersection of Broadway and Linden to councilmembers. The light leaves little time for pedestrians to cross the street, especially the old and infirm. During and after snow storms the light becomes a flashing yellow on Broadway and a flashing red on Linden. This makes it damn near impossible to cross the street, and of course it becomes jaywalking. A "sanctuary" island in the middle of Broadway would make the intersection much safer.
- I live on the hill and would like to see my block become one of the blocks that requires resident permits (limits parking for nonresidents to 2 hours.) I live at 11th and college/11th Pennsylvania

- I would like covered bike parking at my apartment building 505 27th way. Please allow for more housing co-ops
- I would like to see boulder get smarter traffic signals. I would like to see boulder develop downtown night life.
- More cheaper parking in commercial areas would be a huge plus! Also more intelligent traffic lights. Miss one light on 28th you miss all the rest for example. Compared to Denver, boulder traffic flow is super primitive! Boulder isn't a quaint little village any longer folks!
- We need more parking areas in north boulder.
- Yes drivers are not waiting to allow pedestrians to cross. They start their turn and pressure us!

Flood mitigation

- City needs to update sewer/water system for flood. Stop developing boulder!! What happened to cap on buildings over 2 stories. Too much development keep boulder open-open space! Land! More resources to build community more walking/bike paths that are safe.
- Floods were hard to prepare fo but boulder did a good job responding especially considering what a difficult situation it was.
- I cannot comment on the flood mitigation tax as i do not know the amount brought in yearly and do not know how exactly it is spent. Maybe a 1-2 year tax to cover the recent disaster but not a permanent tax increase.
- I think more notice on significance of flood damage would have been helpful to avoid so many people losing their lives.
- My household is open to increasing the fee to about one half the current amount of flood mitigation but not double or triple the fee. During the flood, many of our street neighbors experienced basement flooding and if we hadn't done our own mitigation the same flooding could have occurred in our home
- Re: flood, ems services did a fantastic job. Response to backed up sewage was not good, flood mitigation in our neighborhood has been bad
- Rre-flood too aggressive closing roads, parks, facilities closed to long.
- The flood was a very rare occurrence.
- We live in palo park on 4 mile creek. Due to the floods the creek has 2-3 ft of extra mud and silt. Haven't heard from anyone as to what is the plan to restore the creek. On a good note the creek was built to contain a 100 yr flood and it did do just that. Thanks
- We try ch. 8 during fire and flood, but find no relevance. Ch. 8 should use this to inform emergencies.

Comments about questionnaire

- Far too many survey questions and they are repetitive! Respondents get to tired of answering them all.
- I am surprised that while this survey asks "how many children aged 12 or younger" etc, it never makes any other attempt to know how many adults are in my household. Husband and i might have different opinions in some of these questions.
- I think this survey is too long, it's intim. To people due to length. I think you would be more successful with return rates if it were shorter and more sufficient.
- Portions of the survey are cut off. / Most trips inside the city limits are by bicycle. That does not seem to be addressed in the survey. / Commute outside the city for work, also not addressed in the survey.
- Questionnaire is too long
- Questions that should have another answer category: / Under accessibility and connectedness: Commuted to work by bicycle. What if you work at home?? / Under Environmental Sustainability: Composted food and yard wast. What if you compost in your own yard?? / The way I had to answer these 2 questions, saying never, sounds like I don't care at all, but I really do care!

- Some places to make responses were cut off - importance ratings. Also, It would be very helpful (and would likely increase your response rate) if you had a status bar showing how much of the survey had been completed and how much is left to still complete. I was about to abandon it. If you would like some help, please contact me (Karen@alquemiestudio.com)
- Survey could have been more focused and logical and is way different to the mail in ballot (which has the old councilors names on it)
- Survey is too long, to many q's/?
- Surveys like this are a good idea but this one has some general questions that don't pinpoint specific issues e.g. #14,#15
- The Spanish language letter explaining this survey is listed as from 2011 not 2014 also, there are some errors i corrected in red
- They survey is way too long. The city should stop with the over-reach. Like outlawing smoking anywhere including parks and open space. We pay for this stuff. Get out of the way!
- This form is much too long
- This is too long. Make this/ask people to do this survey online. No postage, paper waste and more convenient.
- This survey could be distilled down to 2 pages with space for comments. Its length is a deterrent for completion. Also, the formatting is hard on the eyes.
- This survey is a steaming pile of shit. The design is awful and I have to scroll horizontally to read all the options on some radio buttons. Did anyone actually try to take this survey after building it? My god that was a horrible experience.
- This survey is too long!
- You should do extensive focus groups. The survey questions themselves reflect an agenda about what is important, I'd like minimal services and lower taxes so i can afford to live here for natural attributes and location, not all your services.

Parks and recreation

- Chihuahua play group
- I paid a lot to live in boulder to enjoy its recreational opportunities & proximity to the mtns. I enjoy the liberal environment. I have been disappointed watching boulder become too big too crowded and too noisy. I'd like to see less growth more stewardship of open space & nature.
- Open space is to use... not just to look at. Open space control is too strict.
- Over regulation of the parks, trails, streets. Having a warrant check done on you for dog walking infractions is psycho putting my name in the system because of my dog chasing a squirrel is over the top. Rangers on power trips like city cops.
- Parket parks, gathering for gunbarrel like areas so neighborhoods can meet each other. I see some rtd buses often almost empty in Falls Church and arlington va they've started a program using smaller buses like the viva bus size, that has many more neighborhood side streets stops, especially near schools and hospital, but also to sub. And many more folks started using the bus rather than driving. It was on a frequent schedule at commute times, less often mid day.
- Parking at the rec centers is terrible, especially east and north. / It would be great if there was a bike path connecting the Goose Creek and wonderland creek bike paths. There is, but its very sketchy, involving parking lots, alleys, etc. / City wide internet! We want a fiber ring or a google fiber style development. Comcast service is very spooty and poor.
- Please build a bike path between boulder and Longmont. It would get so much use and cut traffic considerably
- Please grade the path between tamarack ave and upland ave just east of crestview park. Still rutted from floods.
- Please enforce dog regulations, i have seen women shriek, children cry, frightened people go up hillsides in open space as snarling, aggressive dogs lunge. Seems every 3 in 4 visits to open space i see this. Also dogs attack dogs. Maybe signs to report aggressive or unleashed dogs.

- Please make sure the recreation facilities got adequate funding, especially south boulder rec. Center. They are wonderful assets to the city
- Senior programs are boring. Some of us love controversy. I find boulder very full of itself, over rated and lacking, but i am from NY. San Francisco and la so boulder seems very small and backward to me. In fact boulder/Denver area is skipped by many retail corp. Restaurants, are tasteless, ethnic food is dumbed down to suit bland Midwestern taste, such a shame.
- Spend money /resources on open space/parks and preserving land and not over building condos, apts, houses with no yard or land preserved.
- Stop buying open space!
- Thank you for keeping boulder beautiful, for open space!! For defending wildlife, please, please, please protect our water and esp. Fracking! Thank you for letting us have access for dogs!! Housing is too expensive.
- The city councils restrictive OSMP stances from obstructing trail use. Events like the pro cycling challenge, commercial use after the flood, off leash policies are not aiding in conservative efforts. People take care of the lands they love, enjoy and use. Spend $$ on education for outdoor recreation not restrictions.
- The conservation constituent has too much influence w OSMP. The city can protect the most sensitive areas and virtually every user will respect that. People moved here to use open space. Not view it from a distance.
- Warm water pool! Indoor

Other

- Aforementioned concerns regarding safety in my neighborhood. And aforementioned concerns regarding continued construction on every single piece of land left in this city!
- As a long time resident of boulder that rarely leaves boulder, works in boulder, lives in boulder went to school in boulder, i had a serious accident and need the assistance for hous. I have found out that the city of boulder has given all hous. Away to the wealthy and not citizens.
- As a resident of gunbarrel i have little voice in decessions.boulder is too crowded!
- At the very time when i have become medically disabled and unemployable the city is threatening to require me to provide costly "bearproof" outdoor storage of food waste. It is cruel to force me to do sush a dangerous and expensive thing with stuff that belongs indoors.
- Be more proactive and conservative, so we do not get any property tax increase. Taxes are too high.
- Boulder sales tax rate drives people away from shopping in boulder. Taxes that are collected are inappropriately used. City council priorities and emphasis many times is in the wrong direction or just plain silly and stupid
- Boulderites come across as entitled and elitest as a group
- City has world famous citizens.
- City needs to have new policies regarding re-zoning.
- Could use better enforcement of trash in yards and alleys on the hill. Would like to see more public art, more support for local artists.
- Enforce smoking ban on pearl st.
- I am discouraged with the city. As a home owner in north boulder, i feel like a second class citizen in this city. Those in businesses and lower income high rise building have the city's eye. As these areas have grown and grown, traffic has increased horrendously along residential streets....all with no traffic enforcement. There appears to be no end in sight. Take my street, (kalmia) as an example. Several years ago, i called the city about speeding vehicles along out street. The lady was very nice and took my complaint. First the city set up an electronic speed indicator on the street, then they erected a "residential" speed sign near Broadway. These had no effect. The speeding continued, especially around commute times. I gave up, thinking i was the only one concerned. Then i talked with my neighbor, only to discover, that he too had contacted the city with no results. Recently, i learned that the city plans to widen the streets, put sidewalks and curbs along my street...egad! The street is on a downhill grade from 4th st. To Broadway, which is the main reason that cars speed. Widening the street and installing curbs will only encourage people to travel even faster. Who is planning this? Who cares? Along with problems on our street is the demise of 4th street as a "multi-use" roadway for bicyclists, pedestrians and cars. It is a treasure that should be protected. Instead, it seems to be ignored. I have that feeling that the increase in high density housing areas and traffic flow is so important in Boulder, the city is willing to sacrifice everything that made it great.

- I am tired of the heavy handed over regulation of city government in Boulder. In my opinion its out of hand and getting worse
- I cant stand the self indulgent whiney Boulderites who feel they're so intitled. License cyclists
- I don't understand where my taxes go..sales tax is the highest in the state, property taxes are not exactly low and the police sets up speed traps with a vengeance. Why?
- I feel the city should make greater strides to identify unlicensed landlords. For example leases are provided for neighborhood parking passes.
- I had the worst landlord i ever had in 10 years of renting. She refused to fix broken locks and deal with residents. A reporting line for people like this would be helpful or a way to regulate relicensing landlords.
- I just want to stress how important it is to get the money out of politics and higher human values back in front and center. We must replace the present ignorance of placing high regard for "the bottom line" the rallying cry of the corporations and all the insane acts and attitudes manifesting from this thought. Inhuman stance. And reestablish kindness, care for the less fortunate, concern for the purity of our air, water, earth, food.the well being freedoms, health and happiness of the children of the planet and all the humans, animals and significant beings.
- I lean conservative. City council policies rarely reflect my ideals but rather far left liberal ideals. I know lots of people here that feel dismissed as fellow citizens because of being constrict or conservative. Channel 8 could reflect these ideals and ideas. The daily camera rarely does. We are here too.
- I like green tags for dogs. Leave em alone please
- I no longer recommend people to move to Boulder. The air pollution of pot. As we are known as healthy- why go down a road that does not head toward that now.
- I would appreciate courtesy, healthy treatment by authority i appreciate service to the poor.
- I would like to see no more high rise bldgs. Over 3 stories, built in Boulder and serious that given to not build a 4 story hotel on the 27th way/baseline rd. Property. Our neighborhood (Martin Park) would suffer traffic etc.!!!
- I'd like the marijuana excise tax repealed.
- I'd love to see more entertainment- a cute main street with shops and restaurants. More farmers markets. More health and fitness oriented businesses true food kitchen, Boulder Whole Foods in North Boulder.
- Increasing deer population is feeling like it is out of control. Landscaping around on and off ramps of 36 and baseline. This is most peoples first impression -looks terrible!
- It feel like the developers are running Boulder. And using up every square foot of open land i've lived in Boulder over 40 years, raised 7 children and i'm sad to see the way it has been developed.
- Its about the city-organization that is fixing gas problems they finished this street end of December and still reserve whole blocks of parking and are never here. No one can park. It was fine when they were working, but they keep extending the signs for no apparent reason.
- Lack of care of city mediums. The weeds are terrible around town. Boulder is not a beautiful city anymore.
- Leave local businesses be. Lower taxes. Open up construction and building permits. Don't attempt to restrict drinking and or smoking. The local PD should offer free concealed handgun permit courses. Repair the roads. Privatize the water utility. Allow fracking.

- More mental health services offered in the public school system is critical with current state of our school crises ranging from individual to universal needs. I would like to see more of a focus there.
- More support for local business. Support for a train thru boulder and denver. Less taxes
- My experiences at the valmont post office has been dismal. The staff there are rude, disinterested and unhelpful. My postman doesn't even pick up my outgoing mail for days at my home. Downtown p.o. employees have been delightful
- Night lighting-full cutoff fixtures should be enforced, 29th st mall should be pedestrian friendly more buses, ban cars. Women should feel safer in trails, parks, etc.
- People need cars to live their lives. How about some service? / Most bike riders are recreationalists. Very few are doing things by bike rather than by car. Riding your bike one day a year to work does not justify >50% of the transportation budget for bike paths/lanes/services - and I'm a bicyclist / "Green" energy is just a way of putting consequences "out of sight". Solar panels made in China with rare earths; windmills on the eastern plains still have to be backed up by fossil-fuel generation somewhere. etc.
- Please do a better job of snow removal!!! Include neighborhood streets!!! Also eliminate boulders aggressive and unnecessary ticketing of dogs off leash.! Animal control should be there when called not out patrolling and issuing tickets for dogs playing in parks!
- Please have the city work to stop doing social engineering feel good projects and get back to running an efficient city, welcoming to business and growth. Provide services well, not agendas on social issues.
- Please make ideal market remove the noisy refrigerated trucks. Do not allow them to destroy peace in the residential neighborhood.
- Promote Jewish co-housing near the area of Arapahoe and Cherryvale. There's a field area that seems to be abandoned by the Granville-Phillips company that would be great. Also, an area of the city website devoted to business practices would be great. For example, it would be moderated like Yelp, but if someone were ripped off by a local company, they could tell others. If someone received great service from a small company, they could mention it. The point is that local or regional businesses would have a chance to be highlighted for exceptionally good or bad behavior, especially if there were health or safety infractions.
- Relax adu requirements
- Repeat: too many jaywalkers unleashed dogs, some on 10' leashes, dogs in businesses and stores. Keep me from shopping there, ie. Mcguckins, doctors offices, no enforcement of no smoke rule at cu. Bikers must have warning-alert bells or get them off the sidewalks
- Ridiculous to penalize bar owners on the hill for student behavior. Problem is house parties. Unintended consequence of danish plan=pricing low and mid-income people out of housing market. Council must do something about providing more low-mid income housing
- Sidewalks on 28th and 30th should change radically increase option for small scale density attached to sfd instead of breaking up residential lots into multiple sfd building sites.
- Snow removal from roads needs to be changed. There should not be packed ice on roads 5 days after snow! All surrounding cities have taken care of their snow on roads!
- Streets are too dark at night for safety. We live in boulder as adults with no kids and enjoy it very much but we are glad we raised our kids in louisville, before moving here. Boulder has too many transients on its streets for kids to be playing around.
- Thanks for this chance to give feedback. When cu ups enrollment it should also build dorms to relieve pressure on neighborhoods in which single occupancy homes become mini dorms causing more pets, more parking more noise and less neighborhood involvement. Cu should distribute flyers to students telling behavior expected in off campus housing. Also more publicity on this at the start of semester. Baseline between 30th and 28th and broadway is becoming too congested and unsafe. Should have no more development. Also do not allow building height to go up. Views of flatirons are priceless and for all to enjoy. Building to close to street, makes one feel like their in a canyon or prison. Keep set backs bigger.

- The 29th street development is the biggest mess, boulder has yet made for it's self. Home depot in the heart of town....bs!!!
- The bag tax is pointless. Get to the root of the problem and just outlaw plastic bags. Parking fines and their issuance are ridiculous. It seems that to live in the town you not only have to pay taxes but also multiple fees for daily living.
- The building of extremely large housing developments (apts.) In already overly congested areas is a disaster. 30th-31st and pearl suggested devel. At 27th and moorhead etc.
- The city has a lot of rules, sidewalk ice removal etc. That it doesn't enforce. I think these rules are important for an excellent city but they are violated.
- The city issues a time to residents at our address when someone else dumps garbage on our property. Why are we punished for a crime that we didn't commit?
- The City needs to figure out how to plow the roads without creating a berm at the mouth of the cul-de-sacs that line the major roads. I just shoveled the end of our street of a 2' berm. I end up doing this every snow storm. Not good especially as the City can cite us if we do not shovel our walks. There needs to be some sort of equity in the snow removal area.
- The City of Boulder used to be a nice place to live. Now the Eco-Nazis have taken over and ran good business out of town. Costco, Lowes, and yes WALMART (what is here in town isn't a REAL WALMART) and as a result the quality of life is suffering due to the financial requirements placed on the average homeowner. The CoB wants to have all the amenities but there isn't the tax base to support all the frivolous crap programs the city seems to deem necessary. Until the city makes a hardcore attempt to attract business that pays sales tax to the city i will continue to hop in my Toyota 4Runner and drive outside the city limits to conduct my business. Get the picture?
- The doesn't treat business equally an example Walmart had a box truck that had painted "wall mart store open" they city made them stop its use. At the same time several city buses past by with advertisements plastered all over them also dozen of trucks. I am not a big fan of Walmart but what fair for should be for all. I have heard that a majority of the city fire fighters apply and get disability when they retire. This appears to be a scam, maybe time to hire a new medical facility. The city gov. Boards are very incestuous friends and social contacts. The police dept. Seems to be well run officers are respectful and helpful. I can't say the same for the fire dept. They seem to be rude and arrogant. I needed to get in touch with the chief building inspector, i call and left messages 5 times in several weeks, no response. I called the city managers office an administrator very politely intervened. I got my appointment and the man was very polite, that's more than i can say for the inspector who was wrong and arrogant. The city seems to care about runners and bicycles then people whom can't participate. We use to have a rodeo, kinetics race, Halloween etc. All cancelled they were fun to watch i isn't fun to watch bikes zoom by in 1 sec. Or a bunch of sweaty people.
- This city seriously needs some kind of regulation regarding housing. Landlords and property companies have 100% of the bargaining power. It's impossible to find reasonable housing mid-year (e.g. right now, Jan.) unless you want to "pre-lease" for August. Some complexes also enforce ridiculous criteria via their "applications" (e.g. proof of monthly income that is three times the rent) . They also make ads for properties that simply are not available, instead claiming that it's just listing "what they manage". There needs to be some way to put more power back in the hands of tenants and potential tenants. No more pre-leasing. No more false advertising. No more stupid discrimination and invasive investigations.
- This may sound weird but i wish boulder was nearly as concerned about basic city services and reflecting the attitudes and values of all citizens, as it seems to be with being a shining beacon to the world on newewables, sister cities, bike races, bike lanes, bike statues, animal deaths, et al. There is no single boulder set of values.
- Too much regulation too much government, too many city employees. Do we really need so many hands on, in the city?
- We quit stopping in boulder grocery stores since the 10 cent bag fee was imposed. We found Walmart a much better deal. City should stay out of gunbarrel!!

- Weeds are unsightly during summer months in neighborhoods and med. Across the city. Often embarrassed for visitors coming to town.
- when I said that shopping choices in Boulder is bad, I meant that there are TOO MANY shopping choices here in Boulder
- Would love the farmers market to be a year round. Also, better lighting on the boulder creek path would make it safer at night.

Don't know

- 3rd generation Boulderite lived away only about 8 years

- I only moved to boulder on sept. 13, i plan on staying for a while though!

- We have a boulder mailing address but we live outside city limits in n. Boulder, we have lived here for 15 years.

APPENDIX C: SELECTED RESULTS BY SUBCOMMUNITY

The tables in this appendix show selected survey results by subcommunity. No oversampling was done within smaller subcommunities, so results for three of the subcommunities from which fewer than 50 surveys were returned were combined with another (see the third column in the table below for the combined percentages). Where differences by are statistically significant ($p < 0.05$), they are shaded with gray. The proportion of surveys received from each subcommunity is shown below. A map of the subcommunities can be found on the following page.

APPENDIX F: SURVEY METHODOLOGY

Survey Instrument Development

Prior to 2014, the City of Boulder conducted an “omnibus” resident survey nine times, most recently in 2011. These surveys ask recipients their perspectives about the quality of life in the community, use of community amenities, opinions on policy issues facing the city and assessment of city service delivery. In 2014, the City decided to conduct slightly different type of community survey that was less focused on policy-related topics and, instead, aimed to measure the performance of the city government. The 2014 community survey instrument was developed by starting with the 2011 survey, as retaining questions that would maintain important trendlines was a priority. Through an iterative process between City Council, city staff and National Research Center (NRC) staff, a number of questions were removed and new questions were added to craft the final seven-page questionnaire. The final questionnaire then was translated into Spanish.

Selecting Households to Receive Survey

Boulder has divided the city and the area just outside the city into nine planning subcommunities. All households located within these nine planning subcommunities were eligible to receive the survey. Because local governments generally do not have inclusive lists of all the residences in the jurisdiction (tax assessor and utility billing databases often omit rental units), lists from the United States Postal Service (USPS), updated every three months, usually provide the best representation of all households in a specific geographic location. NRC used the USPS data to select the sample of households.

The zip codes 80301 through 80305 were considered eligible for the first stage of household selection. Systematic sampling of households was used to choose addresses within these zip codes, which is a procedure in which every “Nth” item is selected from a complete list of all possible items so that the appropriate amount of items is selected. A larger list than needed was created in this way, so that a process referred to as “geocoding” could be used to eliminate addresses from the list that were outside the study boundaries. Geocoding is a computerized process in which addresses are compared to electronically mapped boundaries and coded as inside or outside these boundaries. The geocoding of the selected addresses was completed by the city’s GIS division. All addresses determined to be outside the study boundaries were eliminated from the potential mailing list. Those remaining were identified as belonging to one of the nine subcommunities. A random selection was made of the remaining addresses to create a final list of 3,017 addresses.

Attached (multi-family) housing units were oversampled to compensate for detached (single-family) housing unit residents’ tendency to return surveys at a higher rate. Additionally, younger people, people of lower socioeconomic status and those who rent their housing respond at a lower rate than do older people, people of higher socioeconomic status and those who own their housing. Many of these variables are intercorrelated (e.g., younger people are more likely to rent than older people), so by oversampling the multi-family housing, it increases the chances of receiving surveys from those who live in this type of housing.

An individual within each household was randomly selected to complete the survey using the birthday method. The birthday method selects a person within the household by asking the “person whose birthday has most recently passed” to complete the questionnaire. The underlying assumption in this method is that day of birth has no relationship to the way people respond to surveys. This instruction was contained in the cover letter accompanying the questionnaire.

Survey Administration and Survey Response

Each selected household was contacted three times. First, a prenotification announcement was sent, informing the household members that they had been selected to participate in the survey. Approximately one week after mailing the prenotification, each household was mailed a survey containing a cover letter signed by the mayor enlisting participation. The packet also contained a postage-paid return envelope in which the survey recipients could mail the completed questionnaire directly to NRC. A link was provided on the cover letters for residents to complete the survey online. A reminder letter and survey, scheduled to arrive one to two weeks after the first survey, was the final contact. The second cover letter asked those who had not completed the survey to do so and those who had already done so to refrain from turning in another survey. A number identifying the subcommunity was placed on each survey.

The cover letter was double-sided, with the English version on the front and the Spanish version on the back. The Spanish version of the cover letter explained what was in the packet, and encouraged recipients to find an English-speaking friend or family member to help them complete the survey in English, and provided instructions on how to complete a Spanish version of the survey online.

The mailings were sent in January 2014. About 4% (121) of the 3,017 surveys mailed were returned because the housing unit was vacant or the postal service was unable to deliver the survey as addressed. Of the 2,896 households presumed to have received a survey, 785 completed the survey, providing a response rate of 27%. This is a good response rate; typical response rates for a mailed resident survey range from 20% to 40%. A total of 83 of the 785 surveys were completed online. Please refer to the table below for response rates by subcommunity.

*11 surveys did not have an area identification.

Additional surveys were collected through special outreach efforts with the youth of Boulder and the immigrant community. These questionnaires were nearly identical to the community survey questionnaire. As these surveys were not collected through the scientific sampling method, these results are kept separate from the community survey and can be found under separate cover (see Boulder Community Survey 2014 Supplemental Report).

95% Confidence Intervals

The 95% confidence interval (or “margin of error”) quantifies the “sampling error” or precision of the estimates made from the survey results. A 95% confidence interval can be calculated for any sample size, and indicates that in 95 of 100 surveys conducted like this one, for a particular item, a result would be found that is within ±4 percentage points of the result that would be found if everyone in the population of interest was surveyed. Other types of “error” such as non-response error may also influence or bias results (i.e. those who did not respond to the survey may have had different opinions about the issues covered than those who did respond). The 95% confidence interval around an average rating on the 0-100 scale based on all respondents typically will be no greater than plus or minus two points on the 100-point scale.

Data Entry, Weighting and Analysis

Once the surveys were received at NRC, staff assigned a unique identification number to each questionnaire. Additionally, each survey was reviewed and “cleaned” as necessary. For example, a question may have asked a respondent to pick two items out of a list of five, but the respondent checked three; NRC staff would choose randomly two of the three selected items to be coded in the dataset.

Once all surveys were assigned a unique identification number, they were entered into an electronic dataset. This dataset was subject to a data entry protocol of “key and verify,” in which survey data were entered twice into an electronic dataset and then compared. Discrepancies were evaluated against the original survey form and corrected. “Range checks” (examination of the data for invalid values) as well as other forms of quality control were also performed. Data collected online are automatically stored electronically. Those data were downloaded and added to the mail survey data.

The demographic characteristics of the survey sample were compared to those found in the 2010 Census estimates and other population norms for the city of Boulder and were statistically adjusted, known as “weighting,” to reflect the larger population when necessary.¹ Generally, two variables are used in a weighting scheme. Characteristics chosen as weighting variables are normally selected because they are not in proportion to what is shown in a jurisdiction’s demographic profile and because differences in opinion are observed between subgroups of these characteristics. Survey results were weighted by sex and age (see Table 178 on the next page).

¹ An example of how weighting works may be helpful. Hypothetically, suppose the population norm for gender was 50%/50% but 70% of the surveys received were from females and 30% were from males. The weights applied to make the sample representative of the population would be 0.7143 females (thereby giving each response less weight in the overall ratings) and 1.6667 for males (giving each response more weight overall). If it is further supposed that these two groups had very different ratings of the importance of a recreation center; with a much greater proportion of females feeling a recreation center was important (hypothetically, that 80% of females felt it was “essential” or “very important” than males (hypothetically, 40%). Since in this scenario there are more responses from females, if the results were NOT weighted, a recreation center would be deemed more important than if the data were weighted. The unweighted percent rating a new recreation center as at least very important would be 68% (80x70%+40x30%), while the weighted percent would be 60% (80x50%+40x50%).

Characteristic	Percent in Population	Percent in Sample	Weight	Unweighted Rating of Importance		Weighted Rating of Importance
Females	50%	70%	0.7143 (50%÷70%)	80%	x 70% = 56%	80%	x 70% x 0.7143 = 40%

The electronic dataset was analyzed by NRC staff using the statistical software software IBM SPSS™, often known as the Statistical Package for the Social Sciences. For the most part, frequency distributions and mean ratings are presented in the body of the report. A complete set of frequencies for each survey question is presented in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey.

Also included are selected survey results by subcommunity (Appendix C: Selected Results by Subcommunity) and by respondent characteristics (Appendix D: Selected Results by Demographic Subgroups). Chi-square or ANOVA tests of significance were applied to these breakdowns of selected survey questions. A “p-value” of 0.05 or less indicates that there is less than a 5% probability that differences observed between groups are due to chance; or in other words, a greater than 95% probability that the differences observed in the selected categories of the sample represent “real” differences among those populations. Where differences between subgroups are statistically significant, they have been marked with grey shading in the appendices.

Comparing Survey Results to Other Communities

Although responses to many of the evaluative or frequency questions were made on four- or five-point scales with 1 representing the best rating, the scales had different labels (e.g., “very good,” “strongly agree,” “essential”). To make comparisons easier, many of the results in this summary are reported on a common scale where 0 is the worst possible rating and 100 is the best possible rating. If everyone reported “very good,” then the result would be 100 on the 0-100 scale. If the average rating for quality of life was right in the middle of the scale (“neither good nor bad”), then the result would be 50. The new scale can be thought of like the thermometer used to represent total giving to United Way. The higher the thermometer reading, the closer to the goal of 100 – in this case, the most positive response possible. The 95% confidence interval around a score on the 0-100 scale based on all respondents typically will be no greater than plus or minus two points on the 100-point scale.

An average rating of 75 for service quality is at the “good” mark on a 100-point scale that goes from “very bad” to “very good.” Few services actually receive ratings as high as 75 on the scale, in part, because certain kinds of services tend to be thought less well of by residents in many communities across the country. Police protection tends to be better received than pothole repair by residents of most American cities. Where possible, the better comparison is not from one service to another in Boulder, but from Boulder services to services like them provided by other jurisdictions. In addition, comparisons to previous survey results are also shown. Some survey data date back to 1987; other data have shorter trendlines.

NRC’s National Benchmark Database

NRC has been leading the strategic use of surveys for local governments since 1991, when the principals of the company wrote the first edition of what became the classic text on citizen surveying. In Citizen Surveys: How to do them, how to use them, what they mean, published by ICMA, not only were the principles for quality survey methods articulated, NRC pioneered both the idea of benchmark data for citizen opinion and the method for gathering benchmark data. This was called “In Search of Standards,” and argued for norms. “What has been missing from a local government’s analysis of its survey results is the context that school administrators can supply when they tell parents how an 80 percent score on the social studies test compares to test results from other school systems...”

NRC’s database of comparative resident opinion is comprised of resident perspectives gathered in citizen surveys from approximately 500 jurisdictions whose residents evaluated local government services. Conducted with typically no fewer than 400 residents in each jurisdiction, opinions are intended to represent over 30 million Americans. NRC has innovated a method for quantitatively integrating the results of surveys that we have conducted with those that others have conducted. The integration methods have been described thoroughly in Public Administration Review, Journal of Policy Analysis and Management and in the first book on conducting and using citizen surveys written by principals of NRC. Scholars who specialize in the analysis of citizen surveys regularly have relied on this work (e.g., Kelly, J. & Swindell, D. (2002). Service quality variation across urban space: First steps towards a model of citizen satisfaction, Journal of Urban Affairs, 24, 271-288.; Van Ryzin, G., Muzzio, D., Immerwahr, S., Gulick, L. & Martinez, E. (2004). Drivers and consequences of citizen satisfaction: An application of the American Customer Satisfaction Index Model to New York City, Public Administration Review, 64, 331-341). The method described in those publications is refined regularly and statistically tested on a growing number of citizen surveys in our proprietary databases.

NRC’s work on calculating national norms for resident opinions about service delivery and quality of life won the Samuel C. May award for research excellence from the Western Governmental Research Association.

The Role of Comparisons

Normative comparisons are used for benchmarking. Jurisdictions use the comparative information to help interpret their own citizen survey results, to create or revise community plans, to evaluate the success of policy or budget decisions, to measure local government performance. It is difficult to know what is small or tall without comparing. Taking the pulse of the community has little meaning without knowing what pulse rate is too high and what is too low. When surveys of service satisfaction turn up “good” evaluations, jurisdictions need to know how others rate their services to understand if “good” is good enough. Furthermore, in the absence of national or peer community comparisons, a jurisdiction is left with comparing its fire protection rating to its street maintenance rating. That comparison is unfair. Streets always lose to fire. More important and harder questions need to be asked; for example, how do residents’ ratings of fire service compare to opinions about fire service in other communities?

A police department that provides the fastest and most efficient service—one that closes most of its cases, solves most of its crimes and keeps the crime rate low—still has a problem to fix if the residents in the community it intends to protect believe services are not very good compared to ratings given by residents to their own objectively “worse” departments. The normative data can help that police department – or any city department – to understand how well citizens think it is doing. NRC recommends that citizen opinion be used in conjunction with other sources of data about budget, personnel and politics to help managers know how to respond to comparative results.

Jurisdictions in the benchmark database are distributed geographically across the country and range from small to large in population size. Comparisons may be made to subsets of jurisdictions (within a given region or population category). Most commonly (including in this report), comparisons are made to the entire database. Despite the differences in jurisdiction characteristics, all are in the business of providing local government services to residents. Although individual jurisdiction circumstances, resources and practices vary, the objective in every community is to provide services that are so timely, tailored and effective that residents conclude the services are of the highest quality. High ratings in any jurisdiction, like SAT scores in any teen household, bring pride and a sense of accomplishment.

Comparison of Boulder to the Benchmark Database

Benchmark comparisons have been provided when similar questions on the Boulder Community Survey are included in NRC’s database and there are at least five jurisdictions in which the question was asked, though most questions are compared to more than 100 jurisdictions. Where comparisons are available, Boulder results are noted as being “higher” than the benchmark, “lower” than the benchmark or “similar to” the benchmark. In instances where ratings are considerably higher or lower than the benchmark, these ratings have been further demarcated by the attribute of “much,” (for example, “much less” or “much above”). This evaluation of “higher,” “lower” or “similar to” comes from a statistical comparison of Boulder’s rating to the benchmark (the average rating from all the comparison jurisdictions where a similar question was asked). Differences of more than three points on the 100-point scale between Boulder’s ratings and the average based on the appropriate comparisons from the database are considered “statistically significant,” and thus are marked as “higher” or “lower” than the benchmark. When differences between Boulder’s ratings and the national benchmarks are two points or less, they are marked as “similar to” the benchmark. These benchmark comparisons have been provided where available in Appendix A: All Results from Community Survey.

Dear Boulder Resident:

We want to hear from you! Your household has been randomly selected to participate in the 2014 Boulder Community Survey. The City of Boulder is providing you with this important opportunity to tell us what you think of our service delivery and how you view the quality of life in Boulder. Your participation in this process is very important.

To get a representative sample of people living in the Boulder, this questionnaire should be completed by the adult (anyone 18 years or older) in your household who most recently had a birthday. That person's year of birth does not matter, as long as he or she is 18 years of age or older.

Please have this person take a few minutes to answer all the questions and return the survey in the enclosed postage-paid envelope to National Research Center, Inc., the organization compiling the survey results (2955 Valmont Road, Suite 300, Boulder, CO 80301).

Answers to the survey questions will help the Boulder City Council make decisions that affect our community and will provide crucial information that will help the city serve you in the best way possible.

If you prefer, you may complete the survey online at: www.n-r-c.com/survey/boulder1.htm

If you do not have Internet access at home, and do not wish to complete the enclosed paper version of the survey, you can use a computer for free at one of the Boulder Public Library locations at:

Main Library
1001 Arapahoe Avenue

George Reynolds Branch
3595 Table Mesa Drive

Meadows Branch
4800 Baseline Road

Your responses will remain completely anonymous; none of your answers can be linked to who you are. Responses will be reported in summary form only.

If you have any questions about this survey, please contact Patrick von Keyserling, the city's communication manager, at (303) 441-4959.

You will notice that several of the question sets on the survey are grouped into categories. These categories are used in planning and budgeting as desired community outcomes to ensure that the city thrives now and into the future. The category titles describe a community that is or has:

- good governance
- accessible and connected
- economic vitality
- environmentally sustainable
- healthy and socially thriving
- safe
- livable

The survey analysis and results will be included in a report that will be submitted to the City Council in spring 2014. The report will be available on the city's Web site at www.bouldercolorado.gov and hard copies also will be available at the Main Library or any branch for the public to read.

We are very excited about this survey and look forward to receiving your feedback. Your participation in this process will help us to continue to make Boulder a great place to live, work and visit.

Sincerely,

Matthew Appelbaum
Mayor

La Ciudad de Boulder le está brindando esta importante oportunidad para decirnos lo que usted piensa se los servicios que presta y cómo usted ve la calidad de la vida en Boulder. Su participación en este proceso es muy importante.

Para tomar una muestra representativa de las personas que viven en el Valle de Boulder, el cuestionario debe ser completado por el adulto (cualquiera mayor de 18 años de edad) de su hogar que haya celebrado su cumpleaños más recientemente. El año de nacimiento de esta persona no es importante, siempre y cuando él o ella tenga 18 años de edad o sea mayor.

Las respuestas a las preguntas de esta encuesta ayudarán al Concejo Municipal de la Ciudad de Boulder a tomar decisiones que afectan a nuestra comunidad y nos proporcionarán información importante que nos ayudará a servirle de la mejor manera posible.

Si usted no puede completar la encuesta anexa en Inglés, usted puede pedirle a un amigo o familiar que lo ayude y la regrese en el sobre pre-pagado que se anexa.

Usted también puede tomar la encuesta en Español en línea. Visite www.n-r-c.com/survey/boulderSpanish

Dear Boulder Resident:

About a week ago, you should have received a copy of the enclosed City of Boulder Community Survey. Please disregard this letter if you have already completed the survey and returned it.

If no one from your household has had an opportunity to complete the survey, we would appreciate it if you would do so now. We want to understand what people who live in Boulder think of the quality of services provided by the city government and what they like or do not like about living in Boulder.

To get a representative sample of people living in Boulder, this questionnaire should be completed by the adult (anyone 18 years or older) in your household who most recently had a birthday. That person's year of birth does not matter, as long as he or she is 18 years of age or older.

Please have this person take a few minutes to answer all the questions and return the survey in the enclosed postage-paid envelope to National Research Center, Inc., the organization compiling the survey results (2955 Valmont, Suite 300, Boulder, CO 80301).

If you prefer, you may complete the survey online at: www.n-r-c.com/survey/boulder1.htm

If you have any questions about this survey, please contact Patrick von Keyserling, the city's communication manager, at (303) 441-4959.

You will notice that several of the question sets on the survey are grouped into categories. These categories are used in planning and budgeting as desired community outcomes to ensure that the city thrives now and into the future. The category titles describe a community that is or has:

- good governance
- accessible and connected
- economic vitality
- environmentally sustainable
- healthy and socially thriving
- safe
- livable

The survey analysis and results will be included in a report that will be submitted to the City Council in late 2011. The report will be available on the city's Web site at www.bouldercolorado.gov and hard copies also will be available at the Main Library or any branch for the public to read.

We are very excited about this survey and look forward to receiving your feedback. Your participation in this process will help us to continue to make Boulder a great place to live, work and visit.

Sincerely,

Matthew Appelbaum
Mayor

Supplemental Report

Appendix H: Selected Results by Survey Type	2
Appendix I: Results from Youth Survey	18
Appendix J: Results from Immigrant Survey	43
Appendix K: Survey Responses from CU Students.....	63
Appendix L: Results from “Open” Web survey.....	85

APPENDIX H: SELECTED RESULTS BY SURVEY TYPE

The tables in this appendix compare the results of the mailed “scientific” community survey (found in the main report of results) with the results from the open web survey (690 respondents), the youth survey (195 respondents), the immigrant survey (34 respondents) and with results from CU students who responded to the mailed survey or the open web survey (78 respondents). “Don’t know” responses have been removed from these results, so that the information displayed is representative of only those who had an opinion about each item. When referring to Appendix I: Results from Youth Survey, Appendix J: Results from Immigrant Survey, Appendix K: Survey Responses from CU Students and Appendix L: Results from “Open” Web survey, please note that the results do include “don’t know” responses and are representative of all survey respondents, (those who had an opinion, and those that did not) instead of only those who had an opinion.

In general terms, more similarities emerged when comparing survey results across each of the survey types. A variety of notable differences include the following:

- Open web survey respondents typically had lived in Boulder longer than respondents to the scientific community survey, immigrant survey, youth survey and CU student respondents.
- Immigrant survey respondents felt a higher sense of safety from wildland fires compared to survey respondents from the other types of surveys. Open web survey respondents felt less safe in the Municipal Campus/Main Library area during the day and open web and scientific community survey respondents felt less safe in these areas at night compared to immigrant, youth and CU student survey respondents. Youth and immigrant survey respondents felt safer on multi-use paths.
- Immigrant survey respondents and CU student respondents reported using a high frequency transit network bus, an RTD bus in Boulder, a bus between Boulder and Denver more often than respondents from other survey types along with commuting to work by bicycle.
- As expected, CU students were more likely to have visited the University Hill Business district and nearly all survey respondents, regardless of survey type, had visited the Pearl Street Mall in the last 12 months.
- Open web survey respondents and immigrant survey respondents were twice as likely as scientific survey respondents to have used services or facilities of the Senior Centers.
- Far fewer CU students had composted food or yard waste through a curbside collection program and most or all respondents of each type of survey had recycled.
- Few survey respondents regardless of survey type had attended a public meeting or a City Council meeting, however more open web survey respondents had attended these compared to respondents from other survey types.
- Youth survey respondents and CU students were more pleased with the overall direction the city is taking and indicated being less informed about major issues in the city of Boulder compared to the scientific and open web survey respondents. Immigrant and youth survey respondents were more likely to feel included in Boulder.
- Significantly more open web survey respondents gave high quality ratings to the assistance given to businesses to keep them in Boulder, attracting and retaining affordable shopping opportunities and the retention and expansion of quality jobs in Boulder compared to the scientific survey respondents. When looking at these items through the lens of importance, scientific survey respondents felt the retention and expansion of quality jobs in Boulder was more important compared to the open web survey respondents and the open web survey respondents felt attracting and retaining affordable shopping opportunities and assistance to businesses to keep them in Boulder were more important.

- CU students tended to give lower ratings of importance for most services related to children, youth, seniors, low-income and affordable housing programs.
- Scientific survey respondents gave higher quality ratings to police response to community problems or needs, flood or natural hazard education, and crime prevention compared to open web survey respondents and both survey types gave similar importance ratings to these services.
- Open web survey respondents were more likely to use the City of Boulder Web site to obtain information about the city while immigrant survey respondents were more likely to use the Colorado Daily, Boulder County Business report, inserts in the water utility bill and mailings to their home address.

Question 5: Do you have any specific comments about your quality ratings for these programs and services?

- Animal control does a good job
- Bound is late a lot at night.
- Busses are horrible and i feel uneasy
- Classes at the rec center are often full or inaccessible due to demand.
- Especially in regards to the environmental category, improvement is needed. Specifically, steps should be taken to measure the success and failure of laws based on quantitative results rather than things just sounding good.

- Good quality services
- Have affordable bus passes
- I barely see policemen on pearl at night when it gets scary to be a woman w all the homeless men
- I believe there needs to be more attention to housing issues... homelessness, low income housing availability, ongoing rent assistance.
- I don't like it in boulder
- I feel that there have been bills passed recently (i.e. the ban on smoking around the library) that have been targeted towards the homeless to move them away from sight but none to really help alleviate the problem.
- I just moved here, thus I'm not an expert
- I think that incorporating more art around the city is good because it makes the environment better
- I think that most of these programs are great for the youth because of its many activities that teens are being involved in
- I think the city needs a performance hall that's not huge like Mackey or small like the dairy center
- Improve lighting at crosswalks
- its good
- library needs improvement, very few books left / more public art/ student involvement in the art community
- Make the bus driver nicer
- More buses
- Nay
- New skate park
- No
- No
- No
- None
- Nope.
- Not all the programs that boulder makes are usually really good
- Please make the area surrounding the Main Boulder Public Library a more safe and enjoyable area. This area is known among many high school students as a place to purchase drugs.
- Police seem too preoccupied with teenagers.
- Police training with special needs and the mentally ill
- Skatepark
- Some recreation centers need to build more room for kick boxing or whatever instead of kicking people out of the basketball courts.
- The Boulder Police have a good presence at Fairview high school. The school resources officers who both protect and counsel are great at their job. I also appreciate the police presence on the Hill.
- The bridge is a non profit, coffee house being started with a vision to be a fun place for high schoolers
- The city needs to address homelessness in a rehab. Manner, please increase housing services.
- The hill is a fun place to hang out. Pearl St. Is scary at night
- The SKIP tends to come irregularly during the morning hours, where the bus that arrives downtown is bogged down and thus arrives late. This congestion leads me to either get to the bus stop much earlier than should be necessary or not take the bus from South Boulder.
- There are only a select number of teens who are actively involved in their communities, try recruiting more.

- There's so much construction everywhere but some streets have a lot of potholes that should be fixed
- we are all out of lemon pledge
- We need to get some more parks and fields for kids and sports opportunities
- yes

Question 6: Do you have any specific comments about your answers on the importance of these programs and services?

- Better traffic timing
- I believe, as previously stated that opportunities for the youth of Boulder are essential to create a safer and more connected and communal environment.
- I think having police around University Hill especially at night really helps to make the city safer
- If I could give an "especially essential" importance rating to "Acquiring open space lands," I would have.
- It is absolutely essential that city funding first is focused on necessities, (e.g. Road maintenance) before it is focused on salaries of employees promoting municipalization or open space
- its good
- Keep boulder centered around the outdoors and protecting the environment
- Less police fotolites and shootings
- More buses in less populace neighborhoods
- Nay
- no
- No
- No
- No
- no no I clean now
- none
- Nope.
- Not really.
- Public transportation is very important in the city of boulder
- Safety
- Services that directly help people should be a higher priority
- Sport facilities are essential and provide a great outlet for kids
- The bus system is very important for me as a youth without a car
- The difference between boulder and other communities is our open space and conservation/ecofriendly mentality. We need to conserve our land and keep boulder small and different
- They are important to me
- Very important
- Very important to have these services
- Very important
- Very simple as humans are dependent upon the planet, environmental services are essential
- We don't have much for it
- While there are many services for college students age 18-21 through both the University and the City, I find programs in the 14-17 age range lacking or provided by other nonprofits. I consider YOAB's support of these nonprofits through their grant making program essential.

- Pole dancing

Question 13: Do you have any other comments you would like to make?

- Better traffic timing Boulder does a great job at everything it tries to do!
- Boulder's the best
- First off, boulder meter maids are soulless people. Secondly parking at boulder high for students is a goddamn disgrace. And anywhere in the city in general especially for college and high school kids.
- good survey
- I am disappointed with the city's closed mindedness in regards to boulders energy future municipalization was the only option which was considered, not thought was given to options which were more economical, such as staying with excel but encouraging the building of a renewable energy solar and wind plant. The city's unprofessional behavior regarding this issue, especially their use of propaganda to spread exclusively their view points, is disappointing and makes me feel disenfranchised in my city government.
- i hate parking cops. Also, parking in the city is almost impossible. I am tired of seeing bums fights on the creek path every other day.
- I live in Louisville
- I love Boulder!
- I think boulder should have a fun safe place for teens to hang out on Friday/Saturday nights
- I think the city is doing a great job trying to encourage alternative forms of transportation. It would be very cool if Boulder followed through on the idea of providing free wireless.
- It's understandable that as a city survey, this instrument primarily measures are satisfaction with the city services. But this is a very limited view of the community quality and quality of life in Boulder. It would be very helpful if the survey also measured some aspects of social connectedness and social capital - the more experiential measures of belonging and social fit, Stronger focus on the issues of social class and affordability would be very much appreciated, since these issues perpetuate the insularity of Boulder (cultural, ethnic, and racial) and very much inform our sense of healthy community.
- Love the busses and the hospitals, more skip busses
- More money for schools, please. New Vista didn't have heat in a few rooms for a couple weeks. That wasn't fun.
- My main concern for the future of Boulder is the push to municipalize. I feel that going 200-400 million in debt, as opposed to negotiating with xcel, would be a misuse of city funds. I'm sure the benefits of putting that kind of money towards affordable housing, ending homelessness, or lowering taxes for small businesses.
- No
- No
- no
- Nope.
- Please address discrimination against Latin individuals and the homeless, that all.
- Thanks for creating this survey!
- The dance program is very good

APPENDIX L: RESULTS FROM "OPEN" WEB SURVEY

The tables in this section display the results from the "open" web survey. This survey effort was separate from the scientific mailed survey. A link was provided on the city of Boulder website. Several efforts were made to publicize the availability of the link, including emailing members of lists maintained by the city. A total of 650 surveys were completed.

Question 7: Do you have any other comments about the job that the City of Boulder is doing?

- I completely support the process of municipalization of power, the sooner the better. Would also like city provided internet service. Would like a requirement that all cable and satellite providers include the city tv channel in its lineup. Thanks for your service.
- 1) Driving while on the phone or texting should be outlawed and rules should be strongly enforced. It is too dangerous to be allowed. There needs to be a phone number that other drivers can call to report this (after pulling off reaching their destination or pulling off the road, of course.) 2) We desperately need mandatory registration, licensing (with license plates), rules and regulations for bicycles and strict enforcement. Every week I deal with bicycles going through stop signs, red lights, using no lights at night, riding 3-4 abreast, riding on sidewalks, riding on trails. As a driver I would get ticketed for doing these things, but I have never seen a cyclist get stopped. There are no consequences for them, except when there is a death, at which time it is always the driver's fault. They ride while using cell phones, head phones, riding carrying their kids using cellphones with no lights, no helmets. I have barely missed cyclists I couldn't see, who were going through signs and lights. As a "good Boulder progressive" (yuk) I'm sick of this, and I'm not voting for any new taxes until the city and county do something about it. 3) Welcome Boulderites back to the city. Get rid of the parking procedures and reinstate meters. It is now it's impossible to do what needs to be done, unless you're initially willing to pay for time you may not need. So the city gets more revenue from parking tickets or unused minutes and it becomes progressively more inconvenient for citizens. While I used to frequent Pearl on a daily basis and could find most of the people I knew there, now I rarely go downtown (in my own city) because I know most of the businesses are chains, most of the people there are tourists, and parking will be a nightmare. The outdoor mall at 29th is so uninviting that I don't even think of shopping there only for movies. End up spending most of my money elsewhere.
- 1. backlog/delays on approving/issuing building permits right now (after flood) is hurting local business and economy. 2. i do not agree with restrictions being put in place regarding issuing liquor licenses. 3. wish housing developments were accompanied by more commercial development in close proximity to each other, to create neighborhood feel, and reduce reliance on car for transportation
- 1. I have read in the paper that our affordable housing program is unsustainable (why, I don't know). This alarms me greatly as for years I have been trying to save enough money to buy a permanent home in the program for my disabled son to live in after I die. He only knows Boulder; his only friends, doctors, and other needed services are here. I have similar concerns for myself and my friends as we reach retirement. After decades living and working in Boulder, will we be forced to leave because we can't downsize within the town we love? / 2. I would love to see Boulder municipalize cable and internet access like Longmont has. The cost of cable is crazy and the financial relief would be very helpful. / 3. The attitude of City departments involved in permitting building projects, both commercial and private, is horrid and offensive. It's the opposite of customer service. They habitually don't return phone calls or emails; don't do what they say they will, and deny (and make citizens pay for) their errors. In many cities you can get residential building permits and approvals within days. It used to be 6 weeks in Boulder; now it's often 6 months. I heard one employee actually say "It's only been 4 months." That is cosmic cluelessness about the huge, often prohibitive multiple costs these delays cause. It's unconscionable. / 4. A similar concern is the hostile attitude of OSMP towards the 1/3 of residents who have dogs. We are persona non grata, straight out. With all the happy talk about recreation and fitness in Boulder there is no appreciation of the fact that for many of us, a hike on Open Space with our green-tagged dogs is our #1 outdoor activity. Dogs are not pests; they coevolved with humans and are as much a part of nature as we are. OSMP is overfunded and their attitude of entitlement is ridiculous. Are we a city or a subsidiary of the Audubon Society? / 5. I voted for municipalization of our utilities but have grave concerns that we could respond to large-scale problems effectively. The day after the Four Mile/Sunshine wildfire my friend reported 22 Xcel trucks headed up Sunshine Canyon Drive. Their response after the floods was also good. They flubbed on communications in the effort to get the gas back on in Gunbarrel during the recent outage, but it was a huge job and they did okay.

How could Boulder possibly respond as well with only city resources? / 6. I want to give a giant thank you to the vast majority of city employees and Council members who work so hard to keep Boulder beautiful and running well. I can't imagine how tough it must be to field so many complaints and triage the concerns of varied interest groups and individuals. You do a great job. /

- A huge chasm continues to exist between what the city claims to be doing and what actually happens. Whether it's transients, building, land use and zoning rules, green energy, core city services, public input, etc., the city consistently talks a good game and misses the mark. Just today I was discussing micro-housing units with Michelle, the city's affordable housing person. Because our land use and zoning rules are so damn suburban, the very idea of real "inclusionary housing" is a bunch of BS. Instead people pay cash in lieu and ask for height variances and the cost of living continues to be artificially inflated. Our definition of progressive values is an oxymoron at best.
- Address housing. Now.
- should be more aggressive in urban planning (density) and transportation (few car trips):
- Appreciate closing of Central Park at night to vagrants. It is still a problem during the day with vagrants approaching and especially the uncontrolled dogs they have with them. All this makes for a very unsafe environment.
- As a Boulder native, I have watched the city government become more and more insular. The government is not open to diverse viewpoints and is not inclusive. As a true liberal (who has spent time in liberal areas of the county), I find Boulder city government dogmatic, often taking an "ends justifies the means" approach and intolerant of difference. There is a lack of concern with social justice issues, appropriate flood recovery resources and a singular obsession with Boulder's energy future. The city government is also extremely arrogant, always thinking that it can do things better than others and that the entire world is watching Boulder. While historically Boulder has done many things well (e.g., open space, parks, recreation, etc.), I am concerned that we have become a rigid, hypocritical community. Allow different voices to be heard and do not demonize people who have varied priorities. The City should focus on the basic, core functions and social justice issues.
- As a parent, 2yo and 4 yo, I won't take my children to the main library or the bike path in that region because there are too many homeless people and the areas are generally unsanitary.
- As a parent, I find it extremely frustrating that important meetings are often held during prime family time. It is very expensive and difficult for parents to find childcare to attend meetings. I would love it if you found innovative ways for more people to stay connected to their governments. Things like: make all meetings recorded and webcasted, allow meetings to be viewed at another time via web, solicit questions and feedback during meetings live via the internet and before the meeting via email etc, and/or provide childcare so lower income parents can attend in person.
- As a person who moved in order to pursue my Ph.D., I feel cut off from city life by my membership in the campus community.
- At times they seem obstructionist. The city workers can make things difficult because they have their agenda/work responsibilities and don't take time to think "why can I do to really help the person",
- At times, too much public process
- Better shopping in north Boulder geared to the aging population with big name stores like Sears, Penneys And Yes WAL-MART superstore. Big box stores are needed, you can start shopping in the morning put in a theater next to the stores and family dining and leave six hours later. This will leave cars off the road and tax dollars in Boulder
- Big fan of Matt Chasansky and the Boulder History Museum programs put together by Carol Taylor
- Boulder appears to be ruled by the rich and upper class and the middle class struggles to exist or be heard in city politics or decisions. After living here for 13 years, it feels less and less like "my city" and caters development and tax dollars to things they feel will enhance what the tourists and wealthy people moving to town want, not the real working class of Boulder.
- Boulder County road handling is very poor

- Boulder does an incredible job. I am impressed about how well it disseminates information and the effectiveness of city and state services,
- Boulder has an entrenched city government that is interested in serving its own needs ahead of the citizens. There is a can't do attitude instead of a can do attitude and important issues are simply not addressed.
- Boulder is doing a very poor job with handling the homeless related issues. Things only seem to be getting worse as Boulder continues to cater to the homeless/criminals here in the city. I like how the City Manager is placing laws that cannot really be policed(i.e. no smoking on mall / muni campus) in an effort to remove the bums from her view, instead of properly dealing with the issues and putting "police-able" laws into place. / Also, Boulder has been doing very poorly with handling snow removal as of late. There has been an increase in accidents and complaints here in the city, see the numerous Daily Camera articles about citizens complaining.
- Boulder is neglecting essential City services because they focus on agenda-driven, ideological and personal matters mostly because City Council is out of touch with reality. Boulder City staff follows this direction and kowtows to Council's whims. Boulder is also overstaffed and inefficient and does not use its funds wisely.
- Boulder is not very diverse. It's a rich white person's city and I am a rich white person. It is unusual to see a minority in Boulder. We also seem to have busy bodies who like to pass unnecessary laws controlling what we can and can not do. I moved my business here from Ohio two years ago. I am a Republican. In Ohio I didn't like to pay more taxes as I didn't see a return for the money. In Boulder I am willing to pay more taxes because everyday I see how my tax dollars are used. Boulder has something to teach the rest of US about taxes.
- Boulder needs to do a very good job at its current functions before taking on new responsibilities. I sold my beautiful home on the Hill last year, the Hill is a disaster waiting to happen in many areas. As a property owner I felt like a 2nd class citizen, the city did not adequately address rental/tenant/landlord issues, (the student ghetto is a disgrace) crime, trash, transportation and snow removal to start. Transportation is a big problem, construction everywhere, parking is difficult, just getting around is onerous. The over-emphasis on riding public transportation for in town commutes is just silly. My office is 3 miles from my home and 2 busses take over 45 minutes, if on time, and require about a mile of walking. And how is one supposed to run errands. Go home and get in the car? I could ride my bike to work, but not reasonable for professional work attire. How do we justify the empty buses for the bulk of the day? Finally, the unending signage is really ugly. Don't do this, don't do that.....when I visit other cities, I notice how much cleaner they look visually! Thanks for asking!
- Boulder needs to work on welcoming diversity by providing incentives for selfish rich, white people who have claimed this place as their own. I moved here 15 years ago and this was a different place--spiritual, open, welcoming (aside from welcoming communities of color, which also needs to be improved). Now, it's a bunch of young, rich, white people who are ridiculously out of touch with reality.
- Boulder tends to be prioritized based on economic considerations which often upset community members. / When things are done to improve community it helps the economy more than deliberate attempts to help the local economy.
- Boulder's Climate Action Plan is visionary, but to truly address climate change at a local scale Boulder must do even more to live up to its reputation as a trendsetting, model community. If sustainability is truly a goal of our city, we should be scheming big, like Hamburg: <http://www.bbc.com/future/story/20140204-can-a-city-really-go-car-free>
- Building codes are very restrictive, making it too expensive. Why aren't city council members involved in the arts at all? Love open space team, but I'd like to see more money to monitor open space use for fires, etc. Love their volunteer program.
- Building Department should speed up building permit review times. Provide stronger enforcement of rules on the mall, smoking, dogs, bikes / Sleeping in cars campers should be legal on public parking spots. Provide access to RV dump station water. even with a fee. / Bike theft enforcement and punishment should be more severe. Legalize prostitution in a safe and regulated manner - amsterdam.

- Can boulder as a utility respond as well as Excel. Am I going to be calling a city council member to come and fix my gas leak? Boulder acts so inclusive but deep down they don't like the lower class being able to survive in Boulder. Walmart was a step in the right direction. The city is working to penalize transients but it is looked down upon if businesses try to do the same to reduce the menace. Notice I said the new Boulder T word?
- City Council members do not listen to constituents concerns. Density is a bad idea. The 60,000 a day in car commuters to Boulder cause needless congestion and hostility on our roadways. Boulder is getting way to expensive for the average middle class person to live in and consequently it feels snobbish. If you want our great city to be freindly toward bicylists and pedestrians, the city ought to get more serious about transportation issues in and out of Boulder.
- City employees go out of their way to be disagreeable and obstructive.
- City employees have a reputation for being too comfortable in their jobs and have a strong good old boys network. Especially the planning dept which seems completely over funded compared to library's and rec centers. Also the parks maintenance dept crews have a reputation for landscaping their own yards, with Boulder parks materials. Under valued staff work at the library and rec centers and open space.
- City of Boulder needs to do more for displaced and homeless people. It would be great if they started by offering more mental health service channels. I live by the Homeless Shelter and the upcoming transitional housing community. I'm not scared about this development but I'm also not a fan of sexual predators using the shelter as an address. Crime rates in North Boulder have been increasing and it seems strange that such a high concentration of owner-occupied residences is also in the midst of trailer parks and homeless shelters. I also despise all of the new construction going on in NoBo. It's upsetting when the landscape changes and all of the new construction seems geared toward wealthy individuals and families. Not everyone in Boulder is wealthy but maybe that is Boulder's preference: that it be safe haven for wealthy people. Not a fan of new construction that caters to the rich or public services that don't help those who need it the most.
- City staff is too insulated from the community. There are primarily 1 or 2 stake holders who set agendas. It seems City Open Space has too much power. The housing decisions that are made give too much weight to affordable housing. An employed, middle class person with kids and a job that requires driving, has a tough time in this town.
- Consistently unreliable snow removal (from VG to poor) / quite substandard in access to quality golfing facilities... most limited in suburban Denver.. guess the game is not PC. / Valmont park development has been at a snails pace.... should be a centerpiece for recreational excellence, be more inviting including improved and denser ornamental vegetation with tree cover and shade for relaxation and contemplation. / Council tends toward upper-middle cliqueiness, which promotes a tunnel view of what the full spectrum of residents value. Despite these critical observations, Boulder is a very good place to live and work and play, but fails to achieve excellence in several respects owing to a somewhat politicized or formularized views in decision-making circles. /
- continue to work on more affordable housing specifically for seniors.
- Council is grossly irresponsible in how money is spent. Waste a fortune on foolish social programs with no benefit. City staff is grossly overstaffed.
- Create bike only trails within the county and create more connectivity with current trail networks for bikes. There's too much travel by car or roadway. We need trails!
- Create one homepage to go for status or information by listing links to more detailed websites
- Do I agree/disagree with that Boulder is responsive to residents and businesses is two questions that can be further divided into small business, big businesses, and renters or and home owners.. Will you please stop allowing "fluoride" in our water supply.! City of Boulder should do something to regulate the outrageous cost of home repairs esp. furnaces and plumbing companies that take advantage of people by taking their furnaces apart then asking for an outrageous sum of money to fix the furnace.
- Don't like the changes to the green tag program for dogs

- During the Flood Channel 8 - did not give any information at all - such as limit your water use and emergency responses. I did not even hear about limiting water use to keep the sewers from backing up until Sunday and that was finally on 7 news.
- Electoral system is gamed by PLAN-Boulder to allow their Board to run the city. Democracy in Boulder is a farce, with one party rule for over 40 years. Public input and hearings are a facade when the decision making process is already pre-determined, like with the outcome on the homeless shelter at Lee Hill Rd. There's an unending stream of more regulations, more taxes, from city government, a constant over-reaching to modify behavior from the control freaks at PLAN-Boulder. Work on improving democracy and the electoral system to allow for a more independent and accountable city council.
- Employers need to increase pay and benefits for their employees. Service industry pays horrible in this town. / The schools should have more community support. / Teenagers have nowhere to go in this town. There are no commercial businesses offering a place for teenagers to hang out, there use to be bowling alleys, rollerskating rinks, etc.
- Feel that Boulder (esp City Council) spends too much time and $$ responding to few people who make the most noise and ignores the larger issues. Gets too involved in the weeds and doesn't look at the view from 30,000 feet.
- Flood planning and response was very good. Municipal utility issue seems way too expensive, time-consuming, risky, arrogant. I have stopped paying attention. People on west side of town should not have to pay extra for bear proof trash cans. If City wants to require them, City should subsidize extra cost. Otherwise, it is a tax on property owners in required areas.
- Generally speaking, Boulder's policies and actions appear to be geared towards the wishes and desires of certain interest groups within the city while ignoring many problems that regular residents of the city face day-to-day. I know more about the story of the Mapleton Elk (which was disappointing and yes, the employees responsible should have been punished, but in reality impacted a tiny, tiny, tiny group of Boulder residents) and less about for example, what the city plans to do to alleviate the ridiculous congestion on 28th Street (great, build more condos and apartments at Boulder Junction for our non-existent train - that will help!). We are all here for a reason and we love Boulder, but frequently the city's priorities seem a bit off from the average resident who, because of work, life, families, etc. doesn't have time to anguish over a statue for an elk but are directly or indirectly impacted by the policies of the city. In other words, continue to work harder to make things easier for the working people of Boulder to (A) stay informed and (B) participate in our government.
- get rid of Tom Carr and stop holding back recreational marijuana. Stop running meetings until after midnight.
- Great. Just please slow the rate of rent on Pearl Street and other places so that interesting family and unique businesses are not all replaced by chain stores, that reduces cultural flavor and diversity
- Group and committees, including City Council, have a tendency to over-intellectualize issues to the point of non-action. There needs to be more balance between analytical discussion and practical application. I also don't think they understand how to prioritize at times. For example, the lack of snow plowing in Boulder has been criticized often. This is not just a convenience issues, but a safety one. They should be plowing the slush daily so it will not refreeze into ice sheets and potholes.
- Have heard talk about a proposed non-profit creative reuse center. Seems like a good fit for Boulder; seems odd we don't have one.
- Have to address the major issue that the city is overrun with transients and panhandlers. Need to make the city more family friendly so families do not leave for east county. Need to rid the library and municipal area of bums who break laws, harass women and girls, smoke, urinate and defecate in creek, etc.
- Herding cats is never an easy business.
- Housing for the middle class is, for me, the biggest problem in Boulder. I make a good salary but cannot afford to buy here. I make a little bit too much for affordable housing programs but not enough to buy a market rate home or condo. Most new developments are luxury and very expensive (North Boulder, Peleton...). Also, I do not feel the new complexes reflect the small city character of Boulder. They are tending to be very modern and urban; I didn't move to Boulder to live in an urban loft or high-end luxury condo. I would live in a big city for that. Central Boulder prices are through the roof partly because they have the only homes with real character. Even multi-unit housing can have warm character, but a fortress like The Peleton does not.

- I absolutely do like the direction the city is taking to accommodate more residents. Squeezing in more inappropriate projects (Baseline/27th) is a terrible idea from so many angles. In-fill is unacceptable, crowded, traffic issues. We will NEVER be able to accommodate all the people who wish to live here and the sooner we accept that, the sooner we can go on. It adversely affects the folks who already live here and pay a premium to do so. Council and Planning board are killing the Golden Goose.
- I am a 23 year Boulder Resident, Things are changing a lot and some changes are not desirable. The dense infill while well intentioned if you buy the argument makes for unpleasant surroundings and boring architecture. But the middle income people can buy in at least. The high rise luxury condos are despicable. Concrete canyons with half of the units being empty. This was a travesty and those who oversaw the process ought to be ashamed. The 'feel' of Boulder was at stake and their willingness to allow the developers to dictate planning is what we get. The same planners end up on City Council and the process continues to date. More hideous, ostentatious development coming to a street near you. Another beef has to do with transportation and gridlock. I bike nearly everywhere, year round. A great place to ride but the proportion of neo-boulderites who use bikes as transportation as opposed to toys is a serious concern. The willingness to tolerate and encourage the car culture is perhaps our gravest risk. In commuters, angry, rushed and in now way bought in to the Boulder Way take over each day. And we pave over to provided them with parking. No wonder so few ride bikes. No wonder more do not. This impacts every facet of our quality of life to the core. Worse, the latest arrivals bring their car culture bad habits with them and we all pay the price. Safety on the bike, congestion, smog, anger, frustration...I have neighbors who EACH come and go daily five times in the car. My battery goes dead I use my car so infrequently. So. People are who they are and I suggest a focus on kids as adults do not accept change easily, especially when it includes sacrifice. Sadly we could be a Copenhagen or an Amsterdam but the buy in here is overblown and our actual collective willingness to consider, really consider biking as a daily form of transportation with all of it's benefits is negligible. Meanwhile I appreciate having the system largely to myself this time of year. Despite rather lousy winter maintenance. Again, no wonder people are reluctant. The risks this season have been terrible. Everyone is crashing, If you left the roads like the paths traffic would stop. Bike lanes filled with refrozen mag chloride slush do not cut it. Some of the core Boulder values are being lost. People arriving today want something other than what drew people here 20 or 40 years ago. Back to kids stop by any school at letout and watch the moms (and dads) hovering waiting to drive their kids around. THE worst traffic jams can be found there. Shared values. Shared sacrifice? Not really.. Car culture, big greedy homes, gridlock, I think the City is largely well intentioned but everything I am raving about is contingent upon individuals making decisions taking others into account. Not the way of the world presently. My wife says she can't change her behavior much less somebody else's so that is it. I lived in Aspen way back there and any number of phenomenon that transformed that place are in play here in Boulder. The billionaires pushing out the millionaires as they say. I am a common person working for the government., We are an endangered species at this point. Keep trying!
- I am a resident in the cit of Boulder for over 30 years. The city has been made a wonderful jewel that I enjoy. At a certain point, it's time for the city to put the focus on the infrastructure and services that keep our city solid, connected and accessible. I think the city should focus on paving mountain roads, take care of services like police and firemen and take a primary look at what needs to be structured, reinforced and make way for a sustained future. I think the flood was handled magnificently and concerns are being addressed. Continue that and take care of the roads. It needs to be an inclusive city.
- I am concerned about the lack of the city manager and city attorney's support for the Open Space program. I am concerned about the lack of interest by some City Council members for sustainability measures for Open Space. Open Space is one of the most vital resources for our community.

- I am disappointed at how the homeless population is handled in the city. Illegal camps all along the bike path and OSMP, trash, fires, drugs, multiple assaults, and other violent/non violent crimes. Beggars on every corner of ever increasing street corners, hanging out on the mall, and draining the community of resources without "putting in" anything while most admittedly have no desire or intention of changing lifestyle. Its to the point where I no longer feel comfortable or safe walking with my family along the creek and to the main library and enjoying the would otherwise be nice features of our community. Not sure what the solution is but the current situation is not acceptable. Thanks for a chance to give input.
- I am disappointed to see so much new construction in Boulder (particularly buildings that are well beyond the height of surrounding buildings) while so many buildings sit empty. I am disappointed that the City of Boulder is not interested in standing up for those being affected by the train noise. Boulder has become Boulder, California, with strip malls, chain stores, traffic, and no place for the middle class.
- I am disgusted by the amount of building going on in this city. Why? Do we need the taxes, growth? I DON'T THINK SO. Why must every empty lot need to be developed?? TO PROVIDE WORK FOR THE CITY PLANNING STAFF? Why can't we stop the downtown from looking like most other downtowns? More 4-5 story building corridors? STOP THE GROWTH. Why do it?
- I am generally happy with the job the city council and other governmental boards are doing to preserve the quality of life in Boulder. However, I am absolutely dismayed at 1) all the multi-use construction projects being approved (such as that for the replacement of the Camera Bldg.), 2) the height limitations for these new constructions are too high...views of the foothills are systematically disappearing all through Boulder. The "managed growth" paradigm should already have evolved into a "preservation/sustainability" model. With the ongoing influx of new Boulderites into the newly available housing units, the traffic is becoming increasingly "big city" congested...and irritating. And will only get worse the more housing that becomes available. Also, why doesn't Boulder (or Boulder + Boulder Co.) move towards buying that large property just south of town on the west side of 93? In conclusion, I believe "growth" in Boulder should be coming to a managed end, with "sustainability" and preservation of the current quality of life becoming the established paradigm and the city's overarching goal.
- I am only deeply concerned and maybe ashamed of our city's approach to the issue of transients and homeless people on the city campus and elsewhere. I understand the problems they create, but with insufficient alternatives to offer, I fear all we are doing is pushing the problem elsewhere. These people are our people too and something must be done to creatively address this problem. I certainly will welcome the addition of something like urban vertical farms or farming on city open space, cottage industries and other venues for gainfully employing those who could participate; Habitat for Humanity projects; programs to assist the elderly; and any such thing that could create a sense of belonging and usefulness to restore self-esteem to as many as possible. For those who cannot or will not participate, more opportunity for day programs and night time housing that can help them with rehabilitation. This is such an important matter and a terrible stain upon the good name of Boulder.
- I am vehemently opposed to the city taking over xcel duties as a utility vendor. Snow plows are really pathetic in this city and downright embarrassing, the rest of us watch the weather, why can't that dept.? The bagged dog poop on the trails is a ridiculous policy as no one picks them up on their way out, au natural would be preferable. The city does do a good job with our rec centers and programs. Unfortunately the city tends to use the Daily Camera as a public notice and many of us don't buy that publication, so I end up hearing about important things by word of mouth.
- I am very concerned about LOCAL issues and I think it's appropriate for the City Council to do the same. It drives me crazy that some of our council members are only interested in international and national issues when we have serious problems right here in Boulder. The transients must go, snow removal is terrible, we are squandering money on municipalization when it could be used for flood victims. Same with our open space trail system...is there enough money to repair them after the flood? What plans does the city have to mitigate these floods in the future? Where's the money coming from for that? Is there enough money for policing and the training that comes with that? I believe we could do a better job of helping out non-profits. / / / We don't need "personalities" on the city council. We need people who really listen to the public and work on issues that may not be sexy but very necessary to achieving a safe community.

- i am very disappointed in all the building that is going on around the city. we don't need any more 'high rise' buildings, and we definitely don't need any more condos. the 'carrying capacity' of our city can't sustain them. it seems ridiculous to spend time, money and energy on figuring out better forms of transportation, and greener ways of living, while encouraging a greater population density. we love boulder because of all the open space, but our living space - the city - is becoming unhealthy and not enjoyable to live in. i don't know who to blame for this... it is the ONLY thing about boulder that i dislike, but it is a BIG thing.
- I am very disappointed with the city in how it is handling the Excel issue, by not including the outlying community (ie Gunbarrel) residents in the vote, but expecting them to be included in the takeover. It seems that a few egotistical folks are trying to ram rod their ideas on the rest of us. The vote passed by such a small margin that it is obvious that about half of the community was not in favor of this, and if we had included the outlying residents it may not have passed. I think there are better ways of spending city tax dollars and money, for instance, on building more low income housing, or housing for the homeless. Spend the money on things that need fixing, and not something that is already working. "If it ain't broke, don't fix it" Which brings me to another issue. When we build housing for homeless, i think we could use more apartments with less space each, rather than less with more space. Build a 400 sf efficiency rather than one bedrooms. Better to get more off the street with smaller accomodations. 60 Minutes had a show on building for the homeless called "100,000 homes", which has worked very well. Let's spend our dollars on a project like that. One more comment. No one i know, including myself, likes the new architecture here in town. It looks very disjointed. I see that there is an application to tear down 1023 Walnut, which is a wonderfully designed brick building. I shudder to think what will be built in its place.
- I am very pleased to hear that steps are being taken to stop illegal activities on the municipal campus and near the library. As the parent of a high school student I believe the buying and selling of drugs and alcohol to minors and the trading of stolen goods that goes on in these locations is a devastating situation for our city and our youth. This is not about 'scruffy' people it is about crime and it must stop.
- I appreciate that the City Manager and City Council are considering the homeless issue. I would like city officials to consider the increased traffic in and out of Boulder in the mornings and evenings, as well as parking issues around lunchtime.
- I appreciate the City's affordable housing program. The staff are excellent. It is a good program, well-structured. I hope that the number of affordable units will continue to grow so that more people will make use of them.
- I believe that a comprehensive set of email or mailed surveys would demonstrate that a large number of Bolder citizens are skeptical about the municipal electric power program, the heavy focus on wind and solar power, the belief that people have a significant effect on climate, that bicycles are credible substitutions for autos, and that our land should be turned into prairie dog villages. Most of us have given up on getting any real support from the power elite, and I'm sure they don't care.
- I despise the "Hawkeye" crossings installed throughout the city in the past few years. They generate more congestion, environmental waste, and unsafe ped/bike crossings than anything else. There is literally no advantage to having them in place other than to give the contractors that built them $ for doing so. I'm also unconvinced of the commitment to a municipal utility based on morality rather than practicality. The city council thinks very highly of themselves and their ideas and it makes all of Boulder worse off. After 15 years as a resident and property owner, I am leaving.
- I dislike all the new tall buildings you are approving near Pearl Street Mall and 29th Street. The Pearl Street atmosphere is shrinking.
- I don't think we should be trying to build our own electric company. I think it would be an expensive mistake.

- I don't understand why corporations that absolutely do not reflect the values of Boulder, such as Walmart, are allowed to do business here.
- I expect Boulder to be a leading innovative city for all the reasons it can and should be, especially related to supporting healthy living, the environment, and social services. It could be a national model for all to look up to. However, I find the city leadership to be generally conservative, incremental, risk averse and not interested in being great. I sense a just maintain the status quo and get by because that is enough. We are able to get by because the population is largely well educated, upper class, and employed, yet we do not tap into how those gifts could make us great. I am especially underwhelmed with the city leadership - leadership is essentially a non-presence. I could not tell you what Boulder aspires to be or not. There is not a vision and voice for Boulder, however a lot of mediocrity and status quo folks. It is broken and does need fixing.
- I feel city council responds to only small groups and not the overall citizens cares and concerns.
- I feel the Municipal Energy program is being railroaded through. I am not pleased with the prospect of high utility bills for residents and worry that the business community may decide to charge more to recover the costs of higher rates. Also I believe that the city is becoming too expensive for the shrinking middle class to raise their children. That can be addressed by allowing more dense infill removing the height restrictions on buildings.
- I feel the transients (not the involuntarily homeless) have made Boulder a much less desirable place to live. I don't want to go to the library, the Mall or the "Municipal Campus" anymore because of these doped-up and intoxicated people. The city doesn't appear to be making any effort to remedy this. You pass the no-camping ordinance, yet it is not enforced. Nor are the public drunkenness laws enforced. I no longer take my grandchildren to the creek path or library because of them.
- I have 2 concerns: 1) the homeless population has gotten out of hand. We should outlaw panhandling for everyone. Letting these people loiter all day in our parks should be eliminated. It's a health issue (where do they go to the bathroom?), and the taxpayers who make the parks possible can't even enjoy them (picnic tables always full, benches taken over ...) and 2) I worry about the character of the downtown area and the trend of building upwards. Downtown streets are becoming urban canyons.
- I have been working to buy my first home through the Affordable Housing Program and it has been going well. Thanks!
- I have had the privilege of living in Boulder for a little over a decade, and wouldn't move anywhere else. While I love this city with all my heart, I do wish that city council would solicit more input on key issues from citizens, and respond more appropriately and representatively to said input.
- I have lived in Boulder since 1961 and have always been very proud of that fact. Boulder continues to slip quickly into disrepair and unrealistic goals. The city took away our yearly city clean-up which was a huge benefit to property owners and kept our city looking clean. They are unable to take care of our roads as they fall into disrepair and are poorly maintained and plowed. The schools need air conditioning and funding, quality businesses need to be attracted to bring good jobs, not menial jobs to the area. I fear what our city council will do when they take over our power grid. History suggests mediocre service and poor quality. What has happened to common sense?
- I heard that a lot of gift shops in Boulder won't pay tax if you pay in cash! I think we need to figure it out to fix this broken system. Rules should apply the same to everyone and all business owners as well.
- I hope that the City continues to value and prioritize funding for Human Service agencies in Boulder.
- I live in Boulder County near Erie. I work in Boulder and feel that I can only answer the questions that pertain to my work environment. I think that Boulder should have day shelters in the winter when it is cold so the library does not take the brunt of the homeless population.
- I live outside the city and work in the city and find that Boulder seems to have low and high income and not much for the middle class in the way of shopping, housing or entertainment. There doesn't seem to be many places that teens can hang out. The transient population and where they hang out make it so I don't feel safe letting my kids come to Boulder.

- I love Boulder, it's a lovely place to live. The public schools are excellent. That said, Boulder has an image problem with people of color. It would surprise many Boulder residents to know that many people of color from outside Boulder think that Boulder is unfriendly to them. My hairdresser, who lives and works in Aurora on E. Colfax, told me she was "afraid" to come to Boulder after I pointed out to her how much her services would be appreciated here (she does fine African braiding, a service no salon in Boulder offers). I asked her why she was afraid to come to Boulder and she said "They don't like Black people there".
- I love Boulder. It is my home and I grew up here. I'm very disappointed that it has turned into such a progressive, overreaching and stifling place. I miss the old Libertarian Boulder ... Live and let live! The 3 coasts have closed in and stifled out unique beauty.
- I love Boulder. My only complaint is about the bridge that crosses the creek just to the north of CU's campus. That bridge was destroyed during the flood and has not been fixed. I used that bridge every day, I'm very disappointed that nothing has been done about it.
- I love it here! (24 yrs). Great planning, facilities, amenities, events... A couple of quick complaints- Make Arapahoe 2 lanes in both directions the whole length of it. 28th St from Valmont north needs work. Empty lot at Broadway & Highway 36 is a complete eyesore embarrassment as you enter the city; please put something pleasant there. Lastly-affordable housing for a couple that makes $150,000/yr. We're too rich for affordable housing & too poor to buy any new construction or even decent resales. Thank you
- I love that we care for the homeless, I love that we value the arts and outdoors. I love that we value public transportation. How did we ever let Walmart come in here and how can we get them out? Boulder is for artists, scholars and people that don't fit in the mainstream. Brilliant or creative. How do we keep this identity? This is the reason I came here. Homogenous is poisonous.
- I love the City of Boulder. My friends and family call me an un-official ambassador. I love living in Boulder. I love working in Boulder. I think the City of Boulder as an organization does an amazing job. Thank you!
- I own rental property in the city and work in the city but live in unincorporated Boulder. I am opposed to municipalization and even more opposed to not having a voice in something as vital as my electric service.
- I really like walking in Columbia Cemetery and wish it got more attention from Parks and Recreation.
- I sometimes feel that the City is prodding us into walking and/or using public transportation to get around. Good idea, but doing that often requires more time that most families have to spare. I now live around 55th and Arapahoe, but used to live in North Boulder. It creeps me out to go to North Boulder now, it's so crowded and congested. Then there's the HUGE congestion being caused by inadequate parking/traffic help on Pearl St. between 28th and 30th Streets (think Whole Foods, Barnes & Noble, Vitamin Cottage, and now Trader Joe's). SOMETHING needs to change there.
- I submitted another survey assuming I'd have a chance to make a comment at the end of the survey. Unfortunately I didn't so I started this survey for the sole purpose of making a comment or 2. First the traffic, I think it would be better if the city installed more photo tickets and had the lights synchronized so that traffic moved more at a better pace, without having to stop at lights so frequently. No matter what the incentives are I will be driving my car during the day. How about making the traffic run more efficiently. Secondly, it seems like the dog haters get the attention of city council more than the dog lovers do. How about adding a question to the OSMP surveys asking people how they feel about dogs in general. Dog lover? Neutral? Dislike dogs? Dogs don't belong off leash in open space? The green tag program is incredibly rigid and it really doesn't seem to represent the Boulder I know. The Boulder who allows dogs at McGuckins, The Home Depot, 29th Street Mall? Come on, the rigid rules are due to the dog haters in Boulder and don't represent our dog loving community.
- I think in some ways CU acts like it is a parallel government. For example, I don't trust that CU discloses crime to the City or to anyone unless something breaks open and they are forced to be more transparent. To whom do the campus police report? I also think that CU tolerates violent behavior from their athletic department. There should be zero tolerance and offenders should be processed through the police department. I get the impression that the offender rate among the athletic department-particularly the male athletes is disproportional to the rest of the student population and if so measures should be adopted to correct that difference. Homelessness is an extremely difficult problem-a national problem. There are millions of Americans who are on welfare and their basic needs are covered. Is this happening in Boulder, Denver, anywhere? When I left New York City there were 1,000,000 people on welfare so there must be such programs. Why aren't these homeless people put on welfare and cleared off the streets. While on welfare they may be able to learn something useful and eventually find a way to be useful. I think you rightly see that I believe dropping out of school or society is anti-social behavior and must be rooted out by all means. One of your councilmen suggested banishment. How about really hard labor so they don't think jail is just a way to get 3 squares a day, a warm place to live with TV and medical attention. Or how about outsourcing the job. Bus them to the highest bidding jails say on Baffin Island or maybe on those disputed rocks between China and Japan. What 's so shocking about banishment? Wasn't Napoleon banished to a tiny island. The Russians had and still have their Siberia and the Brits sent them off to Botany Bay [Australia]. There are countries in Africa that are desperate for money say in the Sahara desert where it's nice and warm. You could build a jail cheap there, cost of living is cheap, and pensions for the police?-Fa get about it. Well actually-WHY NOT! It's time to think outside the box or even outside the country. What do the kids who drop out of HS do actually. Does anybody actually know? I suspect the answers would be interesting. I question whether they actually should be allowed to drop out of the educational system unless they can demonstrate a marketable proficiency.

- I think the City is doing a lousy job of listening to residents' concerns. Rush hour traffic congestion gets worse and worse with each passing year. And instead of helping to improve traffic flow thru town, you actually seem to go out of your way to impede traffic flow, making things even worse. Putting flashing crosswalks across major arteries (like 28th Street, 30th Street, Canyon Blvd, etc.) is just plain stupid. There's no way in hell you can engineer any proper timing of traffic signals on those streets, when a pedestrian can walk up to a button and just arbitrarily stop traffic in both directions at any time for any reason. It should be a priority for the City to rip out every last one of those damn flashing crosswalks.
- I think the City of Boulder is doing a fine job. I'm hoping the newly elected council members will focus on creating housing within the city that is affordable and minimize the need for people to commute from afar. We could use some more SKIP-type bus routes, eg., North 26th St to Folsom. Get more bike racks on the buses. Zoning for multiple dwelling units within the city is key. Let those big houses divide up to house more than one family. After we municipalize, promote more solar panel installations by offering low-interest loans or tax breaks. Make any new houses and/or commercial buildings include solar panels. We need more safe bike routes. Thanks for your community service.
- I think the city should spend a larger proportion of tax dollars on the arts. In a city that prides itself on being a mecca for artists it is embarrassing that our spending is less than other cities such as Fort Collins and Colorado Springs. I am especially interested in improvements to The Dairy Center for the Arts. I also think it is much too difficult to upgrade one's home in Boulder. My dealings with the planning department in remodeling an older home have been extremely frustrating.
- I think there is too much construction in progress, especially apartments, condos, etc. The number of potholes on streets and at intersections is ridiculous. I am in favor of the city generating its own power, but I have to wonder how capable it is when it cannot even maintain streets. I'm not referring to the county road debate, as I live within city limits. Arapahoe is a constant mess. Baseline and Broadway are full of potholes. S Boulder Road b/w Broadway and Foothills is also a mess.
- I think we need to solve the affordable housing crisis in Boulder and we need to help residents hurt by the floods, including undocumented members of our community. We need to look at flooding caused by Boulder sewers and see if we can prevent that in the future. Also I would like to see the development of the Civic Plaza with BMoCA, an art and music complex, and community spaces that are used all year round.

- I think you could reach more of us if you worked to get stories on KUNC. I think the listenership is high and people don't read the paper as much as they used to. I listen to KUNC everyday and the only Boulder stories I hear are generated by the regular Boulder Business Report segment.
- I use Tom Watson Park to start bike rides from and am very disappointed in the maintenance of the rest room: The latches on the stall doors have been broken for ten years. There is no bench to set your items on when changing. The fan is off-kilter and makes a horrible noise. Water leaks onto the floor. It's dirty. The lockers are rusted out. I have no children using playing fields and am disappointed that Boulder can't maintain this one facility that I use but can build new playing fields.
- I was so impressed by the city's response to the flood. Years of preparation really helped us. I'm not so keen on other aspects of city life, though: trash, graffiti, noise, sidewalk snow removal, and shabby rental properties to the east of campus bother me -- there seems to be little care or concern about these problems. Also, I wish the city provided RTD Eco Passes opportunities for all residents. I fall through the cracks in my ability to secure an Eco Pass, and I feel unfairly left out.
- I will personally be leaving boulder within the next few months to live in more suitable places. I have lived here for 30 years, but have begun to feel as though the new Boulder is not where I want to live. The police are overly aggressive, the council is overly insensitive and getting more rigid with the current few terms- I believe that we are headed toward a lesser tolerance, not more; and I think that we are over regulated as a city, not just in Planning and Development, beyond what was a gentler more understanding, somewhat weird town that I had some passion about, and pride in. We are more involved in image than substance, we pass the buck to let someone else handle things after regulation is passed, and the various departments, the council, and the city leaders mostly pass around trendy, pretend self congratulatory PR. Not okay with me, but I have loved living here for the past 30 years. thanks
- I wish I could use the main branch library without feeling like I'm spending the day in a homeless shelter. I wish there weren't transients camping and hanging out in the trees alongside the creek path from one end of the city to the other. I wish I didn't have to deal with drunk or stoned panhandlers on Pearl St. at night. I wish the city would clear the debris from the creek near Broadway and 13th before the spring snowmelt. I wish the park paths between canyon and Arapahoe, Broadway and 9th were better lit at night.
- I wish there was more focus on the arts here.
- I wish we could get back to being a truly progressive example for other municipalities in terms of energy / environmentalism. Applaud continuing dedication to open space preservation.
- I worry about the transients in and around the public areas. I am also concerned about the need for more middle class housing that is affordable. I am retired and feel very lucky to be able to live here under Senior Affordable Housing. I just pray that there can be some resolution to the homeless problem. There is one homeless person on every busy corner it seems. I can't donate to everyone of them. Sharon Larocque
- I would like to see a better, proactive approach to reducing how much the City caters to the local/frequent transients. I believe our Police Officers can only do so much, but the City enables transients which contradict Police Officers work. i.e.: backpack giveaways, extra shelters/warming centers, numerous food pantry's etc. The majority of transients are abusers of the "system" and clearly don't want to better themselves. I will no longer walk the creek path with my children or visit the public library off Canyon due to the constant harassment and vulgar language transients dish out. Seeing transients trash our community by begging on every street corner, disappoints me. Our town was beautiful at one time, now it looks as though it's over populated by the transient population. The areas they congregate in are dirty, they smell and create a sense of insecurity to those passing by. It's unfortunate.
- I would like to see a light rail asap. Please continue to purchase open space and develop recreation land and parks, the park and recreation system here is one of the main reasons my friends and family live here. The Boulder bike park is a phenomenal facility that caters to multiple ages and ability levels.

- I would like to see more programs focused towards middle income housing availability. There are multiple reasons that it makes it very difficult to be a home owner in Boulder. The demand to live in Boulder is high - which drives up prices. As a side effect of this, there is a huge rental market. This causes too few houses to be in circulation as the owners of rental properties sit on these properties which 1) further drives up the prices of houses 2) Those that do get bought, likely get turned into rental properties which further exacerbates the issue. The salary I make would provide for a nice house anywhere outside of Boulder. I rent close to downtown, work downtown, and love it in Boulder. However the idea of becoming a homeowner here seems nothing but a fantasy as the price of a house here is 3 to 4 times the price of a like model home somewhere else. I know there is the Affordable Housing program through Boulder. However this primarily is focused on condo's and townhomes. I would like to see this expanded to single family homes.
- I would like to see the City of Boulder put more resources, both human and financial, towards the arts in our community. Boulder is viewed as a great home for artists, and as a destination for the arts, and has many wonderful organizations in town that are working hard to create a creative economy and city. But it seems that the City hasn't moved ahead much on the Civic Cultural Center Master Plan, nor made a strong statement about it's stand on the arts. The arts are a vital piece of what makes Boulder great, but without more support directly from government, more stress is put on the arts and cultural organizations that are already struggling to stay afloat. The City needs to step it up!
- I would like to see the city take a greater role in supporting local arts. Boulder likes to pride itself on being an "artistic" community, but there is very little support for residents who are actually creating the art. A greater emphasis on support for home-grown artistic companies would be a boon for the local economy as well as create more opportunities for employment. I would also advocate that the City look at the track record of success and economic impact of artistic organizations when allocating funds. With such limited funding available, it quickly gets spread too thin by trying to support everyone.
- I would really love a harder push towards environmental sustainability. Great job City of Boulder!
- I'd like to know that diverse voices are being included in city feedback. The 2013 council did not look or feel very diverse, so I'm not sure how we can grow in a positive direction in that sense if we don't hear from underserved communities. I also worry that there isn't enough economic diversity among people living in the city.
- I'd like to see the City tackle the problem of the homeless. It seems like the problem has been getting worse in recent years. So many street folk gather downtown along the creek and at the library. One does not want to take kids to the library when packs of transients are congregating, yelling, drinking, and probably doing worse. And yet, they must be cared for. A progressive community takes care of all who live there. It's a big problem that must be tackled at a high level.
- If you have regulations...enforce them. I'm a huge walker/bus commuter and many of the sidewalks are seriously dangerously not shoveled within the 24 hour time frame specified. Please...give these people tickets or let everyone go willie-nillie and get rid of the regulations...so, the rest of us responsible kind can sleep in. Also, the City needs to do its part - many of the side streets are extremely iced over - and dangerous!.
- I'm currently purchasing a home through the permanently affordable housing program. It's an excellent program, and I highly support its continuation, expansion, and promotion. The staff at the City Housing Office have been excellent through this process.
- I'm glad the city council is starting to look at longer planning horizons. We need to be looking 50 years out re what kind of city we want to leave the next generation -- many of the policies/practices (e.g. open space usage) are NOT sustainable.
- I'm just outside of the city limits. No happy with the county, especially the commissioners. I'm walking distance to downtown however so I feel like I'm part of the city. I don't think it's fair that I don't get be idiots of RTD like other neighborhoods. I think those benefits should extend to the out skirts also. Thanks for Eco cycle, thanks for the work you are doing, especially with the floods.
- I'm proud to live in Boulder and love the open space parks!

- I'm ready to have some of the rollbacks that occurred during the recession reinstated. Let's take a look at those please~!
- I'm really disappointed in the aggressive measures to crackdown on the homeless that I've been reading about. Boulder is home to some of the least aggressive homeless people I've ever seen because they don't live in constant fear of harassment. Surely our beautiful home is big enough for all of us. Also, more money for the arts! Boulder's art scene has so much to offer and will become a defining character of our city with a little bit of support!
- I'm white but have many friends of color and am constantly amazed at the everyday racism (from blatant to micro-aggressions-- e.g., assumptions about them since they are not white) they experience on campus and in the city of Boulder. It's truly shocking. This is a liberal place for white folks. Second, I'm very alarmed at how many women in Boulder county are arrested for domestic violence-- we have one of the highest rates in the U.S. As a volunteer and community activist, I've had so many women who were victims of domestic violence be the ones arrested for it, and then charged with a felony (which is 15% of DV arrests in most places) so they're put in the awful position of having to plead to a misdemeanor or risk a felony charge. In these situations (I've volunteered on many) the women were the victims, but in a small handful there was actually no domestic violence by either party (e.g., a witness calls the police). For many CU students this means they are limited to apply for teaching children or being nurses if they have a misdemeanor "violent" conviction.
- In general I feel the City Council spends too time on "fluffy" issues and not the real issues. too much money is spent on "fluff" also. It is too easy to spend someone else's money - namely the citizens of Boulder's tax dollars. I am sick and tired of all the publicity about Municipalizing our Energy. Let Xcel, who is a company designed to do this continue to handle this. We have spend thousands, probably millions on consultants surrounding this issue. In general the city is spending too much on consultants - this is an escape mechanism, but a very costly one. Also the question about the Senior Center should be split between the East and West. Parking is SO limited at the West Center that I rarely try to attend anything there for tfor this reason. Boulder City Council is trying to be too progressive with our tax dollars.
- In general, keep up the good work.
- It is great you have the affordable housing program, but housing in Boulder for the middle and even upper middle is non existent, feels like the city only wants the very wealthy and working class. in a family of two making over$110,000 a year I could no longer live in Boulder if I wanted a bigger house (2 bedrooms and a basement still under 2000 square feet), the housing is a problem and only getting worse, you are forcing the middle to east Boulder or farther away and I love the city and the social scene but it is not affordable. Also boulder is not inclusive, it talks a good game, but many people of color and Trans people do not feel safe or welcome and do not want to live in Boulder. The racism and transphobia is not explicit it is very covert and the city remains very white with liberals talking about inclusivity and diversity, but no action to back that up!
- It is still unclear how municipalization of energy is going to help Boulder. The environment is important but we are already getting killed with taxes and i cant afford my energy costs to rise. / I would say raising a family in Boulder is pretty cool, but the direction it is heading (type of housing construction) is not very family friendly. I would see more direction toward families. / Another concern is that i can not get my child tested for dyslexia or any other learning disabilities because we home school...thats not cool. could use some help there. 970-417-0879 (Patch)
- It would be nice if the Boulder City Council would view things from the perspective of the silent majority and less about special interests and special interest projects.
- It would be nice if the Boulder Rec centers were more affordable for families. $85/month is a bit steep and it does not include child care. The facilities are really not that nice for that much money. Also, more affordable programs (throughout the city) for families and small children. Finally, don't raise sales tax.
- It's terrible!

- It's time to get the creek corridor and Central Park/Library area cleaned up and safe for all comers -- I would never take my family down there down in its current state of shabby, dangerous disrepute.
- I've been here 46 years and 3 generations. While the 'ethic' follows what Paul Danish laid out...I think the moniker "Republic of Boulder" applies and the rest of the state sees Boulder progressive...yet NOT Colorado or Wyoming'esque (western). Could well be the preponderance of NON-NATIVES and east-coasters (city dwellers) running the City (and County for that matter). Boulder is NOT what it was in the 50's, 60's and 70's. There NEEDS to be MORE accountability AND transparency (publish DEEPLY detailed budgets....etc). There seems to be some level of 'nepotism' going on (to wit, City Mgr appointed by Council, County Attorneys appointed by Commissioners, etc). Maybe, someday again, it won't be that way ;-)
- I've lived here almost 30 years and appreciate this town deeply. My one big desire is for lower rent. I have a teacher friend whose employment went to part time and she's been searching for a less expensive apartment but has not found any that are also less expensive plus clean and in good condition. She works in Boulder and wants to remain living in Boulder. She doesn't have a car so walks, bikes or takes the bus and has been having a challenging time finding a smaller place with easy access to RTD.
- Just wanted to note that I wish composting were readily available to condo and apartment residents. When I lived in a house I used regularly composted but now in an apartment I don't have access. Also given the city's focus on sustainability I think curbside grass and watering should be phased out for xeriscape and climate appropriate plantings. And all buildings (condo, apartment, offices) should have stairs more readily available than elevators. Given building height limits accessible stairs should be the norm.
- Keep it local, use SurveyGizmo, a company in Boulder, to create and distribute your surveys. They can be reached at 720-496-2990. Please be nice to the homeless people. They are harmless. Of course in the event that they are committing crimes and harassing people. But generally they keep to themselves and don't hurt anyone. We are lucky enough to live somewhere beautiful that makes being homeless not so terrible. I think that's a good thing. / The city could also afford to fund the arts more!
- Leave us alone and let us live -- stay out of our face.
- Lets hire more hourly employee's and less management - in 2013 the city hired 101 jobs and 68 was management not a very good %
- Let's keep Boulder small....no more new developments.
- More housing opportunities need to be provided for the "middle class" in Boulder. BHP provides great housing assistance but only up to a certain income level. The resident is then asked to leave and find market rate housing. The gap is too great from housing assistance to market rate for residents in the $50K to $70k bracket. The affordable housing program offers all kinds of purchasing assistance (and MANY more properties) for the lower income residents. The middle income resident is in a housing "no man's land". I work in Boulder, have raised my children in Boulder, am a single mother, and want to STAY in Boulder and not be forced out due to this strange reverse discrimination. I earn too much to get any assistance to remain in Boulder, yet I earn too little to be able to afford living in Boulder without help. Don't let Boulder become a town of the elite.
- More need to preserve economic diversity in city through affordable housing etc / Keep streets safer by banning cell phone use while driving
- More regulation is NOT the answer to almost any problem. Instead a restorative and collaborative neighborhood effort to deal more hyper locally with any issue is a better way forward in almost every case. Also, the legal costs of taking over public utilities would have been more wisely spent funding high speed internet access throughout the city for all residents and campus.
- Municipalization is a huge mistake that will cost the city and its residents dearly in many ways in the future.
- My concern for the safety of my neighborhood is because I live in Pine Brook Hills. I have seen bears & mt. lions in my driveway, and do not believe my 'hood is safe at night because of the animals, not hoodlums. I believe that nearly everyone in Boulder wants to be inclusive to others of different races, but not necessarily of other socio-economic circles. I think it is strange that people do not clean their own homes, and would pay a nanny so they can train for their upcoming triathlon. My greatest gripes are towards the county and the road situation. After the flood, we had impassable rubble on our road for weeks. By 1.5 months afterwards, we had gotten it to organized piles, but the twisty roads (1 mile and 7 hairpin curves from Linden to my house) were basically one lane wide. Nobody ever came, nobody knew we were up here. We organized neighbors with shovels and trucks and worked for 8 hours two Sundays in a row to clear the boulders blocking our roads. We tried to pack most of this rubble under our badly undercut roads (hope it holds!), but the county never came to check.

- My hope is for boulder to stay unique and focused on environment, health, and limit growth and supportive of local sustainable options over outside business. We don't need or want walmarts and big stores and sprawling growth. The city of boulder is very different than boulder county or the rest of Colorado. I see that as a sign we are doing something right and for the good of the many for the longer term.
- My major concern over the last 12 months has to do with the US 36 construction and operation contract. I heard no mention nor discussion of instituting a toll road, as was done in the 50s, to pay for construction and maintenance of US 36. I am VERY angry about 1) the ability of non-high occupancy vehicles to pay to use the HOV lanes; and 2) the institution of a 3 occupancy rule to use the HOV lane for free - this is an impossible requirement for 99.9% of drivers and simply emphasizes that the toll road is being implemented for profit and not for environmental purposes.
- need to address housing issues - we need more housing options, more affordable housing options. City should be open to exploring more ways to increase density in order to increase housing - for example permitting mother-in-law apartments and accessory units. Also would like to see more encouragement/facilitation of infill development.
- need to be more realistic and inclusive about issues that are related to the economy and financial well being, rather than always focusing on the natural environment.
- Need to expand North Boulder Rec Center. Too small for population it's serving; too crowded, not enough equipment/space.
- Need to find someplace else for homeless & transients to hang out during the day. This is an urgent problem
- No
- No comment.
- Not currently. Despite many of the negative views from locals about how the City operates; Boulder is still ranked as one of the best towns in America to live.
- On the evening of the flood around midnight, there were no warning sirens or other notifications. If we knew it was going to flood, we could have moved our cars. The next night, we heard "stay away from Boulder Creek" and that was about all. We live in North Boulder. Something should have come out on the first night to warn people based on the level of rainfall during that first day.
- Over population is an issue that impacts many of the decisions the city council makes and should be always be considered in the decisions making process. The city does a great job in snow plowing. It's hard to be perfect.
- Overall the city staff are professional and dedicated. Great response to the flooding and cleanup. Some departments have reduced budgets and staffing that makes it difficult to enforce the codes. / City Council, however, is too responsive to special interests and hair-brained ideas that are presented to them. Since the flooding of last September, the civic area planning has to be reconsidered. Don't bow to the developers who own the property and need profit at the expense of and threat to residents who will suffer from that redevelopment.
- Overall very good! I really love the ability to compost and recycle. And I use the rec center all the time to swim, and the north and east boulder pools are always well run, super clean, and have plenty of room, so that's awesome. Also Pearl street is great to wander on.

- Overall, I love Boulder and have been here twenty years. I am raising my family here and am pleased with the environment for raising children. I work in a quasi-governmental agency and my husband owns a tech business in downtown Boulder. We are here for the long haul. I think that Boulder does many many things right but that there is always room for improvement. I think that the housing situation in Boulder is becoming more and more disparate in that there is a lack of affordable options for many people. I think that city council is "old" and has an old way of looking at Boulder. I think smart economic development planning is imperative. I think the city needs to be forward looking in its development and support new opportunity for smart development. I think that the city is a challenging place to develop which makes talent go elsewhere. I think that as the wife of a business owner, the city doesn't do a good job in providing incentives to start and keep business in Boulder. Those areas of focus are paramount. We also had our yard hammered during the flood and currently the city, the county and urban drainage can provide no clear direction on how to go about fixing the creek behind our property. A "who's on first" situation which is becoming increasingly frustrating. The flood was unexpected but the city needs staff that can be empowered to make decisions that will allow homeowners to invest the money in their properties necessary for a safe and aesthetically pleasing environment. Thanks for asking and thanks for listening.
- Please do everything you can to clean up and make the municipal area safe. My daughter who works in a poor area of Denver felt unsafe with her husband and three kids in this area. Also I want the front of the library to be a beautifully maintained as the Pearl Street Mall, removing ugly marks on concrete, mulching trees, keeping it safe and clean. I am very glad there is a security guard at the library and love our libraries. Hope you keep all libraries open 7 days a week.
- Please get the transients to leave Boulder. They make Boulder unsafe. Please make it illegal to pan handle and do whatever it takes to get these dangerous people out at all costs.
- Please plow our main streets and intersections!!!! We have money for scooping snow off walkways in parks and some pedestrian walkways,; money for flowers..... / We are all very tired of sliding around corners; and and general conditions of the City of Boulder streets. (God help the poor pedestrians trying to cross at intersections).
- Please stop the subversive Parks and Open space directors from continuing to close down areas to dogs like they did at Dakota Ridge. And given the cost of housing the three unrelated parties in a household is no longer appropriate esp given the Mcmasions and then the small size of new construction and affordable housing. Also we must begin to plan for separate paths for bicycles and hiking. I don't like the aggressive policing of so called "transients" and our youth.
- Please work on making the Main Boulder Public Library a safer place for patrons and staff. I know a lot of folks who no longer use this library due to safety concerns, especially families with young children.
- Police in this town are a joke, only concerned with speed traps and breaking up college parties. Way to many building code regulations and restrictions. Not a business friendly governance.
- pretty good job. 1. please continue expanding library services in the northern hemisphere of boulder. 2. please pay more attention to your gunbarrel residents who are right on the edge of the city 3. please work with the county to develop gunbarrel in a more well-rounded way. thank you
- Priorities should be local, not global. Flood recovery, plowing streets and BIKE Routes, real transportation, reducing the cost of living, in and owning a home in Boulder. City Council is not representative of all of Boulder. Having said that: we love the bike paths and open space, but as retirees we probably need to move to a less expensive environ. I also do not believe the council cares about my/our opinion.
- Proactive emergency planning in the past several years involving the city/county was exceptional. Unfortunately, not many residents understand how much has been done to prepare the public and responders. Anti-gov't folks will always find excuses to blame gov't. My main concern about the direction of the city involves the fact that the demographics support gearing more and more towards the younger generations & more affluent residents. Am also concerned about the plight of the homeless & how to balance services without encouraging an endless influx of homeless migrants which would be unsustainable in terms of those services. Also, feel transitional housing should not discriminate against homeless pet owners/guardians.

- roads are poorly cleaned after a snow storm. I thought Boulder will take care of roads more efficiently than NYC. It isn't the case. Where is the tax money going?
- SO... This is personal, but I suffered substantial sewage backup during the flood and see NO city response. On the other hand, I work for the county and see immense effort in addressing resident needs (so I know things are being done - just not in the city).
- Some parts of the city are operating well and seem relatively innovative. However, other areas of the city government seem extremely outdated. We live in a cutting edge and innovative tech, social-entrepreneur, etc area, but it seems like the city government operates in a vacuum outside of all of that innovation. For instance, the staff at the City Manager's office is not at all up to speed on how to communicate and deal with the public (and the tools they use and the staff they have are very much not modern, innovative people). Also, the city did a website overhaul and somehow made it even less intuitive and user-friendly than it was before. Of all things that should be modern and cutting-edge in Boulder, it's our website! I think bridging this gap would also quell some of the negativity towards city government, especially among the tech startup people in town.
- Someone dropped the ball when 4295 Broadway was allowed a private residence permit. This property has and always will be used as a commercial art gallery. The owners rarely are in residence and when they are, they hold large art showings. When these showings are held, the neighborhood is inundated with cars, using all available street parking, plus overflowing into the Waldorf School parking lot. What was the planning dept. thinking when they approve a 70000 square foot home that only has about 1000 sq ft. Sleeping area. Wow, what pressure!!!! and who was in charge
- Spending money wrong such as putting in a water system along foothills, thats a waste of money because people are just driving by, not wanting to look at a big bush. Also spending too much money on city maintenance and public schools, there needs to be more watching over the schools spending money they don't have to and parks and public areas that are already fine for the normal citizen, people in Boulder take it for granted and don't understand how the city is already very very nice without so much maintenance being done all the time, also people in the city are very picky and stubborn about the city being perfect. Also RTD should have more busses running and better shelters at the bus stop, I take RTD every day and I'm not pleased with it.
- Stop trying to please all the people all the time; minimize the zealots on boards and committees; support CU; support businesses; try to slow the business turnover on Pearl St. Mall; look at rent control guidelines like NYC has; enforce the growth limitations and plans from the late 70's and early 80's; don't commemorate / dedicate things to people before they die-avoid the embarrassing discoveries; enforce the basic traffic laws like stop signs(bike riders included) and jay walking. Stop allowing the set back homes being built on lots. Require wider parking spaces in malls. Drop some of the citizen boards and committees that look like resume padding for future city council candidates. Reduce the desirability of Boulder for homeless, misfits, drug using drifters, etc. with free food, free lodging, etc. Toughen up some of the penalties for criminal convictions.
- Stop wasting money on legal battles for municipalization. Thanks.
- Strongly support neighborhood dog parks.
- Thank you
- Thank you.
- The belief that increased density of housing will alter the work/car/traffic balance to an utopia of everybody walking and riding their bikes is a fallacy and the city may already be beyond a tipping point of having too much density from new developments without a single new lane mile of road to absorb it. I have been living in Boulder for almost 30 years and it is too bad that it takes two or three cycles of lights to go north/south through the core business district. With all the new development occurring to the east of the core, the increase in cross traffic may lead to real gridlock, too bad.
- the City appears to be doing absolutely NOTHING about making our streets safe for pedestrians and cyclists. auto moving violations are NEVER addressed.

- The City could be more aggressive in seeking ways to established affordable housing. We don't want to become an Aspen or Vail, or do we?
- the city could improve on snow removal. I've lived here 20 years and I think the city can do a better job with treating roads, plowing and putting down chemicals to make the bridges and roads safer. I also think we have enough affordable housing units.
- The City Council only listens to what they want to hear and the wealthier citizens, e.g. energy issues.
- The city desperately needs more housing options. There is plenty of housing over $300,000 and the Affordable Housing program is great, but there is no middle ground for those of us in the middle. I make just $1000 over the Affordable Housing income limit and am unable to purchase a home in Boulder.
- The city doesn't do a good job plowing the roads at all
- The City has been ineffective at reducing the number of homeless transients in town. We have no moral obligation to put up panhandlers who have never been productive citizens of the City of Boulder
- The City is doing a great job, but I would like to see the following: - Safer streets in the form of more bike lanes, more attentive drivers, and a north south bike lane from Canyon to Pine. - A movie theatre in south Boulder - More trail connections that are open to mountain bikes - A dog park in south Boulder - Better leadership at OSMP when it comes to accepting mountain bikes on open space property - Traffic control on Lehigh - Improved streetscape on 30th St (tree-d median, slower speeds) - The City to fix potholes and uneven sidewalks / - The City to enforced dog leash and snow shoveling code
- The City needs to address the transient population issue and not leave it to the Library to be the city's day shelter. How about using the Municipal Building for that purpose instead? After all, there are far fewer Children using the Municipal Building during the day than the Library. That way City Council may actually see what is going on and what issues their lack of action is causing. I believe that the City Manager is trying her hardest but City Council doesn't want to take the issue on. This population needs special help, I am not advocating throwing them out, but for their well-being and that of the City's, Council had better do something soon. I often hear comments that folks don't like to come into Boulder because of this issue.
- The city needs to manage its finances better. It is simply too easy for staff to recommend new taxes to pay for services. Council needs to direct staff to phase out programs that are no longer useful or necessary, so that improved or new programs can be implemented without increasing the burden on city residents. That is responsible government.
- The city needs to re-evaluate its stance on the importance of events - mountain biking, cyclo cross, road cycling are all critical to the health and vitality of the community and economy, yet the city council more or less treats them as irrelevant. What the city is doing with Ironman is FANTASTIC! More of that type of commitment to events and outdoor activities. In the case of the USA pro challenge, we're now hosting a race start for 2014? That makes literally zero sense...no taxpayer money should go into hosting a race start...it's worth $0.
- The city needs to stick to things that the city must do and leave the rest to the county, state, or private enterprise/philanthropy. The city doesn't have to solve every problem itself. Taking more of our money is not always the right answer!
- The city of Boulder could learn a lot from the Boulder county's response to the floods and wildfires.
- The City of Boulder does well on issues related to open space and environmental sustainability. It feels like City government is so focused on the environment that the people, particularly less affluent and less vocal residents, who live in Boulder aren't a priority. On the surface, Boulder appears to be an inclusive community but that's not necessarily the experience of those with less access to resources.
- The City of Boulder is extraordinarily, aggressively hostile towards small business -- only focus is on attracting large businesses for more tax revenue. Parking Management is especially hostile towards businesses, forcing CAGID businesses to interact with Lane L. who is anything but helpful and rather than being a resource to businesses makes every attempt to create roadblocks.

Absolutely no input from small business is genuinely considered at community meetings -- this was especially visible in the planning for the Daily Camera building redevelopment and West End Pearl project where City staffers openly admit that their motivation is to generate more tax revenue as soon as possible.

- The City of Boulder is ruled by city employees, who are not responsible to the voters. They are of one mind and that mind is not in agreement with most of the citizens. The City Council follows the employees' lead and moves away from the will of the citizens. Most city employees should be evaluated in a true system.
- The City of Boulder needs to be more responsive to Human Service organizations: community health care, addressing poverty, homelessness etc. we need adequate shelter space, more transitional programming and better funding for agencies such as Boulder Valley Women's Health Center.
- The City of Boulder needs to invest in Arts & Culture at a much higher level. That means expanded public art, a renovation of The Dairy Center for the Arts, revamping the Boulder Arts Council to be more functional and supportive of innovative community arts programs that can make Boulder truly an arts destination. And the City needs to analyze and communicate the major return on investment it will realize from increasing arts & culture investments.
- The City of Boulder needs to revitalize LOCAL interest in downtown boulder. NOTHING has been done to bring Boulder residents to downtown to shop, quite the contrary, no help with parking issues or transient populations. Downtown Pearl Street is a GEM with fabulous shopping and dining, but the city has done NOTHING to keep patrons and owners of businesses happy and prosperous.
- The City of Boulder seems to thrive on being the best at everything. As a result, it gets caught up in endless hours and hours of seeking public input. The Civic Area is an example. I would like to see short-term progress on new initiatives instead of all the visioning that occurs. In trying to be the most innovative, sometimes the City overlooks common sense. Although I appreciate the alternative forms of transportation, I am frustrated by sheer complexity of it all. Driving to get an errand done should be my personal choice. I feel punished by the City with its lack of equity for all users. I should not have to drive behind a bicyclist who chooses to act like a car instead of biking on a path or in a bike lane. The lack of parking at Open Space trailheads is equally frustrating. I understand the need to find a good balance for neighborhoods, but clearly these were not built initially with users in mind. Boulder needs to figure out a way to get heart. I have lived here 3 years and do not feel I am part of the city. I am a bit embarrassed to say I live in Boulder because it is a community for the privileged. There are many things the City is doing well, but Boulder misses the mark in being a community. I honestly don't think it understands the definition.
- The city organization seems to have lost its focus on the people that live in this community and sense of community in Boulder is diminishing. The city used to be a leader in developing innovative community and human service programs. This has now been replaced with a focus on the environment and alternative energy, new development and winning awards. This focus serves the upper middle class to upper class but serves to disenfranchise the middle and lower class residents. It is becoming harder and harder to live, work and raise a family in this city if you are not wealthy. This has serious impacts on the quality of life. The city is losing its diversity and with it its inclusiveness, sense of community and its culture. I have heard many fellow long time Boulder residents say in the recent past that Boulder is losing its soul.
- The City should not be single mindedly pursuing municipalization and should instead be working in partnership with Xcel and leave Xcel in charge of our utility services. The public at large already paid once through user fees for the infrastructure that was installed by Xcel throughout the years as infrastructure expansion and upgrades were required as population expanded. The city residents should not be paying twice, no matter where the money is coming from, to front these costs. it is penny foolish and pound foolish. No matter how the city tires to shape it, paying for the infrasture through long or short term bonds is still paying twice for the same thing. Very short sighted on the part of the City and unfair to its residents.
- The fact that you are threatening to annex the Gunbarrel & Heatherwood neighborhoods if the Energy Municipallization goes through, but you don't have the decency or awareness to include anything pertaining to the actual tax and decision-making to us on the Nov 2013 ballot is shameful. Just b/c "we aren't included now" does not mean we're not thinking about it. And we will most assuredly be affected if the City's plan goes through. Smells like a lawsuit waiting to happen by omitting us.

- The flashing cross walks on 28th street, 30th street, Broadway and Baseline are literally death traps. You should look into how many injuries have come from those! You should be ashamed of putting those in when little kids have been hurt and adults have been killed crossing them.
- The flood project exhibition between the city of Boulder and BMoCA was an extremely inspiring and interesting project. I would like to see more collaborations like this.
- The landscaping in rights of way and public areas outside of the Pearl Street Mall are poorly designed and maintained. The appearance is that we lack civic pride and don't care about the quality or beauty of our public spaces and, by extension, our community life.
- The leaders of the City appear to come from a fairly small and insular group. Plan Boulder does not represent most people's priorities. The City Council needs more business people a fewer career politicians and social ideologues.
- The municipalization of energy services is going to be extremely divisive, whether it succeeds or not. I voted for it as a possible, partial solution to Xcel's reliance on coal and gas, but it seems that the City would more directly advance its goal of using renewable energy if it focused on developing those energies, i.e. solar, and entering into long-term contracts for their purchase. The City could also reduce Comcast's monopoly, reduce citizens' broadband costs, and make a significant return on its investment, and greatly improve speeds if it built its own fiber network, using its own rights of way, and leased it out to a variety of service providers. Chicago is implementing this plan, and many foreign cities the same size as and larger than Boulder have done it with great success.
- The only interaction I had with the City was to do some minor house work, and I found the building dept to be inept, and completely unhelpful. Promised return calls were never made, someone named Eric (I believe) would never get back to me no matter how many times I tried to work with him.
- The only issue I have is that it is really really hard to make ends meet with how expensive housing is in Boulder.
- The open space and trails are amazing - this should remain a priority. Housing in the city of Boulder is just too expensive, forcing everyone but the wealthy and students out to Lafayette, Longmont, Louisville, etc.
- The pay for performance is lacking. A raise that amounts to a couple hundred dollars extra per year for "exceeded high expectations" is not enough. If this is a one time achievement, as we are being told, make it worth the extra effort.
- The police department does a terrific job. The fire department as well does a great job. We did not vote for municipal utilities - and are very concerned about our costs increasing if the city of boulder administrates these. There is an incongruence between the progressive values touted and the gap of diversity in our city. Basic working people can not move here and those that have lived here for many years - decades - are faced with ever increasing property taxes. It feels like the town is catering to wealthy people and all the services they require. In the past 15 years in our neighborhood there has been an explosion of tear down and remodels - all of the giant home peolpe have trades that come into the neighborhood to manage their lawns etc. The noise from constant construction and giant mowers and leaf blowers is astounding. The basic quality of life is disrupted. These lawn services blow leaves out into the streets and into the sewer drains. Giant houses being built on high water tables create what we call "house in a hole" these leak water continuously into the street year round. The water and leaves blend and clog up sewer / storm drains. Essentially we assume the tax dollars and fees the city gets isn't worth them restricting these types of practices. We do not advocate that the only way people of moderate to lower income can live in Boulder is by shared housing or co-housing or adu type situations. We appreciate the single dwelling housing that are in the affordable house program more needs to be done. The dog issues in Boulder are now being better handled by the police department rather than the previous agency. Lived here for 40 years and have seen a lot of changes. It really feels like a town more for the wealthy than a diverse community now.

- The traffic mitigation program should be called the traffic constipation problem. When you bow to the desires of the residents of a single street or neighborhood to reduce their traffic, you clog up the whole system and it is worse for the vast majority.
- The way the City gathers feedback ends up with feedback from particular communities and people. I do not think the city is focused enough on economic vitality, senior services or access for those with mobility issues whereas I think there is an over emphasis on environmental issues. The whole issue of bicycling is way over emphasized. We are not facing the reality of an aging population nor are we facing the reality of what we need to do as a city to attract major employers with lack of space for them and lack of amenities other than outdoor related or exercise related a real problem. The arts are not highlighted anywhere near where they should be to add vibrancy to our community. Our physical facilities are terrible for arts and for meetings and events.
- There are aggressive and dangerous insane people that cover a wide swath from Uni Hill to Pearl St and beyond. When not on the street angrily yelling at passers by, they are hiding in the crevices of buildings and downtown parks. Police response to calls (both non-emergency and 911) is often painfully slow.
- There are wonderful aspects of Boulder, yet, we need to continue to support access issues and safety for the diversity of people's experiences and backgrounds. With this perspective, Human Service Agency funding is important especially in regards to services for low-income families and women's health. Also, I would like for the City of Boulder to focus on a less criminalizing approach to homelessness and instead provide more mental health services and housing options (which are not contingent upon one's substance use/sobriety status). /
- There is a huge gap between the rich and poor in Boulder. A lot of the people that work in Boulder cannot live in Boulder because of the great cost that it comes with. Which causes so many to commute and it's wasteful and harmful on the environment. I make a bit less than 50k and find it very hard to afford the housing program as a single woman. I think the average is 80- 100k which makes it an elite's community, which is not diverse. With that being said, I do like some of what Boulder has to offer. Thank you.
- There is nothing wrong with Xcel providing power to the city of Boulder. Municipalization of our source of electricity is stupid.
- There is very limited housing for Section 8 and people with disabilities. It is not right that private landlords can refuse Section 8 renters - the only decent housing is through non-profits like Thistle Communities and Boulder Housing partners. This goes beyond the affordable housing issue.
- THERE SHOULD BE SNOW REMOVAL ON SIDE STREETS. IT'S RIDICULOUS THAT HOMEOWNERS CAN GET FINED FOR NOT SHOVELING BUT THE STREETS ARE TRECHEROUS.
- These ratings would be much higher except for a single issue: the continued failure to confront the problem of transients making the Creek area unusable. I used to fish along the Creek but no longer feel safe doing so.
- They need to listen to the voters. If the voters vote no, do not find a workaround, accept that the voters do not want it. Case in point, the LID.
- They've done very well with the marijuana and alcohol issues.
- This survey is quite vague and the responses don't really reflect any depth to the questions. For example, "why don't you feel safe" would give a lot more information.
- Three things: (1) If you're going to put up photo-enforcement cameras, the yellow light should be at least three or four seconds. (2) Moorehead doesn't need a photo van; it needs speed humps. Paying a person to sit in a van with the engine running has got to be more expensive than installing speed bumps or stop signs. (3) Rent is through the roof. Permanent residents have an interest in high property prices because they benefit from the properties they rent out to students, but the rent is absurd, and its resulting in displacement of a lot of people who work and study in Boulder. As a result, you end up with major congestion coming in and out of the city. If you're going to limit the space where people can build housing, at least loosen the restrictions on building height so that you can provide more housing within the city.

- To many new apt complexes being built with no open space or green area: 30th and Pearl, 29th Bluff, Junction development that is very dense. Too much traffic and feels very crowded in Boulder! Open Space clear cut trees on Bobolink trail and other areas. We need more pocket parks not so many rental properties. Are wildlife is being killed by hired guns (coyotes) or killed by cars. I moved to Boulder in 1980 because I loved nature. Boulder has been turned into a big city by development and CU! The bike paths are all cement and not good for walking because the bike riders think they own the paths. I hate seeing our open space turned into amusement parks especially on Valmont. I voted for open space for wildlife and keeping our open space wild. The wildlife in Boulder gets run over, shot or lose their homes to development. You can't say you are against Global Warming and for energy conservation and let the Open Space Dept cut down all are trees and kill our wildlife. I rented an apt on 30th and Iris and the only time night or day you did not hear terrible traffic noise was between 3-4o'clock in the morning. Thank you.
- Traffic can't be ignored in the city. Getting across town AM or late afternoon is just horrible & needs to be dealt with. Housing choices give little new opportunities if one does not want townhs or condos. Young families still want free standing hms w/ yards. That's why they still commute. Lastly approving all these new developments fronting almost on curbside is ruining any warm feelings about so many commercial & multi fam areas. Tunnel effect is very negative.
- Traffic lights in Boulder! The blinking arrow lights which allow people to turn during a green light is very dangerous. Or having no green arrow lights at all! For example, Colorado and 30th Street. There needs to be green arrow lights to monitor safe turns at that intersection! I have seen so many close calls due to bad judgement or just blind spots. I find it interesting that a city government that is so concerned about being "green" doesn't care enough about their citizens being safe on the roads. As long as there are those people who are stupid enough to continue to text and smoke weed while driving, at least up the safety factor by providing safer traffic light signals. Also, why all the closures of many chain restaurants who have had loyal customers for years? Not everyone who lives in Boulder wants to eat tofu. Diversity comes in many ways.
- Transportation is a weakness. Cutbacks in Skip affect me personally in the early a.m. and we now drive to the airport. RTD's treatment of Boulder is bad. Snow shoveling enforcement is poor. I don't feel safe as a pedestrian and I drive more now. I have just gotten used to driving more, which is too bad.
- Very concerned about the socially unacceptable behavior, mostly by transients, but am also concerned that the efforts like the smoking ban are going too far and impinging on freedom. I am a non-smoker but I also believe that if people want to smoke, they should be able to do so in uncongested outdoor spaces.
- Water use issues: why are we continuing to install sprinkler systems along the Foothills Fwy/36, along with thirsty grasses? What a total waste of our tax dollars. Xeriscape it! Tolerance issues: Why does the city continue to harass the Boulder Gun and Rifle Club to keep them from using their land responsibly? There is a 10 year wait list... it's not like there aren't lots of folks who own and use guns. These folks are law-abiding, care about the environment as much as the rest of Boulder, and yet... are continually under siege by the city. There is no tolerance where there is no understanding. As one of the politically liberal women who participates in their programs, I feel like I can say confidently that this should not be seen as a partisan issue, or an anti-gun issue. These are responsible people, people who are avid biathlon athletes, people who help with conservation through the wildlife/fish/game offices, people who are retired and active service people... and yet the city commissioner gives them so much grief. Where is the tolerance for differences that Boulder touts? I'm no Republican, but that doesn't mean I want to run them all off by making life hard for them. Everyone deserves to be treated equally. I feel like Boulder fails on that account, and I will speak up for those whom I disagree with, because they matter. How would you feel if the tables were turned? It makes us no better than those we seek to change, if we are authoritarian about our values.

- We are new to Boulder and learning how the city government works. I would have liked if you had included more than watching on TV as a way I learn about City council. We don't own a TV. Instead went read the paper and gather information online.
- We don't do enough to fund critical human services and public health so that we can address health equity issues. Boulder is awesome for the well off (which include middle class City of Boulder workers), but not so for the working poor (which includes any low paid jobs for COB workers as well) and the marginalized in our community. The folks who don't stroll on pearl Street or enjoy parks and open space at their leisure. Please fund human services and public health better so we can improve equity. When you have really rich community members, the ones with the shorter end of the stick suffer exponentially! Health equity should be at the top of the list.
- We MUST get control of the transient population that has made the Creek and Municipal area out of bounds for recreation. I used to fish along Boulder Creek but no longer feel safe doing so. Some time ago I heard our mayor say "people who don't like the homeless need to grow up". Well, I am "grown up" and resent my taxes going to support these people and allowing them to ruin the parks that I pay for.
- We need an activity center downtown that would be used by arts and other groups. The BPL spaces are too small and are overbooked. New ideas for Civic Use Pad are OK if there is financing. Please don't build a new Municipal campus on the 13-14th St. block! Please do move the band shell to a quieter location downtown. Please separate bikes and peds on Creek path.
- We need another moratorium on growth! The cheap housing construction in north Boulder,
- We need more bus and bike infrastructure if we are going to really be proactive with the new energy reality.
- We need more support for the arts in Boulder. More tax dollars should be spent in the arts
- We need to provide more funding for the arts.
- While I appreciate and support EcoCycle, ReSource, and the cHarm, I wish we had a reuse facility, where residents could access business surplus inexpensively, for use in all manner of creative and functional ways. This would also help businesses to recycle more than the current 17% recycling rate for local industries.
- while i like the concept of creating a municipal utility, i lack any confidence that the City Council could do this in a successful way because of their individual agendas and meddling; too often council members think that they know everything about an issue and the public should just "shut up," that disagreement with them on issues isn't tolerated. another example is the smoking ban - i'm among those who believes this is really aimed at transients (whom i'd classify differently from homeless people), which council would rather not discuss directly. use of open space and parks is another issue where some on council and PLAN Boulder appear to want to reduce use in a wide variety of ways - while some preservation is fine, it seems these folks want to levy some pretty dramatic restrictions, which i don't agree with.
- While structure fire response in the city of Boulder is decent, wildland fire response is a seriously lacking. Boulder does not have the correct type of resources available to fight fire in the OSMP or the foothills. Boulder needs a dedicated Type 2 IA or Type 1 IHC hand crew in to combat the increased wildfire threat that Boulder now faces. Boulder also has done a terrible job with the quality of housing in the city. The green belt is great, but with no new development to compete against there is no incentive for landlords within the city to upgrade their properties. Apartments and multifamily housing rentals are turning into slums that haven't been updated for decades. The Boulder police are also a joke. The elk shooting and numerous other events have eroded public trust.
- Wildwood Road is in very poor repair. How do I report this?
- WORRIED ABOUT MUNICIPALIZATION OF ELECTRICITY. NOT A GOOD IDEA AT THIS TIME!!!
- Would be great to have surveys such as these forwarded to city employees who can forward them to friends and family who work or live in the city BEFORE any major decisions are made, in order to get input in a fair and equal way. Often it seems as though management and the decision-makers who are running the city are completely unaware of the REALITY of the average everyday worker who rides mass transit in order to be "green" and those who visit places overrun by transients. I'd like to see the city manager take the bus or visit the library on a freezing cold day and see how overburdened it is with transients - take a walk on the municipal campus or under the bridge by the creek at the library - scary places to be many days. Boulder has a great location, amazing, wonderful employees and a lot of promise to become a role model community, but there is work to be done still.

- Would like to better understand the goals of municipalization
- Would like to see better enforcement bike rules & dogs off leashes in city parks.
- Would like to see the city provide more funding for arts. Specifically towards to the Dairy since it supports multiple arts organizations and is a public building.
- Would like: 1) darker streets (I like night sky) 2) need a push to get bikers to use front and tail lights. 3) at cross walks need some enforcement and advertising that Pedestrians have right of way (many cars jump x-walk by Vitamin Cottage) 4) The open space dogs are almost always well behaved -keep encouraging good behavior 5) Treat the homeless population with more respect. (minimal rules about hanging out and sleeping)
- Yes. I STRONGLY disagree with the LID imposed upon the residents of Boulder County. I recently retired and am on a fixed income. Had I known this was coming, I would not have purchased my home in Pine Brook Hills. The fees are apparently based on (a) the value of your home (ours was built in 66 and is NOT up to current standards), and (b) the length of road your property abuts. Very unfortunately we live on what could be termed a corner lot, and our property is a long narrow strip abutting the road. We have to pay over $7,000, a very large percentage of my SS. Sure, we have 15 years to pay it, but when we move before the 15 year period, the next owner will have to take it over, meaning it is a negotiating point on the home's value. I also STRONGLY disagree with a homeless building project being built next to the homeless shelter. The future inhabitants simply have to be homeless to qualify. There is no requirement to stop drinking. I just don't get it. Boulder is way too PC for us, and once my husband retires we will be leaving Boulder for those reasons for starters, and for the fact we can no longer afford to live here. / / Nancy Solomon, nancysol66@gmail.com, 66 Timber Lane, 80304, 720-379-7172 /
- You do what you want, and do not necessarily listen to the citizens.
- You guys need to keep 36 from being privatized.

Table 129: Question 8a (Quality of Service)

For each of the following services provided by the City of Boulder, please rate the quality of the service. Then rate how important each of these services are to the Boulder community.	Very good		Good		Neither good nor bad		Bad		Very bad		Don't know		Total

Question 10: Do you have any specific comments about your quality ratings for these programs and services?

- I am an owner of a permanently affordable house in Boulder (which on a teacher's salary, I am very thankful for) but wish there was some mobility within the program. When I lived outside of D.C.. affordable houses could be sold at market value after a
- Affordable housing programs have not been helpful for me personally, but I put "I don't know" for the quality of the service because I hear they've been helpful for some other people.
- Again, I would like to see the Rec Center questions separated between the individual rec centers. I live the closest to the South Boulder Rec center but as a senior it doesn't have programs for me. I also feel the branch libraries should be open all days of the week. It is wasted resources to have these close one day a week and it is difficult to remember which days, what is closed or open. Not everyone is close to and uses the Main Library. This causes more pollution to force someone to drive on Monday from South Boulder to the Main Library because Reynolds library is closed.
- Again, there isn't enough middle income housing to meet the demand.
- As a middle income person who would like to buy in Boulder I am sad that I don't think I'll be able to!
- Best place in the whole wide world - thank you for everything love living here.
- Boulder does a terrible job with snow removal as well as street lighting and apparently makes no effort to ensure drivers can see safely around corners while driving. I've never seen a city with so many blind corners. I've also never seen a city where as many people are allowed to run red lights on a regular basis as well as change lanes in intersections. / /
- Boulder police do not feel committed to the city as most don't live here b/c they cannot afford to . Better snow removal please. Not a big deal if a house is over capacity, let it be, other things to focus on.
- Boulder TV ch 8 is unresponsive to new ideas. Don't return phone calls or emails.
- City of Boulder Police have been too aggressive physically lately and are starting to be compared to Aurora Police or LA, with both communities having lousy police reputations.
- Enforcement of existing regulations needs to be prioritized more and new regulations need to be put in place when the existing regulations do not have their intended benefit to the community.
- Fire response should not trump other boulder priorities
- Generally speaking, the city does a decent job with these areas. Snow removal and handling is inconsistent and spotty even on major streets. I don't fault the drivers, who I think try their best and work hard to get things done. However, some of the storms this year have been met with terrible snow removal, allegedly the result of poor plow calibration.
- Good job overall with last year's floods.
- <http://www.boulderoem.org/> has been down/not accessible during every major environmental hazard in the boulder area for the past few years. TOTALLY unacceptable!
- I am not aware of affordable housing opportunities for middle income people in Boulder. If they exist it would be good to know about them.
- I am not aware of all the programs the City is involved in or to what extent.
- I am not sure which category includes dog parks, these are very important to me and I love these spaces and services!
- I am unhappy about the bums who frequent downtown. They are homeless by choice and are allowed to be dirty and break the law and hang out in the municipal campus and panhandle downtown and on corners. They are not the homeless who need and want our help.
- I believe the Police and Fire departments do an exceptional job with the tools and resources they have. With out them, we wouldn't be the great City we are.
- I can't tell you the last time I saw a policeman on Pearl St. It's like they are invisible. Who/how is the no smoking ban being enforced?

- I don't have enough experience or knowledge to rate the quality of the city's services in many cases. The few experiences I have had with police and ambulances have been good.
- I don't think over occupancy gets enforced much; at least in my personal experience this was the case. Boulder does a good job with most all of the quality issues. However, if you don't have a high level job that pays well, the job situation in this town is pretty poor.
- I have a 12 foot sailboat I like to sail at the Rez. The cost has been prohibitive for years and the product has been of diminishing quality. Sort of symbolic that a guy in a little sailboat is menaced by motorboats, forced to take on water, sail in chop. The dock I pay for is usually inaccessible due to motorboats being tied up in the way and then there are the swimmers and sun bathers. I have almost given up but my efforts to be heard over the years create a glimmer of hope. and I hang in there. Then nothing happens. It is my choice but a reasonable fee for a small boat might be fair. I pay the same as a 30 foot boat after all. Say 50 bucks to register and do the invasive inspection and then ten bucks every time you launch. As it stands If I sail 10 times a season I pay $40 per day total cost with license and permit. OUCH! Like skiing Vail! Face it. It is not that great. Match the product properly to the price.
- I have a neighbor who is a hoarder. The code enforcement dept. has been unstintingly responsive and helpful....and the judge in response to the neighbor's court appearance was remarkably sensitive, intelligent, and helpful. We the HOA Board felt heard and the hoarder was moved to alter some of his behaviors. Thank you, Boulder!
- I live in townhomes and would love to compost but can't because there is no curbside pick-up where I live.
- I reckon bike routes need to be more clear or more education. People riding their bikes on Broadway south of Iris is a disaster. / Also, I see a lot of bikes on the sidewalk. Its pretty frustrating the stop lights on Broadway for people to cross the road when they can walk a few extra feet to an intersection. / the cameras at intersections i dont believe help with safety....and whats up with the guys in minivans
- I think that our Police and Firefighter do the best they can with the manpower & budget they have.
- I think the city spends too much on Health & Human services and NOT ENOUGH on infrastructure. To wit, use a road after a big snow (I don't mind all the snow...but others do). To wit, road surfaces are horrible in many places. To wit, Parks & Open Space is wasting tons of money (I won't say what I've seen). We just need MORE focus on WHERE $$'s are going and quantifiable msmt of the ROI/impact of those spends. The City could take a few lessons on "serving the people" and NOT trying to cull fees (parking, etc) from the people. It seems this City misses that THEY work using OUR tax dollars for US and the public is the actual CUSTOMER ;-). There are many, many instances of rules/laws being passed which aren't very citizen friendly. Visit Telluride, Steamboat Springs...etc - and NOTE the attitudes of City workers toward the public.
- I think too much is made out of "Historic Boulder" and the "historic" property designation. Personally I wouldn't want my home to be classified as "Historic" as this removes owner's property rights. Police intervention with harassment/noise problems in HOA managed neighborhoods needs to be reworked so HOA residents that are being harassed by neighbors aren't bounced from police to HOA board of directors.
- I think we have a wonderful police force and program
- I think we need to do more to prepare for, and prevent fires. If you look at pictures of the tree population in Boulder 50 years ago, there were far fewer trees along Chataqua, for example. We need to thin the trees as part of our management, either through regular, small controlled burns, or now that it's so overgrown, through cutting some. I know people adore trees in this town- I do too- but we have to balance our desire for more, more, more, with the need to preserve them in the face of climate change and more extreme weather. We're not 'out of the woods' by a long shot, so let's make the woods safer.
- I would like to see more opportunities for the long-term homeless in the Boulder community. There also seems to be a major problem with 'transients' on public lands, and I would like to see them taken care(not in the pejorative sense) of more swiftly. There are ways to help those with drug addictions and other factors leading to homelessness. I wish the city would do more to address these issues.

- I would like to see police enforcement on Noise issues - especially people who have their car stereos up so loud that they vibrate the windows in my house, the young adults who play their car stereo too loud outside their home or in parks - standing around drinking and talking. I would like to see more police in the parks and neighborhoods - instead of working traffic/speed traps.
- I would like to see the city have a fast graffiti response program. I have called several times about growing graffiti tagging in South Boulder for 4 months now.
- I wrote about this above but I'm very worried (in more detail above) about all of the women victims who are arrested as offenders for domestic violence. Boulder has one of the highest rates of arresting women for DV in the U.S. Thus my low rating for municipal courts
- Ice and snow removal on side roads is non-existent and is the cause of many accidents
- I'd like to see traffic enforcement focus more on hazardous behaviors over speeding--tailgating and intimidating driving, people who continue to text while driving--I think these are more of an issue than speed traps. /
- If you walk around this city as much as I do, you see that there are places that are ignored when it comes to quality of life issues such as trash, graffiti, noise, sidewalk snow removal, occupancy, etc. (rental properties east of campus). These places do not receive the same attention to civic pride that other places in town do. 30th Street is seriously ugly if you take the time to walk it. I would like to see civic pride encouraged, promoted, and rewarded in all parts of the city, not just the affluent areas.
- I'm in the middle income bracket and I still can't buy anything in Boulder but a condo, and even "affordable" condos are few and far between. I just want a real house.
- Important to have trash and weed control enforcement- but shovelling side walks of snow is not important if Boulder can't plough neighborhood streets. My side walk has to be clear but not the road- hypocritical at best. Fine, don't do the road, but don't fine me for not doing the side walk either.
- It appears the Boulder Police are doing what they can about the "homeless" issues, but if the courts continue to allow the same violators and/or violations to occur or return to the same behaviors, there is little that can be done on the part of the police. / / I am embarrassed at times at the condition of the "municipal campus" due to the vagrants, their behaviors and trash they leave behind.
- It's not police presence that matters; it's what they do when they are present. Police appear to discriminate against racial/ethnic minorities, esp. around campus.
- Less speeding tickets, more enforcement/patrols to prevent crimes.
- Let's start to cap the services government provides. Will we next need a Boulder Herpes Project, a city ordinance banning GMOs or a citizen's advisory board for using pot while in Boulder?? Enough is enough.
- Martin Acres is not a historic neighborhood. Zoning and land use rules need to come out of the 70s, suburban mentality. Stop talking shit about all of these and do something that matches the talk.
- More enforcement of red light running than minor speeding
- Most playgrounds are not accessible for children with disabilities. Moreover, they don't have accessible all weather surfaces. It is a terrible.
- Municipal judge favors the violators more than the citizens
- Need to enforce housing codes against slum lords who rent to students and do not keep up their properties. Need to have land lords face consequences for the plethora of beer bottles and trash on the hill.
- New to Boulder (moved here last fall), so don't have enough information to make informed decisions on most, but all in all I am very happy/content here.
- no

- no
- no
- No specific comments.
- No.
- Noise control, and weed, trash and snow removal enforcement have decreased significantly in the last two years or so.
- Once had the police come into my home uninvited, and go into the shower where my friend was taking a shower as they thought a criminal had come into my home. That was a shock. And I didn't want to report this, don't want to get on the bad side of the cops. But isn't that illegal to enter and search a home when they were not invited in?
- Oops the comment about my friend should've gone here....
- Overall the city does a good job. The issue of affordable housing isn't going to get better soon unless you allocate some property to build new neighborhoods. It is just too expensive here for normal people to buy a house. The wage base doesn't support it.
- Overall, the city does a great job. Regarding bus service, why is there a neighborhood program in Newlands and not on the Hill? I would buy a pass, but since I've moved, I'm not allowed. Hmmm, seems anti-bus!
- Police and fire do an excellent job in the City of Boulder. We need to give them more of an ability to get rid of the loitering and camping that is going on along the Boulder Creek path and the mall. Its an awful representation of Boulder and being a Boulder born and raised local who still lives here, I am very disappointed in how City Council has handled it all.
- Police are responsive to business community demands, not community standards. Militalistic attitude toward Boulder-centric fun activities like Thursday Cruisers, Mall Crawl, Naked Bike Ride, etc., are not supportive of our standards.
- Police could use training /more support in dealing with ESL speakers. Have had bad experiences on this front
- POLICE HAVE RESPONDED QUICKLY WHEN CALLED.
- Police presence in the libraries would make me feel much better about using them. Even if I knew that they came and checked in with the libraries once or twice a day, I would feel much better about being in the libraries.
- police traffic enforcement does not exist. 'very bad' assumes it does
- Police traffic enforcement is "good"; but in many cases it's "too good". Setting up speed traps along major arteries like Canyon Blvd as you're leaving the city limits and heading up into the mountains is uncalled for. That's nothing but pure revenue generation; and it just leaves drivers (even those who don't get caught up in the trap) with a poor opinion of the Boulder Police Department. It just encourages people to ignore speed limits elsewhere throughout the City; since drivers lose any respect that they might have had for the Police due to such tactics.
- Probation programs for young adults are atrocious. little accountability and no assistance in helping offender to turn life around.
- Programs in Boulder especially police fire and social services are good to very good. However there is and always has been a a emphasis on getting homeless or downtrodden out of view for the elite minded of Boulder.
- Recent flood events have proven that Boulder is well prepared for emergency events.
- Sidewalks are too often overgrown with junipers etc in front of residences and it is very difficult to navigate the city with my wheelchair bound parent when they come to visit or with my child's stroller everyday. Please step up the enforcement of sidewalk usability! Also several important walking paths to downtown still have no sidewalks! 15th St between Iris and Hawthorn is very difficult to navigate as a pedestrian.
- Snow removal enforcement could be better. Busstops and bike routes not cleared. Bike paths are well cleared.
- Snow removal enforcement is horrible in north Boulder.

- Snow removal in Boulder could really use improvement.
- snow removal is badly done
- Snow removal on city streets needs to be dramatically increased. Additional roads need to be plowed and all roads need to be plowed with more frequency. Additionally, the lighting in neighborhoods in central Boulder need to be increased. There are many dark neighborhoods that I avoid riding my bike in at night because it is hard to see. My own neighborhood has zero street lights along the road my townhome is on. This feels like a major safety liability and I'm not sure how to go about getting more lights.
- Some of the traffic violations given are a waste of our resources. Police shouldn't use tickets as a way to make revenue. For example, speed traps in non-dangerous, low traffic areas are a waste of money. Those officers could be ensuring safety where the real speed violations are occurring and are far more dangerous. As well, the traffic cameras are sometimes not accurate when context is taken into consideration. /
- The affordable housing program has good parts about it but bad parts as well. It's nice to have some housing in a price range similar to the surrounding community that reflects actual income of the non-trust fund crowd in Boulder but the city's admin make financing and re-financing difficult due to rules and terribly slow responses.
- The affordable housing situation in the city is laughable. I am not qualified to buy in the city with affordable housing program because I have saved too much (by not living outside of my means, not taking vacations, not having a car) while still not having enough for a downpayment on a 2-BR market rate condo. It is sad to be a public servant and not afford to live in a home in the city in which I work. The quality of these affordable homes looks to be pitiful, I get that I am lower class by Boulder's standards, but the quality of the homes in the affordable homes really drives that home- chock full of synthetic, builder's grade materials like laminate floors and counter tops and carpet.
- The city does a fine job overall, would appreciate more vigorous law enforcement presence near the "camps" of transients/homeless downtown, along the creek path and near the library. I don't feel safe with my kids and as a middle age in good physical condition, do not feel safe near these groups if I am alone. The city needs to address this more aggressively. It is sad when a public library needs an armed guard in a town like Boulder. I have compassion for the folks who are truly down on their luck, but have resentment for the many who enjoy the handouts from the City of Boulder and to nobody's surprise choose to "hang" out in Boulder long-term. All I ask is for the city to step up enforcement and not let drug use, alcohol use in public spaces continue unabated for the fear of a frivolous lawsuit or complaint that we can't all get along
- The City needs to think hard about what is a City's role in advocating and advancing social causes. Boulder, because it is a wealthy community, has the ability to fund some of these programs but not everything is worthwhile or produces positive results. Many times "mission creep" can set into social programs without periodic reality checks about whether or not the programs are working or what they cost. This comment can actually apply to many of the general fund programs that the City runs.
- The Environmental or code enforcement area of the city used to enforce noise at night, especially in neighborhoods that have a larger concentration of college students living there. It used to be you would call about a noise complaint and dispatch would say someone will be there as soon as they can. Now you hear, they will try to get there. It seems noise enforcement has become a lower priority. The response is sporadic.
- The flood last year tested and proved the emergency response and preparedness of Boulder. I think traffic violations (auto) and protection for pedestrians and bikers could improve. Increased quality and frequency of passage for walkers could be improved. Sometimes businesses do not clear sidewalks of ice and snow deterring walkers and bikers. I wonder how the enforcement is for offenders.
- The lack of enforcement could be improved.
- The police are doing a great job!

- The police are overzealous about traffic, leading to the only conclusion that they are a funding source for the city. Shame on that! / I don't believe that there are sufficient fire people to serve a real fire, if one breaks out, and too many to respond to unnecessary ambulance chasing needs. (need less of that) / The police response is too military for Boulder, and not a community building asset. Sorry - I do not want more police action. / They are helpful on the mall, and on Uni Hill, but just an irritant elsewhere.
- The survey is -- as usual -- "tricked" to get the right answer. For example, it asks how important low income housing is, and I answered "not at all", but then it asks how well the City is doing in this area. If I answer "bad", it appears that I think the City should be doing MORE, whereas if I answer "good", it sounds like I support these programs.
- There are smokers at the north end of the Maxwell building. They are off the hospital campus but into the open space. I think this is a big danger. Neither Fire marshal nor open space folks seem to be able to change this situation.
- There aren't enough places to live for those that are low-middle earners. This hurts the diversity of our community.
- There needs to be a stronger police presence on the Hill or West of CU's campus, the Pearl St Bar area, and East of CU's campus. These areas are out of control and dangerous, especially on weekend nights. They need to put more police officers in these areas at night.
- These are general impressions. Quality may be better than my ratings reflect. I'm guessing due to lack of direct experience with many of these services.
- This city needs to focus entirely more effort on Affordable housing and lower income business opportunities (discount options). I suggest NOT spending another dollar on affordable "purchases" but rather focusing on Affordable Rental Property and assistance. Helping one owner purchase a house is stupid and does not support the entire community. Instead create a larger pool of monetary support for those who need to rent or need rental assistance and keep more people IN housing rather than risk losing even more low to middle income families to other communities.
- This is a wonderful city to live and work in.
- This survey is too long. The basic question is: are basic services adequate or good to keep City running safely and efficiently? My not reflect the full community. Some arrogance on Council.
- Too many police doing nothing but writing speeding tickets. Do any of them actually have anything important to do? Other than shooting elk in neighborhoods?
- Too many questions. Towards the end I only rated things I didn't think we're going well.
- traffic enforcement appears to be driven primarily by revenue generation, not primarily safety. Traps are routinely set at various spots for petty and inconsequential violations. Everyone knows it and sees it for what it is. Boulder has a poor reputation for this. Once I took the time to go to court, at considerable expense in professional time, to contest one of these petty trap situations. The judge ruled with me. I want quality enforcement driven by safety, not letter of and beyond the law for revenue! I have high regard for how the courts are operated both as defendant and juror.
- Traffic enforcement could be stepped up. Lots of drivers run red lights. Also, many rude drivers and bicycle riders. I believe there should be licenses for bike riders as well. They should be educated in the rules of the road for bicycles. These blinking yellow arrows are a mystery and seem to invite accidents.
- Traffic is overenforced here in Boulder.
- Tremendous number of bike thefts in the city. BPD should pro-actively set traps and monitor high theft areas, the University and high schools. Little enforcement of people riding bikes at night without lights, incredibly dangerous. Mid-block flashing walkways are ridiculous.
- Want to see laws fully enforced for transients and would love a community without so many panhandlers. If people are coming here just to get all our great services, I want that discouraged. I didn't think banishment sounded like such a bad idea, three strikes and your out or something of that nature.
- We constantly get news[nationally mostly] about outrageous malfunctioning of our justice department-judges giving grossly light sentences for chronic offenders, police departments losing court evidence, in the news now about unconscionable backlogs of untested rape kits due to incredible incompetence, serious criminals paroled who go out of jail and continue murdering people and no one gets sacked. / So where does Boulder rate on critical parameters that measure performance compared to other jurisdictions? Do they exist and if so why don't we taxpayers know about it? I still can't get over the Boulder Police official who in commenting on the Murdered Elk case said the guilty cops "made poor choices". Indeed. Do killers who get out of jail on parole also make poor choices? Who supervises the setting of Bail in serious crimes. Who pays with their careers if an obvious blatant error in giving low bail and the criminal disappears and commits another crime? / I think the biggest failing of government is a total lack of responsibility and accountability. That is the underlying issue in Boulder's idea of municipalization of a power provider. The main skill that all politicians possess is how to pass the buck.

- We definitely need real and affordable middle income housing in this city. Also, be careful housing the homeless. Be sure that you don't continue to attract people from out of state for housing. When I lived in low income housing I met many, many people who had heard about our housing programs and made their way here just for that purpose. It's bringing an unsavory element into our community. I began to feel really unsafe and am now glad to be out of that housing. But, I had to move to the county to find something I could afford.
- We had one weekend when snow & ice removal on major streets was very poor; 28th was a dangerous sheet of ice inside city limits but 36 was clean south and north of town! Need to get the trucks out there with sand or salt. / / City and county response to the 9/11 flood was excellent. Communication by web site & twitter was & is great and very valuable. Although OSMP had communications issues for the first few weeks after the flood, there was great improvement later, and of course, great work in getting things open again.
- We mentioned them previously - would like to commend the Boulder police department and emergency services of providing quality services pre and post floods. They are extremely responsive and professional.
- We need more police presence through out community and neighborhoods.
- We need TRULY affordable housing, and decent pay so that everyone can afford to live here, not just the wealthy. We need more mental health beds, so that people who need help can get it.
- While the police are effective, I wish someone told them it was OK to smile and make eye contact. They come off as unapproachable and unfriendly. I assume the chief must think that be friendly means being weak. A friendly police force would be a welcome addition to Boulder.
- Why are you asking about services that you do not provide...I do not pay the city for my trash removal or for the composting that I already do at home and had no way to opt out
- Wildfire response is bad due to lack of Type 2 IA or Type 1 IHC handcrews in the Boulder area.
- Yes, I am against pesticides and repellants for their known health hazards.
- Yes. You ask if the city is doing enough to retain businesses in Boulder. You should ask if the city should stop creating obstacles for businesses in Boulder.

Question 11: Do you have any specific comments about your answers on the importance of these programs and services?

- Addressing the homeless population is very important. In such an affluent city (median family income of $113,681.00) there is no reason why people should be hungry, surely we could do more.
- Affordable housing for everyone is really important, but there is not enough of it in Boulder.
- All of these issues are important.
- All of these items are very important, but some are more important than others where safety is concerned.
- Also, I think rolling giant fire trucks on every ambulance call is colossal waste of taxpayer dollars, especially since they aren't EMTs and don't actually render assistance. I know they are often first on the scene but I don't see the benefit that provides. Perhaps they should provide the ambulance service instead. There are hardly any fires yet the expense to support the FD is enormous. I think we should be rethinking this service.

- Also, while I feel that programs for low-income people are important, I feel they should be sliding fee, NOT free. As a middle income person in Boulder, we struggle to do ordinary things that low income people get for free. I don't want to sound like a grump, but sometimes it's annoying when some folks get the services for free you would like to participate in, but cannot. I think a sliding fee helps people value certain activities more perhaps. I realize of course that there are limited funds to help folks, and it may not be possible assist that many people with fees.
- As an active community member I would love to continue to be actively engaged - but I will probably have to go and do so in Lafayette since I won't be able to afford to buy a home in Boulder.
- Being able to sail is very important to me. Too bad I am being priced out. Too bad the experience is not a little better. Or too bad the experience and the cost are not congruent.
- Building department should be more about helping a project get built, than hindering it. Code review should not be a Gotcha contest.
- Don't let Boulder be a police state, but people (especially the young women who go to CU and party on the hill) need to be aware of the very real risk of sexual assault.
- Everything should be essential, but in the real world that doesn't happen.
- Fire prevention at the intersection of city and open space is a very big deal! More mowing and or grazing to keep the growth low.
- Focus on essential city services and priorities needs top priority over vision and more land purchases/development. I'm good with maintaining and repairs from flood. That's a bigger priority than new purchases on the horizon. Sell some to fund flood repairs and more importantly road maintenance, police, fire serviced included ALL roads in city and outskirts of city.
- For sidewalk snow removal, the main (90%+) focus should be in business districts/commercial locations. Until there is close to full compliance, please do not bother to pester people in residential locations.
- I am not sure which category includes dog parks, these are very important to me and I love these spaces and services!
- I complained about the services, because it is impossible to speak with anyone. I would like the city to have people answering calls, with posted phone numbers. That is important. Very important. / We are distancing the citizens so well that there is a disconnect between the public, the public face and the public facade. / / Does it really help us to pass laws without enforcement; does it really help people to have folks like the police and door to door enforcement who are out creating issues by bringing their military attitudes? A few folks have always been able to talk with the citizens, but where are they now that rules and regulations have taken on such a heavy part of daily life. I have not experienced people who have the capability of doing community enforcement and consensus building at the same time. Building community is the most important thing. More important than statements about solar use in a gold standard building. / Use the city's paid facilities to foster small crafts, foster NGO groups, scouts, AA, teachers meetings, homeless meeting, maybe. Use the facilities, paid for by citizens, to build a city. / Also, how important is it to have open space that no citizens can access or use? We have always voted for open space, but then access got curtailed - really? / Economically, the city has always used the theory that they have the public trust and must not spend money on the workers or unnecessary projects. Meanwhile, managers who know how to play the system have always been able to build, repaid, get more, do whatever they can justify- there is a lot of loose money in non-profit, but the workers who make things work have never really been equally to the table, it appears. Our managers have open tickets, but they seem pitted against the workers in many ways. Fire has resources and police have resources, but the rest of the ordinary folks - are they getting a fair shake? I think that is important. / /
- I feel it is essential that zoning regulations are changed. We've allowed super sized homes to be built with 5 and 6 or more bedrooms that now one couple may occupy. Families are changing as we age and the middle class shrinks. Most of us professionals in Boulder will need to live together if we are to stay in Boulder at a reasonable price. It's only time before the maximum 3 unrelated per single family home needs to be retired. It would be good for Boulder to lead the way on this for the county.

- I feel like affordable housing is such a tough issue in Boulder, and so important for quality of life and diversity. I don't think it's healthy for a community to only having housing for wealthy people.
- I feel pedestrians have been marginalized in the push to get more people out of cars. Some people are physically unable to bike. Let's make sure our town is as equally friendly to walkers as it is to bicyclists.
- I rented downtown for years. Now I rent way north. I've considered leaving Boulder as my next move -- though I really, really don't want to -- because I can't rent for the rest of my life.
- I think facilities for dogs and single adults are just as important as kids and family services.
- I think funding and space for the arts in Boulder needs to be seriously addressed. Funding and support for the arts in this community is well below average, despite the fact that we have one of the highest concentrations of artists in the nation. The City Council should consider a 1% for the arts program similar to those adopted in other cities of our size and wealth.
- I think noise control is extremely important. There is no consistency in enforcement any more.
- I would love to see more access to the arts.
- I'd like to see the police become more proactive and positively responsive, rather than just negatively reactive. I'd like to see police walking around all neighborhoods getting to know residents as community partners, rather than just cruising past in their armored vehicles. I'd like to see smiling, friendly police talking to neighbors about caring for their properties and showing civic pride. To be honest, I feel very intimidated by our city's police, and I don't like feeling that way.
- I'm hopeful this survey provides insight and change comes about - or at least awareness of how the citizens feel ;-). After all, without taxes, without customers...the City doesn't exist.
- In a perfect world, we would afford more police officers. I understand the money for this would come from tax payers, however this is one area I would approve of increased taxes.
- It is time for the arts! Please improve the Dairy - It is a wonderful part of our story!
- It is very important to have an up to date and responsive police, fire, health and general emergency services.
- It's absolutely vital to support and expand the affordable housing program so that seniors, disabled people and those of us who aren't rich can stay in the city we love. For me that's #1. I am very worried about being priced out of Boulder.
- It's important that the flood message is clear and is applicable to the neighborhoods it is being broadcasted to. We were confused if we should seek higher ground when the announcement was going off during the flood.
- It's not that any of these are unimportant, but I do think enforcement of over-occupation matters less than making sure the city is safe and clean and quiet (during the 11pm-8am time space).
- let me note that acquisition of open space is quite different from management of those lands.
- Let's try some community policing. Get cops out of their gas guzzling Tahoes and walking the Hill.
- Middle Income housing-is that 2-4 people around $150,000? That's my situation, & we're too rich for affordable housing but too poor for new construction or decent resales.
- most of these matters have some importance.... but the survey should have a "low importance category, which I could have used. /
- Nearly all of these programs and services are very important to a healthy community. There is not enough support within the city government for most of them or the existing regulations do not allow for effective enforcement.

- On the topic of historic preservation: One thing I have heard frequently of late is a lament for the 'Cherry Creek' effect that is sanitizing what was once a quirky, unique town. The flavor of the history of this wonderful city is being lost to an overly-aggressive gentrification that leaves little room for free expression. It's like the city has its own HOA dictating a narrow view of what Boulder is going to be now. The art scene, the music scene, the political scene... they've all been sanitized and marginalized. It's quite sad. I'd rather have a funky artist living next door, with weeds in the front lawn, and have my property appreciate a little bit more slowly (which, it wouldn't- it will still skyrocket relative to the rest of the nation) and have a unique and gracious community than have a mansion with a pristine yard owned by a lawyer who only spends half his time here. :(Boulder is running off the creative types, the bootstrappers and makers, and they are heading north. Our loss. In the drive for high-tech, we have lost the culture. I do love the high-tech culture, and benefit from it immensely, but they don't have to be mutually exclusive. We need to draw the artists back, with good rental prices for warehousing, rather than more condos and higher and higher rents. This is a value we need to take a stand for, much like we do for Open Space.
- One of the best programs in Boulder is the Affordable Homeownership program. Expansion of this program (and expansion of the rental programs, especially for senior citizens and low-income families) would be my first priority if I were setting out to create greater economic balance in Boulder.
- Over-regulation of energy efficiency will continue to sap money from other more important government functions such as business support and assistance to those in need.
- Police and Fire are always deemed essential to a community, but even in these areas what the community really wants from these services and the ability to pay for them should be periodically evaluated. Public safety departments also usually operate without adequate oversight and readily accept (and promote) an empire-building mentality that fosters unethical behavior (witness the elk incident last year). / Street maintenance, including ice and snow removal, and code enforcement are important functions that are usually underfunded or subject to periodic re-prioritization or micromanagement by City leaders. Boulder's priorities seem to be in areas that don't contribute to effective operation or maintenance of City infrastructure and staff does not appear to have any incentive to be efficient or responsive when these are not goals of Council.
- Police and Fire is infinitely top priority for tax dollars rather than "fluff" items for the city. / We added a lot of roundabouts and islands which I don't feel were necessary - they are a nuisance to the drivers and with / snow and ice or night driving are difficult to see. They should have luminous curbing.
- Police enforcement of bike riding violations is for the most part non-existent. Speed of bikes crossing streets, stopping at stop signs, riding too fast in pedestrian walkways, etc. Bike enforcement when riding in the streets and pedestrian right-of-ways should be a priority as the carelessness of bike riders causes many near or actual accidents.
- Police, Fire, EMS, Water, Sewer, Trash, what more do we truly need? The city needs to take care of these services first, the rest is just the topping.
- Responding to emergencies is the highest priority, especially with all of the natural disasters in this area. Also, a fair and balanced court system is very important, but I think it is hard to get effective change from repeat offenders who can continuously "play" the system and are only punished with fines that are meaningless to them.
- See my comments above regarding traffic enforcement. Yes, there is a need for police to enforce traffic laws; so it is "somewhat important". But the City seems to place much too high of a priority on speed enforcement, when they should be spending their time on other issues, which are much more dangerous -- like bikes running stop signs, and even traffic lights. Or riding bikes at night with no lights, or (in many cases) not even reflectors. How come you never hear of the Boulder Police setting up a "light trap" for bikes; and handing out tickets for that?
- Snow removal enforcement is essential to reducing cars and to safety.
- snow removal is badly done
- Someone needs to look at the arrests and convictions of women for DV who are victims because it lets the offenders get away with it and makes women afraid to call again. Certainly there are women who commit DV or are in mutually combative relationships but I've worked with way too many women who were the victims and were charged with and often convicted of DV in Boulder

- Sorry, I made comments on this in another section of the survey.
- The importance of Channel 8 during a flood or fire should be a priority - the bigger news stations do not even know the names of the streets or lakes- such as with the 4 Mile Canyon fire.
- The transient problem in this town is out of control and making smoking laws to move transients out of the muni campus is the answer. getting all the agencies in one room to figure something out is essential.
- there is a huge drug problem within the city and county. many of these individuals end up in jail and are sentenced to probation. they never receive help for the underlying cause of their problems - addiction. many end up back in jail for theft or drug possession. and the whole cycle repeats. many become homeless because their families can not tolerate their drug abuse. i speak as a mom of one of these individuals.
- There is no good housing for middle to upper-middle class people in Boulder. Boulder's housing program that taxes developer's who don't build lower income housing backfires because it causes developers to only focus on upper income luxury projects.
- There's no active enforcement of snow removal from sidewalks. It forces neighbors to report other neighbors for snow removal (not nice). This leads to dangerous walking conditions. The city is the worst violator on snow removal and weeds, not clearing its own sidewalks in winter and weeds from common areas adjacent to parks.
- These are known as 'essential services' because they are. No need to ramp up police presence; seems like they're taking care of us in Boulder.
- Too many cameras everywhere.
- Traffic enforcement is over the top (don't they have anything better to do besides trying to trap people for minor infractions that would not raise an eyebrow anywhere else?). Focus on what matters.
- Unfortunately for those who count results of this survey, I think any function the government undertakes to perform is pretty important (thus my selections). One critical area that MUST be addressed is the cyclist-car and cyclist-pedestrian issues in Boulder. I do all three - I drive my car around town, I ride my bike around town, and I walk around town. Being a cyclist on any Boulder street is a scary proposition. Yet as an avid cyclist, I am surprised at how often I find myself frustrated with cyclists who are equally as careless. Add to the mix pedestrians who also are at danger from poor drivers and careless cyclists.... It is a dangerous mix. The city needs to put together a commission with some sort of authority to address this problem - we need less police with speed traps on Foothills Parkway northbound and more police, on bikes on the streets of Boulder - a "community cycling" police program to ensure that those who drive in town are mindful and respectful of cyclists, and those who ride bikes are paying attention to the law and riding safely. Yes, seriously, I am a cyclist.
- We have enough business activity here. We desperately need affordable housing. Enough with open space..we are now built out. Let's let the rest of the world in, even people who might disagree with us. Let's end the mafia of the politically correct (and this comes, again, from a "progressive" yuk!).
- We still need to crack down on the drug dealers & transients that loiter everywhere in Boulder; especially parks and the creek path.
- We were not prepared for the September floods. Shame on Boulder for not addressing this before the floods. What other natural/manmade disasters are out there that we can be educated on proactively?
- What kind of city does Boulder want to be? A playground for the rich? Certainly seems that way. Families that are truly middle class can have a house and a yard by moving outside of city limits, inside city limits, they will be crammed into tiny places and forced to pay exorbitant hoa fees.
- Why not get everyone riding the bus?

- you go from somewhat important to very important, skipping over important. An oddly large gap of response.

Question 13: Are there any other ways you'd like to receive information?

- An opt-in City e-newsletter would be nice.
- An unmanaged (free for all, uncensored) public forum city web site requiring registration and the use of real names, for accountability. There's no adequate forum for public debate about city of Boulder issues. The city is filled with smart people who for the most part, are not engaged in city issues. The city should involve a wider spectrum of people.
- based on the criticality of the information the appropriate method should be chosen.
- Be more proactive on getting earned media. Seems like there isn't much of a strategic communications "plan" from the city.
- Better investigative journalism by Daily Camera. They are getting worse and worse! But I still subscribe...
- Bouldedr Weekly is the best news service in town
- Boulder County "Newsletter" in the mail
- Boulder should publicize the list serves more actively
- Camera is most read here at office.
- cell phone alerts
- Channel 8 is a waste of city money. They have no info about current events and do not notify people about emergencies, school closures, etc.
- Channel 8 use to provide more information that we are seeing currently. During the floods there was next to nothing on channel 8. We do not use social media. Phone contact can and has been extremely helpful. Not all families are plugged into the internet or social media.
- Community bulletin boards where I walk frequently
- direct e mails
- Direct mail ensures that everyone who lives in the city receives the information. A monthly newsletter that is inserted in the water utility bill would work.
- Don't send me mail. That's what the internet is for.
- email

- email
- Email is best
- Email is the best approach
- Email newsletters
- emails; I found it hard to get info on the night of the flood; no phone alerts were sent.
- From excited friends
- Google calendar
- Health Insurance, Free Programs and Services
- Hey, get a proof reader who speaks English to proof read your survey questions. The main heading questions are very poorly written. It's difficult to know what you are asking. Hello, you forgot to ask about the Boulder Weekly: I wonder why?
- I can take responsibility for my own life, thank you.
- I do not own a computer at home - Channel 8 is your best source
- I object to receiving COLORED (expensive) inserts with my water bill or any other city mailing. I would prefer electronic delivery.
- I think Boulder's city and county websites are great!
- I would like to be able to call the city with public phone numbers available.
- Include the Denver Post as well please
- inserts into other bills such as property tax or car registration would be fine
- It's not about receiving information - it's about responding when issues arise!
- Kiosks on Pearl Street
- KUNC Public Radio
- Less paper, better website info
- My City e-mail account and access to Dailycamera online fulfills my needs.
- Neighborhood meetings
- Neighborhood meetings with city employees or council meetings
- no
- No
- No thank you.
- No.
- Please stream the cable channel 8 online so that those who do not own TVs can watch it on their computers.
- radio
- Robo calls in emergency situations such as the flood.
- Small gatherings and events at the smaller local parks, a city app for mobile and tablet devices.
- Telepathy. Work on that.
- Text instead of email perhaps? Sign up on a list with your phone number so it just sends texts about info like that in a lump.
- This is a hard one because all of these seem unreliable. The Camera has become garbage and channel 8, the camera, the city's media seem like a bunch of BS propaganda.
- Town Meetings and public forums. City celebrations where we can come together as a real community
- Twitter is very effective; I follow key city & county agencies.
- Would love to be on a e-mail from the city group

Table 135: Question 14

Question 16: Are there other services that you would like to see offered by the Boulder Public Library?

- 1. More promotion to let residents know programs are almost always FREE. 2. More programs at daytime hours for seniors.
- a bigger variety and more frequent opportunities for the neighborhoods to get together at branch libraries. ie: book clubs. they do a nice job with what they have.
- A branch in North Boulder is very overdue.
- A branch in north Boulder...around the Violet Ave area
- A director that actually cares about the library!?
- a full service library north of jay st. gunbarrel would be great location.
- A good place for kids to study, but with technology I feel libraries will have to up date their purpose and mission and resources.
- A paid internship program for those interested in seeing what it's like to work at a library, even if a short, temporary position.
- A real library in North Boulder.
- a roller rink!
- a safer inside environment. it is a haven for homeless people and we need to increase and improve what we can offer them so the library can serve its purpose
- access to professional journals (e.g., in science educ, environmental educ, land use/sustainability)
- Another/more used book and media sale(s)
- Appreciate the meeting spaces made avail. to the community - thank you. Would like to be able to check out magazines for 2 weeks.
- As I said, i think that the city should make its facilities available, as do other cities, by the way, to people with groups , NGOs, or think tanks even. The city seems to be interested only in money, so making locations available through the library would be great- the library needs more money to fund those of us who get our books downloaded. The current downloaded company is a second rate company, and we do not have access to the better available resources. Give the library more money!!!Use that fabulous place.
- Before I am interested in any library services, the city has to make sure it is no longer used as a day shelter for homeless and transients.
- Boulder library = homeless hang out. I quit taking my family there.
- Branch located in Gunbarrel
- Bring back the cafe! :)
- But I would not want to lose the facility...my kids love it there
- Cafe, hangable art to check out
- CHILDREN'S STORY HOURS
- Clear out the dangerous bums for that children and families are welcome. The library caters to the transients, not the residents.
- Coffee Shop, management of the homeless situation.
- Comment: These are all great services; I just refuse to be on a computer on weekends, since I live behind one during the work week.
- community spanish/french/german/mandarin classes would be great since there is so much diversity in the city
- Continue the wonderful children's programming and free/affordable arts, theater and movies.
- Discourage the transients. The library is for access to information, not shelter and sink bathing
- diversity, environmental and social awareness programs.
- Easier (no time limit) access to computer software tutorials
- Educational Programs - e University

- Feel they should be allowed to put donations into their collections if they deem it of value. It would help them increase their collection without additional expense.
- free use of study rooms for citizens - for 2 people as well as for groups
- Get rid of the bums underneath the LIBRARY - they are scary and threatening! I can't use the downtown library for htis reason.
- Get rid of the unsavory characters at the libraries who just come in to bathe and sleep.
- Hands on, taught by very effective, efficient instructors on practical use of computers and smart phones. Don't waste our time with a half-baked instructor.
- Hate the term but a makerspace. I really want access to woodshops and other tooled areas without setting one up in my garage.
- home delivery for the elderly, larger catalogue, fewer homeless people...sorry
- I currently use many online Boulder public library services, and am very appreciative to have them.
- I do not use these services, but a good library is vital.
- I enjoy the public library, but do not always feel comfortable going there with all the people in the park that surround it.
- I listed 'not likely' as I do not use the public library. However I feel like the services would be useful to those who would take advantage of them.
- I LOVE my going to BPL. The ability to reserve books online is a great service.
- I really like the Main library. I just don't hang out there very long because of the bums, though it has gotten much better.
- I seriously love our library system. One thing I would like (and the city is trying to address this) is more favorable outdoor spaces in which to comfortably sit and read without being affected by secondhand smoke, noise, trash, etc.
- I use the book hold service a lot; would it be possible to have more books on the shelf to reduce waiting times?
- I will not go into the downtown public library until the transients are gone.
- I would like to see all of our libraries be available all days of the week. Users should expect to pay for some of these servces above, I don't think the library should be a free ride, as these services are expensive.
- I would like to see the library provide services for lending more technology. Like what about having the library host a community sound stage and video production studio?
- I would not go to the library alone or with my children due to the smell and the homeless that are living in there.
- I would pay a small amount to download audiobooks when I wish, rather than waiting for other users to "return" the book back into the library. This would require the library to buy audiobooks by "number of listens" rather than by "number of copies of the book
- I'd like to see it kept very clean. I think maintenance gets discouraged with all the transients around. I want it safe for children. I want people thrown out if misbehaving or sleeping for long periods.
- If I can actually avoid a trip to the library, I'm on board.
- Im trying to figure out how to access more things from my home computer- genealogy, consumer reports, and databases. The kids love audiobooks.
- Improve the useability of the web site
- It needs to be safe for our children to be there inside and out. Maybe police patrol presence? Check in presence? Not sure how to do this and offer services to all.
- I've attended many small group meetings at the Main and Meadows branch, and really appreciate that we can rent rooms for our own meetings. I hope that will continue, too, as a community resource.
- Kids reading to dogs program

- Libraries are becoming obsolete. Need to refocus and/or repurpose the library system.
- Library is a great asset
- Literacy programs
- Longer checkout time for overdrive books (like other libraries). Library loan via overdrive. A small branch in NE Boulder.
- lots of books, a "gathering" place where ideas are exchanged, community info board, the fish tank back, affordable coffee spot close to entrance, the "mail" program returned
- Maintain free concert series.
- Make it a safe place for families with kids.
- make it all accessible online. I am not sure that a space to store hard cover books is necessary. What is the library of the future - is it community space; start-up incubator business space; day care; senior care???
- Make the places safe so that folks feel comfortable going to the facilities.
- makerspace tools - 3d printers & laser cutters
- More availability, somehow, of popular books and movies
- More books
- More free music programs
- More meeting spaces
- More science programs, more teen programs too.
- more services for Dyslexic adults and children, after all they do make up 15-20 % of the general population - people who read by ear.
- no
- no
- No
- No.
- open every day at all sites.
- Places in the libraries to read. Maybe use a library card to go thru a turnstyle?
- Please continue offering story time, toddler time and musical story time programs. We attend them all!
- Safety for users
- Shift from programs and "things" to a process more like archiving, protecting. Obsolescence is on the horizon for brick and mortar libraries.
- So far each time i've visited the library my inquiries or information needs were fulfilled.
- Spanish for English Speakers
- Stahl Lectures (Health issues), doncerts, plays, performances
- support for linux in their ebook offerings
- the Boulder public Library is a gem!
- The library does a great job
- the list above is a pretty impressive scope
- THEATER and more MUSIC
- toddler specific story hours. more programming for children under 5. remove pot smoking bums from campus.
- training on how to use these E services
- We stopped utilizing the main library. It had basically become a day care center for homeless people. If that is what is needed then - ok, we are no longer comfortable going to the facility.
- Work w. non-profits and city police to resolve homeless issues, move people off homeless lifestyle.

- Yes! I wish BPL would return to accepting donated books for their stacks instead of selling these to public. Most of the very interesting books, cd and DVD's that I've checked out of the library were donated. The "pop" culture items the library buys are junk!

Somewhat likely	22%	N=103
Not at all likely	34%	N=162
Total	100%	N=471

Question 21: Do you have any other comments you would like to make?

- (as to the Eco Pass program - kids need to ride public transportation to get to school and it is expensive and the times very inconvenient. My "likelihood" of purchase depends on price. In spring and fall I urge kids to ride bike to school)
- a city or county wide EcoPass would be great! also, flood response at least in my neighborhood near Twomile Creek was good - impressed at the immediate response early Thursday and in following weeks.
- A new skatepark would be sweet
- An ecipass for Boulder County would be great.
- As a very responsible tax-paying citizen for over 30 years...I'd like to get more for the amount of increased taxes I pay each year. Everyone who pays taxes in the City of Boulder should be allowed to get a reasonably priced ECO Pass. I LOVE riding the bus...but, cannot get a Pass because RTD/City has decided to play some weird games about how they parse up blocks in my neighborhood. Please fix that!! Thx!!
- As an older, retired person, I spend more time at home & get most of my information about the city from Channel 8. I enjoy watching news programs & council meetings. I often go to the public library downtown & see the homeless or transient people outside & inside the library. The courteous library guards and police seem to have a good handle on helping them.
- being over 65 i find the Eco Pass program through my work not economical. It is cheaper to purchase either monthly pass or 10 ride tickets.
- Boulder cops can be real jerks sometimes over minor traffic violations. They behave they like have quotas to meet.
- Boulder encourages too liberal of an attitude in everything
- Boulder has several stores that I love (Whole Foods, Peppercorn,Boulder Bookstore) however, I seldom, if ever, go to these places because their parking situations are SCARY - overcrowded, frustrated and frustrating and basically an accident waiting to happen. Boulder's traffic situation is nightmarish - bicyclists riding in ways that would be unsafe if one were driving a hummer and are suicidal in persons who have no more protection than the cotton/hemp clothing on their backs; and congestion that makes driving a hurry up & wait obstacle course. The thought that the city is encouraging the addition of more apts bringing thousands more people & cars is appalling. Why create higher density when projects like the Peloton and half empty?
- Boulder has so much potential to be the most amazing small town in the country but relies too much on business and the college leaving a lot of people out. If there were more ways to foster community by getting every citizen involved in one cause, getting to know each other, promoting the weird—I would be convinced that I would want to be here for the rest of my life.
- Boulder is a beautiful place. It would be great if City staff started listening to feedback from its citizens.
- Boulder is a GREAT place to live! (only criticism: the city's new website is nearly unusable. very unfortunate change. hire a usability analyst and good UX designer to fix it.)
- Boulder is a great town.
- Boulder is an "island" from our wonderful Open Space program. This brings with it certainly responsibility not to create a tragedy of the commons situation from "overgrazing". As mentioned previously, we can't build our way to greater mass transit/bike use or significantly altering the % of the population that lives and works in Boulder. Dual earner households, etc. will likely keep the split near what it is today. Let's take a hard look at what the last ten years of housing growth has done to the mix and if it has not changed, it will likely remain the same. The continued "densification" of the city is impacting the quality of life and a tipping point to the kind of traffic that occurs in overbuilt towns in California or the Northeast is not far behind. There is plenty of reasonably priced housing in South Boulder or East Boulder. I really fear that we are going down a path of a lowest common denominator by overbuilding in the city. / / The second comment is about the municipal utility. Sadly, it appears that the lawyers and consultants will do great and the tax payers will not do as well. Was there a voice of reason that thought about creating an incentive system to provide low or zero interest loans for solar/energy efficiency that could be tied to a lien/property tax increase? That way, we could have left Xcel with the issues of managing the grid and moved to a city that generates as much power as it uses. Certainly, many homeowners when faced with a choice to save money with no money down would jump on that. Using some quick math, if 10,000 city residents were provided with a $8,000 loan (post federal tax incentive) to put a 4kwh system on their roofs, the city would need to borrow $80MM dollars at a 3% rate. If the city picked up the entire interest tab on the loans, the cost to the city would be $2.4MM per year, declining as the bonds are repaid. The math is just a quick estimate, anyway wish we had looked for an easier way to the goal of being carbon neutral and is essence getting Xcel to subsidize it.

- Boulder is great! / There have been a number of times on Pearl St lately I've seen people with dogs & riding bikes & smoking, & I haven't seen any police & those things aren't allowed.
- Boulder is growing too big for it's britches.
- Boulder is such a great place to live! Please help to maintain the current level of quality of life here. No more overly tall buildings. No more approval of high density mixed use development...make that area a park instead! Buy up more open space while it is still available. Thank you!
- Boulder needs to invest in it's cornerstone arts organizations more equitably. It's sad that other Colorado communities are benefiting from amazing new arts facilities while Boulder's best continue to toil in outdated facilities with limited city/county support. There is great art in Boulder, it needs to be embraced and nurtured. And please don't use city money to support a new performing arts facility that is focused on bringing in outside groups. Support what's made locally!
- Buses are all well and good, but the paths to the bus stops are never cleared of snow. I just took a bad tumble at Broadway and Bluebell on 1/27. Hurt both knees and still can't use my left arm. Thank you, City of Boulder, for taking care of this underpass.
- Buses aren't
- Channel 8 was useless during the flood. Information was very difficult to obtain. The emergency sirens are sometimes hard to understand and there was no further information on OEM (for 20 minutes), on the boulder.gov website or anyplace else I could find. In fact, during the September flood channel 8 had an ad for the 4th of July Ralphie parade!
- City Council seems completely out of touch with reality.
- City of Boulder needs to support the arts with additional funding. Cities such as Fort Collins are funding the arts with 2 times of the funds that the City of Boulder allocates to the arts.
- Code enforcement is a joke. Snow sidewalks are NEVER addressed, pets are never addressed on the Pearl Street Mall or leashed parks areas, animals are far more important than people in Boulder, I am afraid to walk any pedestrian or bike path due to inappropriate people, idiot bicylists and unleashed pets, bicyclist have full control of the streets, they cut you off and curse you in the same breath, their empowerment that is ridiculous with no regard for rules of the road. Business in Boulder is all about who you know, upper crust jerks have all the benefits and the middle class are treated with total disrespect. Boulder has no outstanding qualities once you start living here. It's all smoke and screens. Very unfortunate!
- Depends on how much the passes were of course. thanks.
- DO SOMETHING ABOUT THE TRANSIENTS!!!
- Eco Pass is a great service.. I think it should be made available to the entire city. It takes time to get folks used to using bus but this is important if we really want to be a Green City.
- Focus on arts, commercial space, meeting space, the aging population, attracting good employers and keeping them more. Focus on bicycles and open space less. Focus more on closed space. We need more balance in this city. I love open space but it is over funded.
- Focus on the infrastructure. GIVE the mountain people roads. Limit the bicyclists access to sidewalk paths. Many are rude and nearly run over me and my children a number of times. Especially the ones that ride with their unleashed dogs. Keep up patrol on the paths. Thanks
- Forget the city electric utility. The cost is too high. Forget it. Grow up and let it go.
- Good lord, this was the longest survey I've ever seen. That has to impact participation! I myself gave up on several sections.

- Grateful to live and work in Boulder after 40 years here. It was tough to buy a home here in boulder in 1991 after renting for the previous 17 years. Boulder was expensive then and is expensive now for anyone with low to moderate income. Only through combing two incomes could we eventually buy a home and part of why we are considering leaving is that the cost of living here is so high. The city could manage their resources better. Over the past 5 years we have watched poor use of funds for street improvements that have not been coordinated with utility improvements and the same streets and sidewalks being torn out and put in twice and even three times. Could there be better coordination of street projects with utility improvements. We would like to see Boulder have a "No leaf blowers" ordinance. You really need to review how much of these leaves are affecting storm sewers with lazy blowing around of leaves. Unclear why the continual leaking of from properties that have been approved to add basements in a high water table. Seeping and running water is creating green algae and mixing with leaves - and wasting resources. Dogs - There is far too much consideration given to dogs accessibility to trails. There are nearly no trails that are dog free. Consider a access a ride rtd bus -like the one used in louisville. Thank all of the city employees who respond to citizens in need, work odd hours, such as police, fire, emergency workers. We very much appreciate all they do.
- Great job. Very extensive survey.
- How about we stop with all the pet project and bullshit about "community values," and start paying attention to basic city services. Why keep buying open space in other communities if you cannot manage what we already have. Bring our suburban land use and zoning laws into the 21st century.
- I am concerned about automobile traffic that is increasing. I have noticed that there are many bicyclists who don't seem to obey the rules of the road; turning a corner and not stopping, shooting out from a multi-use path to cross the road (this happens to me on Glenwood between 28th and Folsom) It's truly scary! There has to be more education for riders and seeing that there are consequences for not obeying rules for their safety.
- I am disabled and an elder. The Boulder Public Library Special Services program is wonderful for myself and my partner, who is also an elder!
- I am disappointed with the cities ability to listen to my concerns about my work place.
- I am extremely concerned that our Open Space is being transformed into a public park, its wildlife and rare plants are disappearing, and Council is reckless in terms of protecting and adequately funding it. What has happened to our environmental ethic?
- I am extremely pro-muni, so I hope that the city makes that program work. Even if it does not meet the renewable resources criteria, it is still important to have a muni that is non-profit and more responsible to the community and not the corporation who raises our rates to cover their blunders made in other areas. The website used to be better. It is hard to find info that was easier to find in earlier versions. The Council can be frustrating as they can't seem to figure out priorities at times. The snow plowing protocol needs to be completely overhauled: for safety, snow should be plowed to the ground - salt is better than ice. And if you cannot plow to the road that day, do it when it is slush so it doesn't refreeze and become more dangerous. The roads are too dangerous to drive on in Boulder, especially the secondaries through the residential streets. Other towns can do it, so Boulder needs to learn from them and the Midwest, who do it right, One last comment - stop allowing developers to build more residential in areas that do not need it. The city is allowing a ridiculous number of residential dwellings to be built in Gunbarrel when the current facilities cannot even handle the number of people currently using them. The City needs to assess balance and discourage building for the sake of building so some one else can make a buck and run (which is what developers do), leaving everyone else to suffer. That area needs more commercial (like restaurants), but not more residential - if anything, it already needs more parking for the current residents.
- I am not comfortable with all the transients on the boulder bike path, I do not always feel safe using the bike bath west of the Tea House and up to the mouth of the canyon. I
- I do not live in boulder, can not afford it. I just work for the City

- I don't know the accuracy of this statement but I hope you get the idea. / A few years back we vote to approve fasttrack from Denver Boulder Longmont etc. They were asking for millions or billions for it to be approved, which it was. Then we find out it was for a study only and fasttracks was not really going to include rail. Does this seem like we have wasted millions through deception?
- I feel I live (mostly) the small footprint lifestyle we are all or pought to be after. Getting greater buy in is yough, social engineering being a slippery slope. What do we do with the 60 K in-commuters without ANY buy in and maybe worse in that they don't live but only work here. Resentment does not foster community unity last time I checked. The leaning takng place toward the rich and their proclivities is having a great influence on things. Bless the kids and the students (and the rest of us) who do fill our busses and bike racks. Here is to those for whom a house under 6,000 sf is adequate. To those I see on the bus (including my mayor, city council members and County commission members you are part of the solution. To the rest may the incentives and disincentives add up. The editorial forum in the Camera recently included an imformal survey done in a workplace by I believe Ed Byrne. 58 people all with Eco Passes. One rode the bus. With THAT traffic jam each day and a free bus pass, one might think...Well that is our dilemma. The 300 pound gorilla. After 23 years it has only gotten worse despite a lot of efforts on the part of many. Good Luck!
- I feel that there is too much money wastage on parks, as in too many expensive playgrounds getting built and replaced.
- I greatly appreciate the City Council's efforts to transition to renewable energy, particularly through exploring a municipal utility. Also, I hope the City will strongly protect net metering for solar panels.
- I have called a city council member-- years ago, I gave up after that--- about how poorly timed the traffic lights are on the main streets (e.g., Broadway) and how it seems like timing them better would not only make traffic more efficient but would cause a lot less pollution
- I have lived in Boulder for a total of 18 years and I wish it would maintain its "small city" ambience---if it keeps growing and becoming just like any other city in the US, it will lose its uniqueness and livability.....and why is the architecture of new buildings put up in the last 5 years have to be the same? It is becoming boring.....
- I have lived in Boulder since 1973. It is still a very good and interesting place to live, and I will stay long term.. But, it is slowly but surely becoming another high density City, with all the problems that brings with it. Traffic congestion, quarrels over dogs, more vertical development, with loss of views and small community feel. It's harder to feel a community-wide spirit. I think it is worth the effort to try to create a sense of common values for the City, but I don't think the huge focus on the municipal energy issue is the way to do it. It probably has something to do with quality of life, and defining the issues that mater to people in that regard.
- I live alone in Gunbarrel and seldom drive into Boulder. I don't have the need of an Eco-pass.
- I love Boulder and we can make it better for those who are having a hard time living in this expensive city.
- I love Boulder!
- I love Boulder; and am a fourth generation of a six generation Boulderites!!!!
- I love living in Boulder! / / I am sad to see Wal-Mart in my neighborhood though... In efforts to "revamp" that plaza on 28th and Iris, who though Wal-Mart would be an improvement?!?!
- I love this town.
- I may not use my RTD pass via my job at CU much, but my partner rides the bus at least twice a week to Denver and he has to pay full price, wish I could give him mine since he is the commuter!
- I said some before, now this is taking too long.
- I submitted another survey assuming I'd have a chance to make a comment at the end of the survey. Unfortunately I didn't so I started this survey for the sole purpose of making a comment or 2. First the traffic, I think it would be better if the city installed more photo tickets and had the lights synchronized so that traffic moved more at a better pace, without having to stop at lights so frequently. No matter what the incentives are I will be driving my car during the day. How about making the traffic run more efficiently. Secondly, it seems like the dog haters get the attention of city council more than the dog lovers do. How about adding a question to the OSMP surveys asking people how they feel about dogs in general. Dog lover? Neutral? Dislike dogs? Dogs don't belong off leash in open space? The green tag program is incredibly rigid and it really doesn't seem to represent the Boulder I know. The Boulder who allows dogs at McGuckins, The Home Depot, 29th Street Mall? Come on, the rigid rules are due to the dog haters in Boulder and don't represent our dog loving community.

- I suggest you employ a survey company different from Qualtrics. Surveys can be made that are much simpler in design and less redundant.
- I think eco passes should be allowed for everyone.
- I think many here appreciate the creative approach our government leaders take. However, I also know many are dis-encharmed with government here in Boulder. Perhaps it's lack of involvement of a broad spectrum that represents parts of Boulder. It seems there is NOT. Perhaps those of us with busy lives should 'run' for offices/elected positions. Asking anyone on City Council OR employed by the City their links to Boulder, would likely yield a large number of transplants who've subscribed to the 'groupthink' which currently prevails.
- I think turning the water off in the dog parks for months at a time when they have freeze proof stand pipes that work fine in Maine but for some reason do not here ridiculous.
- I thought this survey was complete and well done. Bad surveys are a pet peeve of mine, this one was helpful, clear, and will hopefully collect valuable information for the community. I am new to the area and appreciate this communication.
- I want the city to focus on its arts offering and support to artists. Particularly accessibility to affordable studio, gallery, and classroom space. A community arts center, supported by the city as well as more funding for the arts.
- I was part of the low income programs here in the City and they were really great, but when I started to make more money, transitioning into market rate housing was extremely difficult. I would like to see more middle income options for both rental and purchase.
- I wish City of Boulder would build some city subsidized housing for middle income people. I am a landlord who is struggling even though I'm getting market rents I cannot afford needed health care or repairs to my own home. Please do not instate a rent control. I own three homes and my "gross income" is significantly below the Boulder county medium income. I wish the city or county would help homeowners/landlords with low interest loans.
- I work, but do not live in the City of Boulder. Public transportation is not available where I live.
- I would compost but I live in a condo complex which doesn't compost. You probably should take that into consideration when you ask about composting.
- I would like to see the city support the remodel of the Dairy Center for the Arts. It is an important component in Boulder's Arts and Cultural development.
- I would support a resident Eco pass program. My old neighborhood had it. My current building does not. I think to further Boulder's move toward increased multiple-modal (non auto) transit more frequent buses and better walking facilities and connectivity are essential.
- I'd like to see more balance in City government and not so focused on the environment and open space. I know that address some of the social issues are tough but if we paid as much attention to them as municipalization then Boulder would be a leader in that area. City staff hold perceptions of what it means to be low income or a person of color that aren't necessarily accurate and impact their effectiveness. I find that the perception of Boulder is strong that even with data that may contradict some of those perceptions, there is resistance to accepting that maybe we need to make some changes.
- If Boulder can't maintain the restroom in a public park, how will it be able to operate an electric utility? / Boulder needs to maintain its facilities before building any new ones and then letting them decline into disrepair as well.

- If the residents are loving Boulder the business will come. Make no concessions to attract business as it is over kill. boulder is one of the most desired places on the planet. Don't demean intrinsic value.
- It is a great community to live in. City and county employees are extraordinarily efficient,
- It was disheartening to lean that Non-profits no longer receive a discount for Eco-Passes.
- It would have been nice if, at the start of this survey, you gave people some idea how long it would take to complete. This survey took WAY longer than I expected.
- It's a great town -- not perfect, but I love it.
- I've lived in Boulder for over 60 years and don't want to live anywhere else. I hope I can find a way to stay her until I die.
- Keep the Eco pass office open a month later
- Keep up the good work City Council. You are an amazing, talented, and hard working group of folks who get paid almost nothing for the tremendous service that you perform.
- Keep up the good work! It is a pleasure living in Boulder.
- Less is more. Please consider adopting approaches more like for profit businesses. Consider ROI before launching initiatives. Is there a standard for an ROI within the City? How about 36 months becoming the performance measure? We've landlocked ourselves by location, geography and ordinances. Let's start thinking like a community that can't continue to put 10 pounds into a five pound box.
- Loosen up land use codes to allow more creativity and greater variety in building types. The city really needs to revisit single use zoning that institutionalizes urban sprawl. Multi-use, higher density zoning is the only way you'll ever move people out of cars, make walkable neighborhoods, encourage bike and pedestrian transit over cars.
- Love Boulder, but panhandling and transients make it less desirable to live in. People who live downtown walk a lot and get asked for money a lot. Several times a day. Make it stop. Would support paying additional taxes for homeless services if it stopped the panhandling.
- Love living here. Municipalization is a huge mistake.
- MORE SUPPORT FOR THE ARTS!
- Much of the damage to property during the flood was from backing up sewer lines. The city should identify the areas where their lines backed up and then provide sewer backflow preventers or valves for these buildings. It should be the City responsibility to maintain their sewer lines to prevent backup situations.
- My family would like to encourage the city to establish an office of ombudsperson in order to facilitate responses from the government to the citizenry. At this time, finding the right person to ask and then getting a response is glacially slow if one can get the information at all.
- My house was flooded. I understand the city made decisions about canals to close or open. How did you decide? Why did a local business that got wiped out get no assistance? How would increasing taxes help that?
- no
- No
- No density in Boulder.
- NO to city of Boulder acquiring/surveying or anything with Excel Energy, let's just leave it the way it is.
- One question asked about "Discrimination due to your background or personal characteristics". Sure, I don't have any trouble with this, but I'm a reasonably affluent, white, straight-presenting, cis, and male who grew up around here. I'm not the one who needs to worry about that in Boulder.
- Overall a great place to live. I just wish there were more middle-income housing available in Boulder.
- Overall, I'm very happy to live in Boulder and consider it one of the best places I've ever lived.
- Parks and Recreation: maintenance for sand volleyball courts is poor.

- People under 18 should ride free on buses. Then they won't be so excited to get a car. Also families will be more likely to use a bus. Right now it is cheaper for me to drive my family around town in our inexpensive to maintain car vs taking the bus. Yes, my calculation includes all car-related costs over the lifetime of our car. It is about half the cost to drive vs paying bus fare for all of us.
- Please ban the use of plastic bags in grocery and retail stores. Please also ban styrofoam. Please advertise the state program that provides financial assistance for people buying electric cars- I think most people don't know about this program. Please even out the sidewalks so older people don't stumble. Thank you for the work that you do.
- Please continue to aggressively address the transient situation in downtown. It is so bad it is causing me to seriously move from my wonderful home. It's become a great location logistically to live, but the transients and their dogs are an interruption to my life. Also, the traffic situation at Canyon and Broadway is ridiculous during busy times-especially during Farmers Market days. It needs some serious attention. The Arapahoe Rd traffic is miserable, too. All that down time for construction and no one thought to do widening, traffic flow work while the street was closed.
- Please continue to monitor the homeless issues in our community and help to make our community feel safer again. I don't even walk along the Boulder Creek path anymore, even in groups. I miss those walks.
- Please do all you can to keep transients in check. I am tired of panhandlers and some bums everywhere. I think the city of Boulder does a pretty good job. I'd like to see more care of plantings and flowers in parks and city property. The mall is fabulous, but I guess that is partly private funding? I'd like to see people penalized for weedy or trashy yards and sidewalks not shoveled.
- Please improve the graffiti response program. Please continue having great bike access. We live living in Boulder. We do think Boulder could be more tolerant (not progressive, but tolerant of different ideas). And how can we create a better community on the paths in Boulder? Like a "share the path" courtesy campaign where bicyclists slow down when passing and announce they are passing. I love how many people ride in Boulder and I have been astounded a huge lack of safety awareness and general courtesy cyclists have for walkers, slow riders, and kids. Is there a person or place to create some sort of courtesy campaign for Boulder paths?
- Please include outskirts for the Eco pass. I would pay more. I'm a half mile from the limits.
- Please look into expanding the south boulder rec centre so there are more facilities and classes. The staff there are wonderful.
- Protected bike lanes
- Provide opportunities for Eco Passes for ALL residents. There are currently residents, like myself, that would love an Eco Pass, but don't qualify. I feel very unfairly left out, and as a consequence I drive much more than I prefer. I'd much rather bus around town, but paying full price for transit is just too costly for me. I'm not one of the affluent residents of our city.
- Put more Police on the Hill, Pearl St, and East of CU's campus during the night. Ban Panhandling and run the homeless transients out of town. Get rid of the height restrictions on buildings and promote development of high density apartment buildings for the Hill to alleviate/contain student housing. Focus on promoting development of homes in the $200-$800,000 range for families. Make Boulder more friendly to businesses.
- Quality of life in Boulder is outstanding. I feel fortunate to live here and am grateful for the City's Affordable Housing Program.
- Quit treating the vagrants and transients like GODS. They will never change their behaviors if the City continues to enable them.
- Regarding transportation - I am retired - live in South Boulder. Trips around Boulder are mostly for shopping, meals out and appointments. I do try to consolidate trips, but generally they are not were the busses go. I think we have way too many busses on Broadway. It is a 4 lane street but really 2 lane as most drivers have to drive the left lane because of the buses. The buses I see in my neighborhood - Lehigh Dr - are generally almost empty. Surveys need to be done for ridership and buses cut accordingly - these add to our pollution.

- Retaining the middle class in Boulder is a big problem because the city is becoming more and more unaffordable. Housing costs are OUTRAGEOUS and many other things are more expensive here as well, like our Farmers Markets and boutique stores. My middle class friends move away once they want to buy property for their families. Boulder is becoming dominated by the rich, and this is a very very unfortunate change that is affecting the culture and community feel. Most market-rate condos and housing are luxury level—not for the middle class. The city needs to do more to encourage developers to build housing for the middle class. The affordable housing program can't be the only solution.
- See comments previously made.
- Smoking is a growing concern throughout the city and issues surrounding smoking enforcement should have been included in this survey.
- snow removal is badly done in Boulder
- So far I've seen no questions related to Human Services. I wonder why this is? It's been this way for a long time. I've never understood why this isn't more of a priority for our City Council. Please make funding of our high quality agencies (Boulder Valley Women's Health, Boulder Shelter, Mental Health Partners, Transitional programming etc) a priority.
- Strongly encourage community-wide Eco Pass implementation
- survey too long
- Thank you Boulder for all you have offered so far.
- Thank you for giving me this opportunity to express my thoughts and give kudos to our 1st responders.
- Thanks
- Thanks for all you do to make our city so great!
- Thanks for doing this!!
- thanks for giving us this opportunity.
- The buses are frustrating if you have to transfer. The connections are less than elegantly timed and popular connection points should accommodate transfers better.
- The city council is out of touch with the vast majority of residents. The city manager and police chief are trying to do a good job but they are hampered by the council. In particular, need to manage transients. This can be done by avoiding handouts and transitioning to meaningful work, addiction and mental health programs, e.g., cannot use the shelter is had ETHOL or drugs in system.
- The City Council members are voted into office at-large. That means they should be representing all the residents in Boulder. They should not be making derogatory public statements about places like the new Neighborhood Walmart grocery store as many in the community needed this type of lower cost purchasing venue. That includes many of your resident Seniors as well as the local labor force working in our restaurants, hotels, etc. Council members do a great disservice to all the community when they push or publicize their personal views about how we all should be spending our money and where we should be spending it.
- The Eco Pass is very hard to get because of the limited hours they are open. For those of us that work EVERY week day it is impossible to get. Maybe more user friendly hours, such as 8am would be helpful.
- The EcoPass Neighborhood program is totally unfair to people who have smaller households. My neighbors get FOUR ecopasses, for the same amount that I would be expected to pay for ONE. This amounts to a penalty for single people, smaller households, etc. So I don't buy it.
- The Gunbarrel neighborhoods (inc. Heatherwood) need less time consuming mass transit into Boulder. If I were to take the bus now, it would take me 1 hr. by bus. They need to come more often, or there needs to be a hop/skip type option that comes more often. We need a direct route to Boulder. I would use it and put my bike on it, but it's way too time consuming.
- The Mapleton Elk issue was horrible.

- The only other beef I have is with the traffic signal system. There used to be consistent green arrows for turning left and at first to go in that direction. Then apparently the latest buzz was that it was safer to let left hand turn vehicles wait and/or alternate ones at the get go with ones having to wait. Now we even have these yellow blinking arrows. In my experience these developments are not only unsafe, at times they are harrowing. First of all, I think it is safer and better to have consistency in the system so people know what to expect. I find that time is actually wasted if I am at a light where I have to wait for the green arrow, because I never can be sure that onrushing traffic will actually come to a stop. I so would wish some one would really think this through.
- The planning department deals with so many regulations that the planners on staff rarely have the knowledge to give a definitive answer on their own.
- The Planning Department, especially the Building Department follows double standards and is incompetent. The reason it gets few complaints is because the vast majority of architects and contractors are scared to do so for fear of retribution!
- The present state of the neighborhood Eco Pass program is a disgrace, as RTD dictates how and who gets a pass. The Downtown Boulder Merchants all qualify for the most part, but people like my wife who would ride all the time are left out in the cold by those who either get a pass and never use it, or via a neighborhood that has all members working at CU or NCAR, disqualifying her due to no fault of her own. If you are resident of the City you should be eligible for an ECO Pass. No questions asked. Show proof of residency and pay a reasonable fee, say something like $90 to $100/yr for local service, $150-$175 for Regional and if the Skyride is utilized on a regular basis, maybe up to $250/yr.
- The things I've shared are my main concerns. Back to the water usage issue, I'd love to see Boulder acknowledge our ecosystem better- an arid desert, and stop trying to green things up artificially. If you want the city to be lush, the best way to achieve that is through better rainwater catchment/diversion use. We waste so much water... and drought is just going to get worse. Check out the books on Rainwater Harvesting by Brad Lancaster. Our sidewalks and roads alone could be designed to work for us, instead of against us, plus xeriscaping, and we'd have a much better handle on our water resources for the future.
- There are no questions about teh city climate program or municipalization???? / including fracking / The city does not enforce the sidewalk snow shoveling program. It also turns its head to the issues on the Hill - over occupancy, empty stores, student crime. It feels like questions aren't asked because ether don't want the answers. How can you change make things better????? For these reasons I'd give this survey a D rating. To paraphrase President Kennedy said "We choose to solve these problems in this decade and do the other things. Not because they are easy, but because they are hard." Embrace the hard questions and the answers from citizens and make REAL, POSITIVE change .
- There are only tertiary references to city funded human services. I find these very important to keeping Boulder a socio-economically viable and diverse place.
- There need to be more bike paths (off-street) east-west from CU or downtown directly to Lafayette/Louisville.
- This is way too long
- This may not be a city related issue, but after the flood the Open Space police were overly zealous in the trail closure programs especially closures that ran for 2 1/2 months after the flood.
- This survey is too long.
- This survey was too long!
- This survey was too long.
- This survey was too long... It represents just what Boulder does. It wants to be best at everything. Pick a focus. Manage what we have.
- this was way tooooo long... but I understand... happy to be done!
- TOTALLY mixed feelings about congregation of transients in Municipal Park and particularly BPL. Differentiating ways to meet needs of homeless as opposed to Transients. Empowering Boulder mental health to enter into this discussion.

- WAL-MART, WAL- MART, WAL-Mart or even a K-mart
- way too long
- Way too many homeless people in the downtown area, pan handling on every street corner, killing the grass next to the muni building smoking pot and doing other drugs in broad daylight, and hanging at the library all day. Most people who live in Boulder don't go to the library because it's full of nothing but stinky homeless people! The creek path has become totally unsafe in the last two years. As a single female, I can't walk alone by the creek in the middle of the day. It's offensive and unsafe! There needs to be a day shelter other than ridiculously tiny bridge house and overnight shelter that are only open a few hours a day to help this population. It's a huge problem for people visiting the area, the tons of city employees who work in the area and other tax paying citizens. It's shameful and something needs to be done! It's getting out of control and ruining the quality of life for all people who live in boulder.
- We cannot continue to love Boulder's Open Space "to death". Osmp MUST with the support of City Council, look at sustainability and carrying capacity for the decades before us!
- We need to be planning for and implementing policies so that the fabulous open space system that we have acquired over the last 50 years is managed in a way that will make the same resources available to future generations 50 or more years from now. We are currently loving it to death and losing natural resources as a result.
- We really enjoy the Skyride bus to the airport. My husband has a bus pass from CU, I pay full price, and the kids are free. It's a wonderful way to keep parking and traffic down at the airport while also saving the travelers money. / / I would love to take the kids down to the Boulder library, etc, on the bus, but It is currently not economically feasible for my family to ride the bus. We would have to drive down to the corner of Broadway and Linden, and then pay $6.70 for the kids & I to ride down and back up. That is much more than it would cost me in gas to coast down Broadway in my hybrid and then drive back up. / / I can see the current system making bus riding a good deal for people who are single commuters, and who live in neighborhoods with an eco-pass (although they're still pretty expensive). I can't see them being a good deal for anyone else. / / We moved here from Charlottesville, VA, a town that TRULY wanted people to ride the bus. They did it by partnering with the university, and making the buses free for everyone.
- We're very grateful for our neighborhood Eco-Pass for our Boulder High student, who rides the RTD to school from Broadway.
- When a business opens or moves here it would be nice to have a welcome visit from the city explaining services. I moved here with 4 people and now have 8 in downtown Boulder where I live.
- Would love to have a city council that cared and took care of problems in this city and not waste time, energy and our money on BEAR TRASH CANS! After turning the entire city into a compost pile.....the city council is either stupid, ignorant or greedy
- Wow! That was a long survey. Thanks for putting it together.
- YOU NEED TO REMOVE THE FLASHING LIGHT CROSSINGS ON 28th at IRIS. Its dangerous and low income families are getting hit by cars that cant or dont see the flashing lights... People drive that area with too high a rate of speed.
- You should have asked about city efforts to keep everyday services within the city limits, such as gas stations, car repair places, affordable small-business spaces. These essential services seem to be getting pushed out by big, new developments. We need to protect and keep these sorts of places dispersed throughout the city, not just in a few areas at the far edges of the city or outside the city.
